

Shores couple in Moscow during coup have front row seat

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A strange thing happened to Dr. William J. Rice of Grosse Pointe Shores and his wife Ginnie as they were shopping for souvenirs in Moscow last month. Surrounded by tanks and coup resisters, they found themselves part of history in the making.

The Rices had arrived in the Soviet Union on Aug. 9 to lecture at the Institute of Otolaryngology in the Ukrainian city of Kiev, Dr. Rice, an ear surgeon, presented a five-day ear surgery seminar to doctors there while his wife gave a talk to the nursing staff.

After eight days in Kiev, they flew to Moscow for a four-day visit and a tour of a local hospital.

"The people we met told us they were so happy with perestroika and the new freedoms they had under it," said Ginnie Rice, an associate professor at the Wayne State University College of Nursing.

"For example, we were able to visit people in their homes. We wouldn't have been able to do that a few years ago. And we were allowed to walk around and go sight-seeing by ourselves."

And only once did they feel like they were being watched, they said.

In Moscow, the Rices stayed in a new hotel facing Revolutionary Square, next to the Russian Federation Building.

On Monday, Aug. 19, they woke up and turned on the television, hoping to catch some English-translated news, as they had on other days. But the only thing on was a ballet performance. The other stations were broadcasting a test pattern and classical music.

"We thought that was strange, especially for a Monday morning," Dr. Rice said, "but when we went down to the lobby, people were milling about and everything seemed normal."

They had planned to leave the Soviet Union the next day, so the Rices decided to go shopping for souvenirs.

On a street behind their hotel, they saw a tank. But they thought it was left over from an air force parade the day before, and continued on their way.

As they walked, they saw three tanks rolling down the street, but again, thought they were left over from the parade and were heading back to their base.

The Rices shopped for 2 1/2 hours, and then walked back to Revolutionary Square about 11:30. A Russian doctor was supposed to pick them up at their hotel at 2 p.m. for a tour of a local hospital.

Revolutionary Square is like the center of a wheel, with

Firsts and lasts

Grosse Pointe's 7,000-plus students started back to school last week on Wednesday. It was a day for crying — from both parents and students, but not from teachers, learning locker combinations and making new friends. Above right, Trombly Elementary School

Possible sale of Schettler upsets residents

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Several local groups are concerned over the possible sale of the Schettler Drug Co. on Fisher Road in Grosse Pointe City. They believe the potential new owner plans to make the neighborhood drug store into a party store.

Grosse Pointe South parents, school district administrators and local residents say they have written the Liquor Control Commission asking that transfer of the liquor license be denied because a party store in that location would be detrimental to the health and welfare of neighboring residents.

But according to Salim Attisha, the potential buyer, he has no plans to convert the pharmacy into a party store. Attisha said he will keep the pharmacy and continue to run the store in a manner consistent with the neighbors' desires.

He would not comment any further because the sale is still pending.

Bruce Kennedy, chief of police for Grosse Pointe City, said Attisha told him he would expand the liquor stock if the sale goes through.

Scott Shapiro of Schettler Drug Co. would not comment.

The sale may hinge on approval of the liquor license transfer and the LCC will not make a decision until Kennedy completes his report. He plans on finishing the report and submitting it to the LCC next week. He said he is still collecting community input and has not yet made a decision on whether or not to support the sale.

"The concerns of the community are that Grosse Pointe South has 1,350 students, and based on the proximity of the store to the school one could almost argue that Schettler and Farms Market are part of the campus," Kennedy said. "So the question is, 'Is it really a good idea to have a liquor store on a high school campus?'"

State regulations don't allow a liquor store within 500 feet of a school or a church, but the store has been grandfathered in so the regulations don't apply.

"This in no way casts anything on the character of the potential owner," Kennedy said. "He appears to be a well-qualified gentleman."

Attisha operates three party stores in Detroit.

But the opposition is coming from all sides.

Beverly Road is a private road one block from the store. Bill Campbell is president of the Beverly Road Homeowners Association.

"We've been informed that the new lessee was going to be a party store, with more alcohol and longer hours," Campbell said. "I believe the residents of Beverly Road will be inclined to oppose any community business like that."

He said the corner of Fisher and Grosse Pointe Boulevard has become increasingly busy in recent years and students hang out there late into the evening. A late-night business would only increase the traffic and noise, he said. Attisha said he doesn't yet know what the hours will be, if the sale goes through.

Grosse Pointe City ordinances don't permit businesses to be open between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m. unless they have special approval by

Pointer of Interest

Norbert J. Kaminski

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Four hours a day, Norbert Kaminski sleeps. The rest of the time he's a perpetual motion machine with interests ranging from dog-sledding to converting the ballroom of his Grosse Pointe Park home into a train room to display his Lionel collection.

That, along with numerous other interests, is what the 37-year-old Kaminski does for fun.

By profession, he is a dentist and his office is a reflection of his belief that the dental profession has not done right by millions of Americans who fear getting their teeth fixed. Kaminski is out to change that.

For starters, he is a dental anesthesiologist, one of only two in Michigan. Part of his practice consists of treating severe dental phobias, the developmentally disabled and people with serious medical problems.

He is also an advanced cardiac life support instructor and he teaches basic life support as well.

Kaminski, who attended Austin High School, earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan in 1975. He

Park woman wins big at the fair

Ruth Thomas of Grosse Pointe Park was named Best of Show winner for needlecraft and other handicraft miniatures at the 1991 Michigan State Fair Community Arts Show.

Thomas, 70, entered a miniature replica of Woodward Avenue's Elwood Bar and Grill. Constructed of plywood, Plexiglass and tile squares, Thomas spent almost one year gathering materials, building and detailing the miniature.

Built to a 1 inch to 1 foot scale, Thomas twice visited the Elwood, located across the street from the Fox Theater, to take pictures and research the building layout before starting construction.

"Most of my work is from memory, so I can create it as I like," she said, "but the Elwood is a real place with historical value and I wanted my miniature to reproduce the actual bar."

Thomas has participated in the Community Arts show for 10 years. She has always received a ribbon, but this is her first Best of Show.

Schools chart new direction for phys ed; 8 goals stressed

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

A study of the Grosse Pointe schools' physical education program has recommended a new direction for teachers and students.

It doesn't mean gym class will be any more difficult or easy, but it does mean that the system's teachers will focus on goals for students and develop meaningful tests to determine if those goals are being met.

A committee made up of school administrators and K-12 physical education instructors studied the curriculum and determined that while the system is doing a good job now, there are better ways to test what skills students have learned.

"The major change is that we're hoping there will be a more consistent focus on what students will learn," said Alfreda Frost, assistant superintendent for curriculum and evaluation.

But Frost said teachers will still have a wide range of sports with which to teach students the skills they want them to achieve.

The eight goals the committee wants students to meet are: develop fundamental motor skills, knowledge of general concepts on the benefits of physical activity, control of body motion, demonstrated physical fitness and flexibility, be able to play leisure sports with some degree of proficiency, be good sports, play safely and develop an appropriate attitude toward physical activity.

The other major change is that the system will strive to develop its own, more valid, test to see if students are achieving their goals.

All but the last two are outcomes recommended by the Michigan Core Curriculum of Public Act 25. The last two were added by the committee.

"This is the first time we'll have a central location for test results and we will be able to judge how we're doing from the tests," Frost said.

Patsy Mogk, a physical education teacher for 31 years, most recently at Monteith Elementary School, was a member of the committee. Because all elementary students have physical education for only 30 minutes, two times a week, the study won't mean a great deal of change either for her or her students. But she sees the value in such a study.

"For one thing, it's a good thing we all got together as a department to figure out what we're doing and where we're going," Mogk said. "It's not often the whole department gets a chance to work together."

The development of a system-approved test is of tremendous value, Mogk said, but it may prove to be easier said than done.

"Whenever I go to a conference, all we do is argue about (nationally standardized) tests," Mogk said. "Sometimes they test sports skills more than they test physical fitness, and that's not very fair. There are parts of all of the tests that we like, but we may just want to come up with a Grosse Pointe test."

The reason testing is such a hot issue is because the more research that is done, the more conflicting the findings are.

For instance, students used to be tested on how many sit-ups they could do in a minute. The sit-ups were to be done with the hands firmly clasped behind the neck. New research said that type of sit-up is damaging to the neck and that it's not beneficial to sit up fully. Now, sit-ups are done with the arms crossed on the chest and the students are told not to raise themselves more than eight inches from the mat.

New research says that students who are growing rapidly won't have good flexibility and won't score well on flexibility testing, suggesting that those tests are unfair.

Russ Hepner, who chaired the committee with Tom Guarke, agrees that testing poses a problem.

He was also on the committee that looked at the physical education program seven years ago. All departments in the Grosse Pointe schools must review their curriculum on a rotating basis.

"The two biggest changes between this study and the one that was done seven years ago are that we have to stay current with physical fitness trends within the curriculum, and we have to come up with specific outcomes," he said. "But we have to come up with a fair way of assessing the programs. We can't make it so easy that 100 percent of the students pass it, nor can you make it so hard that only 50 percent pass it. It's a very fine line and it's difficult to make a test that will really assess your program."

One added problem with the high schools, said Hepner, who teaches physical education at Grosse Pointe South High School and is chair of the physical education department for all students grades 6-12, is that classes have upward of 40 students.

"We don't want to spend all our time assessing what we're teaching or we'll never have any time to teach," he said.

So the test being developed will measure skills, not ability.

"We want to test whether you can throw a ball and catch it, not whether you'll be a professional ball player," Hepner said.

Test results will be stored at a central location so norms can be established for each grade level. It will be a few years before those norms and averages can be fully established.

The physical education program will continue — and step up — its commitment to teaching so-called lifetime sports — sports people can play throughout their lives to keep them physically fit.

Currently all ninth and tenth grade students must take a full year of physical education which introduces them to every kind of sport from baseball to volleyball and from weightlifting to square dancing. The curriculum provides students the opportunity to participate in individual, team, co-ed and same-sex competitions, while learning how to act when playing.

It doesn't mean physical education will be any more difficult — Hepner said some 80 percent of the students receive A's. As long as students show up and try, there's no reason for them not to get good grades.

The high schools will continue their physical fitness days every Wednesday. On those days students take a break from the unit they're working in and practice jogging and walking in preparation for a mile run at the end of the year.

The elementary schools will develop a walking program, encouraging students to get exercise that way, Mogk said. The logistics are not completely worked out, but the program is planned to start later this year.

"We have a terrific physical education program in this system now," Hepner said. "But, this will help make it even better."

Josef's can hold onto its seats; Alinosi Ice Cream can get some

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Residents sent a clear message to the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council on Monday: Don't make it any more difficult for businesses to survive on Mack Avenue than it already is.

In response, the council, sitting as the zoning board of appeals, reversed its earlier decision and granted a parking variance to Alinosi French Ice Cream and Candy Co.

The board also granted parking variances to Josef's French Pastry Shop, located at 21150 Mack, and The Great Frame Up, a picture framing store that is moving into the building at 20653 Mack.

The variances will permit Alinosi to install seats inside its store, located at 21150 Mack; allow Josef's to keep its tables and seating; and let The Great Frame Up open for business, period.

Under a city ordinance, a business that sells food for consumption on the premises must have a certain number of off-street parking spaces. The number of spaces depends on the floor area of the building and the number of employees who will be on the premises during peak hours.

When Josef's opened in 1971, the city gave owner Joseph Bogosian a business license to offer take-out service only. After the city's parking ordinance was revised in the mid 1970's, he needed 18 off-street parking spaces in order to offer dine-in service.

In July, during a public hearing regarding Alinosi's request for a parking variance, it came to the council's attention that some businesses in the city were offering dine-in service when they were only authorized to provide take-out service.

Alinosi's request was denied at that time, and the city council authorized city clerk-administrator Chester E. Petersen to inspect all of the businesses in the city that offered food and beverages to see if they were offering dine-in service without permission.

Petersen found five businesses to be in violation: Yogurt Mania, Hugo's Deli, On a Roll, TCBY Yogurt and Josef's French Pastry Shop. They all had tables and chairs, indicating that they had been providing dine-in service when they were only authorized for take-out.

Petersen sent letters to the businesses, informing them they were in violation of the city's parking ordinance. Hugo's Deli, Yogurt Mania and TCBY then presented documents showing they had acquired a sufficient number of off-street parking spaces for dine-in service. On a Roll apparently went out of business, Petersen said, leaving Josef's as the only violator.

Joseph Bogosian, owner of Josef's, said he installed the tables and chairs four years ago mostly for decoration. Customers sit at the tables when placing special orders, like wedding cakes, and the chairs are a convenience — especially for elderly customers and children — when the line is long, Bogosian told the board.

Tom Sullivan, one of several Woods residents who spoke in favor of Josef's, said, "In the past four years, I have seen only one person eat there, and that was an older gentleman who was sipping coffee while waiting his turn. I don't think the variance applies here. The chairs aren't there for dine-in service."

Douglas Weiss of Hollywood added, "I think an establishment can have chairs without adding to the parking problem."

I urge council to find a way to bring back businesses to the Woods and not turn Mack Avenue into a parking lot."

And Toni DiClemente, owner of The Dried Flower on Mack, said, "I have difficulty with people who are not in the retail business forecasting what we can and cannot do with our shops... If people can't find a parking spot, then they'll go elsewhere and the business will have to close up shop. But if a customer really wants what I sell, then he'll park two blocks away if he has to. I don't feel the board should put obstacles in the way of businesses, because it's difficult enough to make it on Mack Avenue."

Many residents said similar, positive things about Alinosi and the Great Frame Up.

Robert Mowbray, president of the Mack Avenue Business and Professional Association, which represents 170 to 200 businesses on Mack Avenue, arrived too late to speak in Josef's favor, but just in time to say this about Alinosi: "I think it's a quality business on Mack Avenue, one that we as residents and business people would like to have in our midst."

He urged the board to look at new ways to improve the parking along Mack Avenue, and said, "It would be a very, very, sad place if we had any more dark storefronts on Mack."

The board granted Josef's variance request by a 5-2 vote, with councilman Ted Bidigare and councilwoman Jean Rice casting the opposing votes.

When Alinosi applied for a variance in July, it didn't get the five votes that are necessary for approval. Mayor Robert Novitke, councilman Paul Beaupre and Rice voted against it, because public safety director Jack Patterson said Alinosi vor of the variance in July, changed his mind and voted against it this time with Rice.

Before voting, Novitke said, "If there's an accident there, I won't feel it was caused by this council or Alinosi or our public safety department," but by someone else's carelessness. The Great Frame Up's variance was also granted, with Rice casting the only dissenting vote.

"I have voted against parking variances for the past five years and I will continue to do so, because they never make things better. They only make them worse," Rice said.

"I'm glad I had all the support of the residents and the community," said Bogosian. "Like I told the board, in the past two weeks I've collected 800 signatures from customers who say they've never had trouble finding parking by my store."

Steve DiMaggio, owner of Alinosi, said, "We're very happy and know the people of the community will be very happy with our store." He added that he will install seats around Alinosi's soda fountain "as soon as possible, probably by the end of next week."

Meanwhile, the city is looking into new ways to solve the traffic problem along the Woods' main business strip. About three weeks ago, the mayor formed the Mack Avenue Parking Committee.

Novitke said the committee will look at all of the city's ordinances regarding parking, as well as the placement and timing and cost of meters, and will make recommendations regarding changes to the city council.

"I don't think it will bring about change in 30 or 60 days, but I think we could start to see some results in 90 days," Novitke said.

The committee consists of the mayor, two councilmembers (Peter Gilezan and Thomas Fahrner), a representative from the planning commission (Bill Rodgers), a representative from the parking commission (Bob Fraley), and a representative from the business community. Mowbray agreed to be the business community representative at the council meeting.

"I'm very hopeful it will bring about a resolution of the parking problem," Mowbray said. "It's a positive step."

Fashion bashin'

Big decisions have to be made here. Do I revolt and start all-out war or do I go into hibernation for a few months? And if I choose to do the latter, is it an act of cowardice?

The fashion industry has pushed this consumer far enough. When I was younger, leaner and less secure in my knowledge of myself, I allowed myself to be manipulated by the so-called mavens of fashion. Those days are history and like it or, in my case lump it (pardon the pun), I refuse to respond to their dictates to women for the fall. Never having been accused of being a trendy sort of gal, I have to admit the folks at Woman's Wear Daily have toyed with me once too often.

For starters, plaid is not my bag. Apparently, according to those in the know, we must wear plaid this fall and winter. Lots of plaid, and not the quite subtle tones; we're talking bright, loud color here. It has been my observation that in order to carry off wearing plaid a woman must be at least 6 feet tall in her stocking feet and weigh no more than 80 pounds soaking wet. I don't qualify. Furthermore, the "experts" tell us that hemlines will hover from 2 inches above the knee to downright indecent.

As for our accessories, there is no such thing as too many chains. Lots and lots of chains in various sizes and layers. Mr. T., eat your heart out! Our grandmother's little purses with the wrist strap will be perfectly appropriate. I just may have a few of those in my pack rat closet.

Remember the old mandate that a lady always wears flesh-colored sheer stockings, rarely colored, unless black or navy in the evening? Forget it. This season our legs simply must match our skirts. There are almost no exceptions to the colors. This one piece of news is acceptable for those of us attempting to hide varicose veins and receives my hearty endorsement.

On the subject of shoes, once again we may be able to raid our old closets, for the choices are plentiful here. Dorothy and her magical red slippers would be able to trip happily down the Yellow Brick Road to Oz this fall. We would also feel totally comfortable in our old tap shoes, the ones with the big bows on the tops and the stumpy heels. Perfect!

I could continue by advising you that an assortment of stretch tights worn with either a very short Betty Boop trapeze dress or tunic can go almost anywhere, but you probably wouldn't believe it.

Not wanting to appear a total wimp, I will elect to venture out to various business and social functions and take the slings and arrows from the critics. At least the wraps I stay under will be of my own choosing.

Downed lines caused fire in Park

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A fire in a Grosse Pointe Park home Friday, Aug. 30, may have been caused by downed electrical lines, said Detective Lt. David Hiller.

The fire started during a storm about 6:25 p.m. in the basement of the house, located in the 1300 block of Kensington, Hiller said.

An off-duty public safety officer who was nearby saw an electrical line behind the house snap in the storm. Moments later, he saw flames coming from the basement of the house, Hiller said.

Neighbors helped the residents of the house — a senior citizen and her son — escape. They were taken to Bon Secours Hospital for observation and were released later that night, Hiller said.

Firefighters from the Park and Grosse Pointe City responded. One officer suffered from heat stroke and smoke inhalation. He was taken to Bon Secours, where he was treated and released later that night, Hiller said.

Firefighters were able to contain the blaze to the basement, Hiller said. However, other parts of the home suffered smoke and water damage.

"Our investigation has traced the point of origin (of the fire) to an electrical panel in the basement," Hiller said. "An extremely large power surge went through the panel, starting the fire. We think the power surge happened when the lines snapped."

Detroit Edison spokesman Scott Simons confirmed that primary electrical lines on Kensington were downed during the storm and that workers had repaired them.

Pointe man gets 15 years in fraud case

A Grosse Pointe man was sentenced Aug. 19 to 15 years and three months in prison for mail and Medicaid fraud and drug trafficking.

A U.S. District Court jury found Dennis Romano, 51, and others guilty June 19 of engaging in a conspiracy to defraud the state of Michigan Medicaid program and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan by using false billings and kickbacks, and the distribution of controlled substances.

According to the U.S. attorney's office in Detroit, Romano owned and operated three clinics in Detroit that provided drug addicts and others with prescriptions for controlled substances, performed unnecessary medical tests on the patients of the clinic, billed Medicaid and Blue Cross and Blue Shield for the tests and received kickbacks from the laboratory that performed the tests and from the pharmacists who filled the prescriptions.

Romano, through the operation of the various clinics, was responsible for fraud against the Medicaid program amounting to about $7 million and fraud against the Blues amounting to about $1 million and the unlawful distribution of more than 1.5 million dosage units of codeine-based controlled substances.

Romano had a prior conviction in 1981 on a similar charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States, said F. William Soisson, the assistant U.S. attorney who handled the case.

The sentence was handed down by U.S. District Judge Horace W. Gilmore.

Stephen J. Markman, U.S. attorney in Detroit, commended the FBI for the investigation of the case that led to Romano's conviction.

No repeat of Horton TV ad wanted in '92

As the hearings on the nomination of Clarence Thomas open in Washington, it is appropriate to inquire whether they will become a preview of 1992 presidential campaign tactics.

Some observers speculated that they will after the appearance last week of a television commercial that harshly criticizes the ethics of three U.S. senators who are in the process of passing judgment on Thomas' nomination to the Supreme Court of the United States.

At the same time, however, the ultra-conservative sponsors of the commercial contend that their aim is to prevent Thomas' foes from repeating their successful campaign against the nomination of Judge Robert Bork to the Supreme Court.

Even though the president himself criticized the commercial as offensive and counterproductive, the ultraconservative sponsors refused to withdraw it when requested to do so by the president and his chief of staff, John Sununu.

Instead, the sponsors said they hoped to show Democratic Sens. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Joseph R. Biden of Delaware and Alan Cranston of California, members of the Judiciary Committee hearing Thomas' testimony, what is in store for them and other lawmakers if they engage in what the conservatives call "character assassination" of Thomas during the hearings.

The question of the 1992 campaign arose because the pro-Thomas commercial was co-sponsored by Citizens United, an organization headed by Floyd Brown, the political director of Americans for Bush which in 1988 created the controversial Willie Horton commercial.

That commercial, disavowed at the time

State party preference upheld

Michiganians who go to the polls in March 1992 to vote in the state's revived presidential primary will have to register their party preference in advance.

The state Court of Appeals recently rejected the argument originally made by Zolton Ferency, Michigan State University professor and one-time Democratic Party state chairman, and upheld in an Ingham County Circuit Court ruling that found the law unconstitutional.

The appeals court ruled that the closed presidential primary law in Michigan does not create additional qualifications for voting and didn't violate the right to a secret ballot.

Under the law, voters will have to declare a party preference at least 90 days before the election, scheduled for next March 17. Those who fail to register in advance at times and places to be set by the political parties will not be able to vote in the presidential primary.

In the regular primary elections, voters must stick to a single party but do not have to register their specific party in advance. But the presidential primary law will not affect the the regular primaries in 1992.

In our view, the new presidential primary law assures a broader vote than cast under the caucus system used by both parties in 1984 and 1988 but it still is more restrictive, and thus less desirable, than the open primaries that operated until 1984.

parisons between the two commercials and the handling of them by the president's campaign people.

Even though the Horton ad had been disavowed by the Bush campaign, the Democratic critics said, the sponsors continued to use it on cable TV stations during September 1988 while the Bush campaign made and ran a variant of it that was less offensive.

However, the Thomas commercial is more troubling to Bush in one respect than the Horton commercial was. The administration is courting at least two of the three Democratic senators cited in the pro-Thomas commercial and believes it has a chance of winning their support for the nomination.

Even if the president and his campaign staff are as honestly upset at the Thomas commercial as they appear to be, its very use in the effort to win confirmation of Thomas' nomination raises fears among many observers that 1992 will be another "dirty" political campaign year.

True, most of the criticism of the Thomas commercial to date has been lodged against the GOP conservative sponsors but surely the next presidential campaign ought to be spared the appeals to the emotions that were created by the Horton commercial and some Democratic responses to it in 1988.

In that respect, the nation doesn't deserve a repeat of 1988 in 1992.

But the Thomas nomination should not be subject to as violent a display of partisanship as the Bork nomination was, either. Instead, both sides ought to stick to the facts about Thomas and his qualifications to serve on the court and avoid emotional appeals of the kind lodged against the three senators.

A view from the sidelines

by Wilbur Elston

Those of us who have lived beyond three score years and 10 sometimes feel that we are lonesome survivors of our times.

That feeling seems to arrive more frequently as the years roll on and we learn of the deaths of loved ones, one-time colleagues and the public personages who made the headlines in our times.

Russell Baker, the New York Times columnist, dealt with one aspect of this problem for we aging oldsters the other day when he remarked: "With aging, there are fewer and fewer people familiar with the culture that is yours."

Baker, a philosopher, humorist and best-selling author who just turned 66, even offered a quiz to inform the youngsters of how little they know about the times in which their parents and grandparents lived.

His point was to illustrate the depth of the cultural gaps that make it hard to talk to each other across generations and to have some fun proposing words and phrases for oblivion as a result of the momentous developments in what used to be known as the Soviet Union.

True, a word such as "Kremlinology" and a phrase such as "soft on communism" may be gone with the Soviet Union but for the aging oldsters the generation gap is much broader than that.

It extends to music, literature, art and even to the tools of the newspaperman's trade such as the computer that has displaced not only the typewriter but the mind in the view of some of us older observers.

It was ever thus, of course. The new replaces much of the old. Those who never knew the Depression, for example, never will know the sacrifices that hard times imposed on a nation and its people any more than they will know that the Blue Eagle was the trademark of the National Recovery Administration that was part of FDR's New Deal.

Even the New Deal is unrecognizable to some moderns. An editor of the Detroit News, for example, purports to find justification for the final end of the New Deal in the rout of communism in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. In his view, the New Deal was merely a bulwark against the threat of revolution.

Even granting the excesses of some New Deal programs, however, it is difficult to justify the libertarian approach of recent years that has prompted the abandonment of many forms of New Deal regulation, with the results that we read in the business page headlines every week.

Unfortunately, even as we aging oldsters pass our own judgments on modern life, we're subject to that most distressing criticism of all: "He (or she) has failed to keep up with the times."

If so, thank God.

Will chickens control the fox?

The head of the newly appointed Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs offers hope that public funding of the arts in Michigan is not a dead issue.

In interviews in the daily press, Judy Rapanos of Midland, the new chairperson, said she believes public funding "is here to stay," despite the state's fiscal crisis that led Gov. John Engler to propose phasing out public support for the arts.

Despite her comments, it is clear that the controversy is not at an end, especially with the appointment of an avowed foe of public arts-funding to the new state council.

The former chairman of the now abolished Michigan Council for the Arts, Leon Cohan, said the governor's appointment of arts-funding foe D. Joseph Olson is "like putting a fox in the chicken coop."

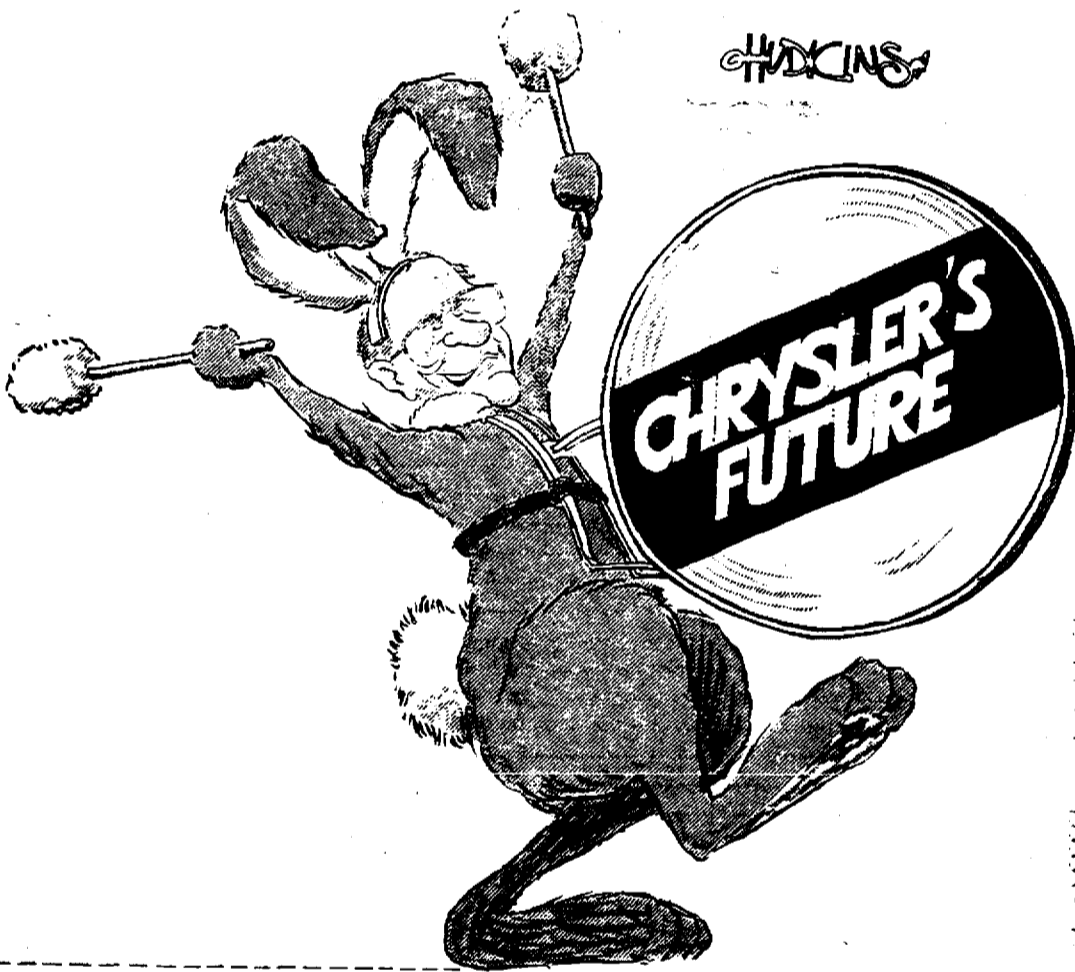

Olson himself admits he sought the appointment because he is in consonance with the governor's intention "to phase out art funding over the next few years." Olson once reportedly referred to funding supporters as "killer bees."

Olson, chairman of the Mackinac Center, a Midland-based conservative think tank, told Nancy Malitz of the Detroit News the other day that he wants "to be sure the council is not used as a lobby for continued support at the state level."

That insistence apparently ensures continuing controversy over the arts-funding issue although it is doubtful that Olson can serve as a "fox" on the new council in view of the presence of some pretty strong "chickens" who support public funding.

Even though the governor's chief of staff told a TV audience state support of the arts will be phased out in three years, we still have hopes that the public will back the "chickens" — and permanent public funding of the arts.

KEEPS ON GOING AND GOING AND GOING.....

Painful

To the Editor:

The Grosse Pointe News, Aug. 29, printed a letter from Louis W. Sullivan, the secretary of Health and Human Services, urging care in driving on the Labor Day weekend and reciting statistics about deaths from traffic accidents.

Dr. Sullivan says he is "reminded of what the British poet A.E. Housman wrote: 'A moment's thought would have shown him, but a moment is a long time and thought is a painful process.'"

A.E. Housman never wrote this — exactly. His precise words are: "Three minutes' thought would suffice to find this out; but thought is irksome and three minutes is a long time."

Housman was a classical scholar as well as a poet. The line appears in the Preface to his 1905 edition of "Juvenal." It is a nice question whether Dr. Sullivan can properly claim to be reminded of words that Housman never wrote.

Housman was scrupulously exact in his own scholarship and, as the line misquoted by Dr. Sullivan shows, an unsparing critic of faults, such as misquotation, by others. He also was a master of English prose, and no doubt would be irked at having the flaccid expression "a painful process" attributed to him.

Time of need

To the Editor:

After reading the articles Aug. 29 regarding reapportionment, I am concerned. The reason for my concern centers around the possibility of the city of Grosse Pointe Park being placed in the 2nd District of Wayne County, and in so doing, separate the city from the other Grosse Pointes.

The articles refer to a "minimal change plan" being presented by Wayne County Commissioners O'Neil, Kelley and Amann. Where is 1st District Commissioner David Cavanagh during this time of need? What is his stance regarding Grosse Pointe Park?

If it's not one thing

It was just one of those days. You know the kind: You're lying in bed looking at the clock. It's 8:15 and you think, "Ahh, my alarm hasn't gone off yet."

You close your eyes, snuggle back down under the sheets and realize with a start, "Ohh, my alarm hasn't gone off yet."

In your rush to get ready for work — you know you'll be late — you step on the cat, stub your toe, find an overdue bill in your frantic search for your keys and realize that horrible stench in your apartment is the leftovers you were going to bring to work for lunch.

On your way to work the street you turn down to avoid the construction on Jefferson is blocked by a "Workers in Trees" sign. (How do they get their filing cabinets up there?)

So you get to work and upon settling in for a long face-off with the computer, you spill your coffee.

The computer, obviously, slows down as you speed up, keeping you at its pace. Then, with a final "so there," it takes your cursor to show you just who's in charge.

You do what you're told to do: Tell the rest of the staff your computer is down and that they had better save what's on their screens because theirs might be the next to pull a power play.

You hold the function key down and hit the "x." Nothing. You do it again, more carefully and deliberately. Still nothing. So you do it again, but all you see is the story on the screen, silently mocking you. You call in the big gun — the staff computer expert.

"My computer's stuck. I think we have to reboot."

He doesn't even ask what I did. He knows the computer just does this.

"Did you do function 'x'?"

"Ten times," I say as he holds down the function key and hits the "x." Nothing. He does it again, more carefully and deliberately. Still nothing. So he does it again, but all he sees is my story on the screen, silently mocking us.

"Your computer's stuck. We have to reboot."

Thank you, Dr. Microchip. I could go on, but the point is made. All this complaining is simply laying the groundwork regarding my frame of mind when I left work and saw a little old lady in distress. She had a totebag of books she was moving slowly down the sidewalk. She picked up the totebag, which had broken handles, and tossed it a few feet in front of her then shuffled up to it to repeat the process.

Being a former Boy Scout, and despite rumors and my carefully cultivated image, I'm a genuinely nice guy and I thought I'd redeem my day by helping the lady out.

So I said to her, with as kind a face as I know how to put on, "Can I help you, ma'am?"

She looked up at me and instead of the grateful thanks I was expecting, she snarled and yelled, "Go away. You're not needed here."

A perfect cap to my day, I thought. But it wasn't over yet. I stopped at the grocery store and picked up a few items and was walking to my car when I saw another little old lady who was having trouble putting her bags in her car trunk.

I quick ducked my head and pretended I was looking for something in my grocery bag until I was past her. Rude? Probably, but with my luck, she would have beamed me with a tire iron.

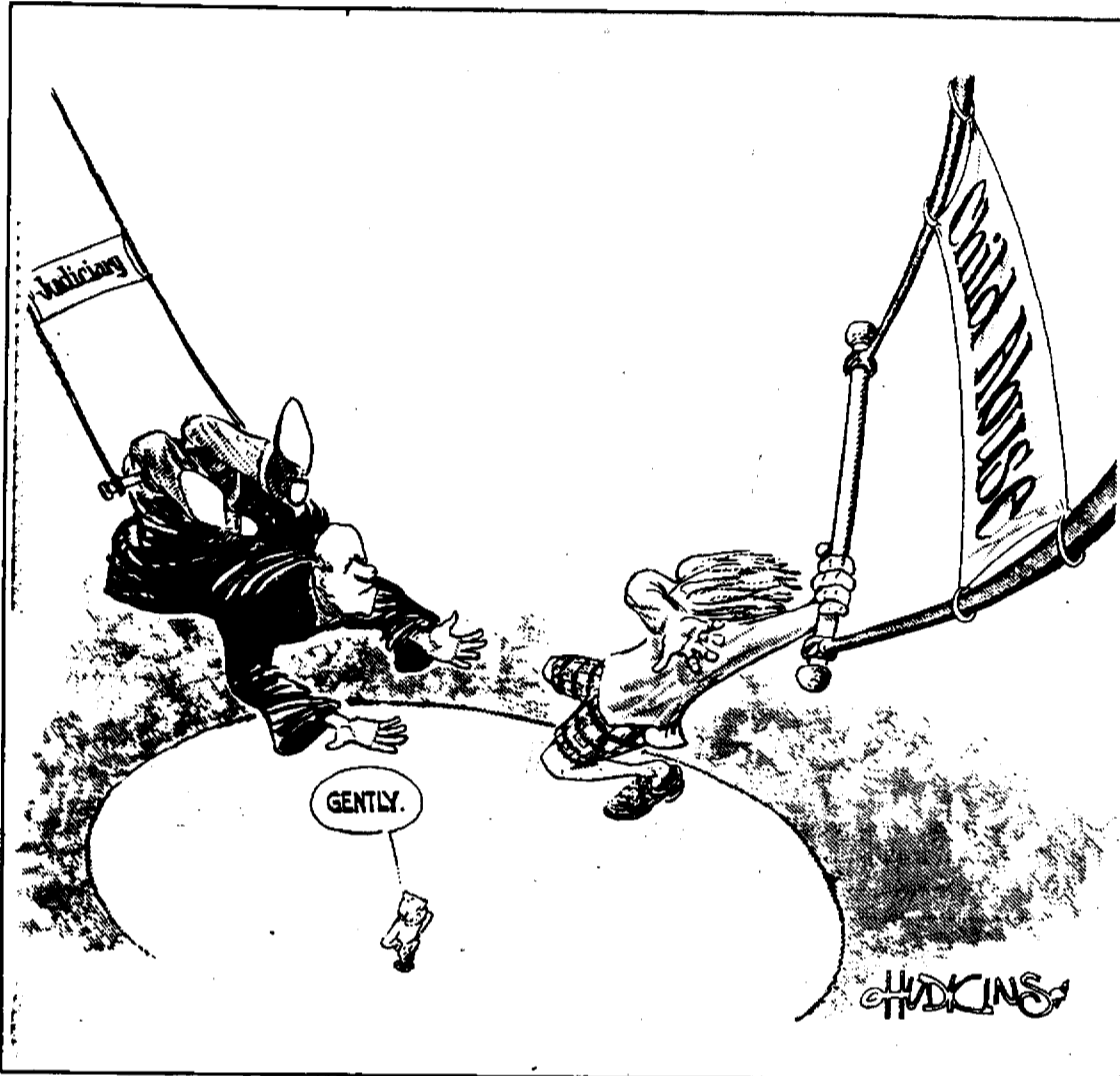

I had to wait in the aisle of the parking lot while a car without a handicapped license plate waited for another car without a handicapped license plate to pull out of a handicapped parking spot. Meanwhile, I looked over and watched the lady in distress I had ignored fish through her purse for a tip for the young boy who helped load her groceries.

For the first time that day I laughed. What else could I do? And the rest of the day went better, because I knew tomorrow couldn't possibly be worse.

Pizza weirdness in a Pinter sketch

Centerstage: the grandkids. Three of my parents' six grandchildren fledged from their respective nests this summer. Really fledged, by traveling through Europe on their own, without even planned itineraries.

forming and easing bonds. Set the scene for a sketch from Harold Pinter:

Pieces of china are spread over the lawn. A setting for 12 from Grandmother's house is up for grabs, or, rather, for some sensible method of distribution.

"If I ever get so old that I want some of that, shoot me," a granddaughter mutters, even as another clutches a bowl to her chest.

"Mohammed is trying to fax our ticket invoice but the machine is stuck. It's five o'clock and the people at the agency aren't going to wait any longer." Groans of frustration.

Phone rings. "This is Sushi Pizza and we're sending your order right away." Hoots of laughter from unknown teenage males.

"It's probably Danny. We drew worms on his sidewalk."

"Can you believe we were in London a whole month and never ate a ploughman's lunch?"

"So this camel driver, right in the middle of the world's busiest intersection (we're on a different trip now), starts beating his camel. It falls to its knees and he whips out a knife and slits its throat!" Screams.

The phone rings again. More pizza pranks.

"When we got to Hamburg, we couldn't find the address. We were so tired that we just stopped at the first hotel. How should we know we were in the redlight district?"

"I hate this china. Give all of it to the oldest." Cacophony of protest and agreement.

"I thought you guys were going to perform." The girls spent the summer singing madrigals in public plazas. They feel they have sung enough for a lifetime.

"What's the title of that Jill Ker Conway book? Road from something?"

"I think we could all do a bike trip if it isn't too hilly."

"She actually learned to run alongside a horse and leap on, just like the stuntmen in the movies."

"Yeah, but can she stand up and twirl a sword?"

"Then he pulls the pack off and proceeds to butcher the camel and sell the meat, right there in the street. People come out of the woodwork — they know they can get it cheap."

"Why doesn't anybody like this pinecone pattern? I think it's beautiful."

"The sheets weren't clean and when we turned on the lights, the cockroaches scuttled around. But when I tried to get my money back, the Turkish owner had forgotten how to speak English."

"You're going to stay in the Sheraton Alice Springs? I thought Alice Springs was a Wild West town with dirt streets."

"In India, there are people who work on the streets cleaning people's ears and noses." Eeeyew!

"Everybody's just now getting their class schedules and I've had mine for two days."

"We've made an offer on a place. Think the bank'll give a mortgage to people without a job?" Laughter.

Can do

Denise Treusch of Grosse Pointe Woods entered 10 items in the canning/preserving and baking categories at the Michigan State Fair this year.

"This is the first time I entered anything," she said. "My husband encouraged me to do it."

She won nine ribbons: one first place; four second places; two third places; two honorable mentions.

The first place ribbon was in the relish category — for horseradish — which she grows in her yard.

"Horseradish is one thing I won't eat," Treusch said. "I won't touch it."

Treusch's winning entry in the baking category was Mandarin Orange Bar Cookies.

"It's an adaptation of an old family recipe," she said.

Mandarin Orange Bars

2 eggs
1 1/2 c. light brown sugar, tightly packed
3/4 t. vanilla
1 1/2 c. sifted flour
1/4 t. salt
2/3 c. chopped mandarin oranges and liquid

1/4 c. chopped walnuts
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Beat together eggs, sugar and vanilla for two minutes at high speed. Sift together flour and salt and blend into egg mixture. Add oranges (save liquid) and fold in walnuts.

Spread evenly on greased and floured 15-inch by 10-inch jellyroll pan. Bake 25 minutes or until brown and firm. Cool 15 minutes.

Frosting

2 T. soft butter or margarine
1 t. grated orange rind dash of salt
2 T. mandarin orange juice
1 t. lemon juice
3 c. powdered sugar, divided remaining 1/3 c. chopped oranges

1/4 c. finely chopped walnuts
Cream together butter or margarine, orange rind, salt, orange juice, lemon juice and 1 c. powdered sugar. Beat until smooth. Add remaining 1/3 c. chopped oranges and 2 c. powdered sugar. Beat until smooth. Spread on bars. Sprinkle walnuts on top. Cool. Cut into bars. Makes 48 cookies.

These, she'll eat.

It was a summer marked by various parents surreptitiously wringing their hands and saying determinedly that no news is good news. A summer of greeting a two-week-old postcard with the excitement normally reserved for diplomatic pouches stuffed with official secrets.

Three emerging butterflies, one studying in the British Library ("reading where Karl Marx read!" his proud mother will tell you — "ask me about the Common Market," his new knowledge begs), two working as street entertainers.

So the annual summer's-end family reunion — kids back, if not exactly under their parents' sheltering wings, at least safe and a lot wiser — was a little more poignant, a little giddier with the usual chitchat about electronic fund transfers and corn smut enlivened by tales from the Continent.

Their worldly aura added another dimension to the typical reunion mix of nostalgia, of anticipation, camaraderie and competition, joy and jealousy, sass and secrets and strife, of

Say yes

To the Editor:

I agree with Grosse Pointe Shores' President Brady that local control is crucial for our communities. This is exactly why I support the district court for Grosse Pointe Park.

Over the past decade, Park residents have lost control of a congressional district and a post office. We will soon lose our Wayne County commissioner. None of these losses has provoked intervention on the part of the other Pointes' mayors, yet on this issue they feel compelled to do so.

The state has made it abundantly clear that it intends to eradicate municipal courts — by incorporating them into existing courts. If the Park does not act to create its own district court now, the state will do it for us, most predictably, by incorporating us into the 36th District. So much for local control — much less accountability.

Creation of a Park district court will not only preserve local control — the little we still have left — but will actually increase it. It will close the existing escape hatch for persons sentenced by our Municipal Court who are now able to appeal their cases (no reason necessary) to the overcrowded Wayne County Circuit Court docket where county standards of crime and punishment prevail.

A Park district court may not be in the best interests of the Shores — or the three other Grosse Pointes for that matter. But as a Park resident, I feel my community's best interests must be served, through the creation of a district court and preservation of local control.

Maire/Kroger

To the Editor:

A number of letters have been printed regarding a plan, now in the concept stage, for a new Maire school student drop off/pick up zone which also happens to incorporate an expansion of Kroger's. Most assume that child safety and an expanded Kroger's are antithetical. In fact, the No. 1 concern is children's safety, and the proposed expansion is not at odds with this.

Currently, children being picked up and dropped off are exposed to the dangers of two-way traffic on a busy thoroughfare. The concept plan establishes a one-way loading area on school property. The fine points of situating crossing guards, warning signs, etc., will be examined in traffic studies upon concept approval.

Concern has been expressed about an adequate buffer between the proposed Kroger's parking areas and the school, specifically referencing the hazards of trucks, shopping carts and other non-school traffic.

The plan offers several options to help guarantee children's safety through a choice of hedges and/or retaining fences separating the commercial and school areas beginning at the new car entry.

Trucks will continue to use the alley immediately behind Kroger's and unload at a new, hopefully inside, dock. Further, the expanded Kroger's, able to stock in greater depth, will require fewer deliveries, hence, fewer trucks.

Negative comments have also been made about the loss of both established trees and property. Actually, after re-landscaping and fence repositioning, the school property currently not in use would be fully utilized and offset the property change that would occur with Kroger's expansion.

For all that has been written in this regard, has anybody compared the land adjustments with the Maire/Kroger's and the Waterloo plans? My estimate would be that the Waterloo plan would require equal if not slightly greater land. Naturally, some trees will have to be removed, but new trees and other plantings will be added.

None of the letters printed to date address the benefit to everyone of having a full-service grocery store. Current size severely limits variety and depth of goods, and necessitates continuous restocking. Many local shoppers must frequent more than one store to fulfill their needs. The proposed enlargement would alleviate this problem.

Kroger's goal is to offer a large and complete selection, including specialty items, to current customers. Their projections indicate that customer growth would remain almost constant, while the neighborhood patrons would be far better served.

Obviously, many of the fine details of the proposal are incomplete, but it is only in the concept stage. I stress the word concept, for that is all it is — not a plan to be implemented as it stands, but a concept to be modified and refined into a final design.

At this juncture, the idea should be given a chance, and the Maire PTO and school board encouraged to work with the rest of the business and non-business community to come up with a specific proposal benefiting the entire community.

Please think

To the Editor:
This letter is to all who oppose the Maire School and Kroger changes:

Did any of you know the years of research this new plan took? Did you realize it is the best safety plan for the children? The betterment of all our shopping and parking in the future! Did you take a good look at other towns across the country that have cleaned up, replanted, painted and grown with the times?

Think please. Grosse Pointe is wonderful — we are blessed with the best in police and fire departments. The educational system is outstanding. Our neighbors are caring people. Our Village and Hill are a pleasure to shop in. The Hill Association is fixing up and planting, re-shaping their area.

Why can't we look our best, have the best safety for our children, have better shopping and parking, and the advantages that are available to other areas?

All this will not happen for years if this plan is stopped.

Drenched

To the Editor:

I wish to ask where the municipalities earn the right to soak cars and motorists driving through the boulevard and sprinkled areas of East Jefferson and Mack Avenue. The Shores is particularly adept at having its water sprinklers spray everything but the grass. East Jefferson frequently is flooded with water, especially in the southbound lanes, and often enough the sprinklers are spraying directly on cars that are obliged to pass through. This is often the case also on Mack Avenue in the Woods and in Grosse Pointe Park on the new boulevard at East Jefferson.

Many of the motorists passing through these areas have cars that have been carefully washed and polished at some expense to their owners. More often than not, these drivers have no choice because of traffic constraints but to drive through these puddles with areas of spray usually leaving the cars dirtied and spotted. On some of these occasions it is even enough to require the use of windshield wipers.

Not only is this a nuisance and an expensive annoyance but in fact it even defeats the purpose of the sprinklers — watering the grass. There is not a great deal of grass growing in the pavement of the streets.

Any competent maintenance man could redirect these sprinklers so they water the intended lawn and not the streets. The answer is, of course, that they really don't care and these municipalities take an arrogant and indifferent attitude toward the feelings of the motorists. We all love the beauty of the boulevards but many of us enjoy driving in clean automobiles. Car washes today cost anywhere from $4 to $10.

Previous phone complaints have only resulted in callous indifference, ridicule and bureaucratic "buckpassing."

I would hope the municipalities would have some concern for the sensibilities of the motorists who they are apparently trying to please by their beautification efforts along the boulevards.

Classic car auctions offer fun — and a strong dose of nostalgia

The midway at the Kruse International Labor Day Classic Car Auction rivals that of most state fairs. You can get a piece of greasy deep-fried dough, or spun cotton candy on a paper stick or an assortment of other stomach-wrenching delicacies.

You can also buy an authentic gasoline pump from the '30s, or a neon dealership sign that says "Packard Service" or "Terraplane" or a Chevrolet clock with a bubbling neon tube around the face.

A constant stream of traffic is coming in off nearby I-69 and the vast parking lot itself is a show of the interesting cars many of the visitors drive.

Helicopters and Ford Tri-Motor airplanes fly constantly overhead, treating visitors to an aerial view of the 300-acre auction grounds south of Auburn, Ind. An airplane pulls a sign promoting a rival collector-car auction firm, Detroit-based Charleston-Seroka Productions.

Classic-car auctions are fun and have become a big business in recent years and the granddaddy of them all is the annual Labor Day auction in Auburn, which was started by Dean Kruse in 1970. By 1991, the annual event had grown to its premier status as THE collector car auction of the year. This year, some 5,000 cars ranging in value from $1,000 to $5 million went on the block and about 150,000 people came to look at them, maybe bid on them, perhaps even buy one.

Autos

By Richard Wright

If you're looking for nostalgia, this line of 1931-1940 Chevrolets has it.

There is something for everyone — this year there are a couple of Duesenbergs worth millions of dollars, cars owned by Elvis Presley and Sammy Davis Jr., and more ordinary muscle cars from the '60s and '70s, big-finned behemoths from the '50s, rounded and streamlined entries from the '40s and elegantly fendered machines from the '30s.

As I edged toward one of the two auction blocks, a Martin Wasp was being auctioned. I had never heard of it and apparently no one else had either, because bidding was sluggish, despite the fact that it was a magnificent-looking car, one of only two built in Bennington, Vt., by a marine engineer who wanted an American answer to the Rolls-Royce. It was for sale for $36,000.

If you talk to visitors at this or any auction or collector car show, you begin to get a feel for the role that the automobile plays in our lives, whether one realizes it or not. People who have never been car buffs nonetheless feel an incredible nostalgia when they see cars from their childhood that their parents, relatives or neighbors owned.

Some were commonplace in their day, like the 1951 Ford Victoria that sat in the lot outside the auction hall. In the early '50s, these cars were everywhere — handsome cars, that is why they sold so well. But now they are rare and beautiful.

The '51 Ford Victoria was Ford's answer to General Motors' very successful "hardtop convertibles" and has special significance in Auburn because it was designed by the late Gordon Buehrig, of Grosse Pointe, who had designed Duesenbergs, Auburns and Cords during the '30s. His best known works were the "coffin-nosed" Cord 812 and the boat-tailed Auburn Speedster.

Next to the '51 Ford was an Avanti convertible of recent vintage, the latest version from Youngstown, Ohio, of a 30-year-old design. Studebaker introduced the fiberglass-bodied Avanti in 1963. After Studebaker went out of business, a firm continued to build the Avanti in South Bend, Ind., until the mid-'80s, when the firm was sold to a Youngstown businessman.

The Avanti still looks modern and unusual after almost 30 years. Interestingly, the convertible version looks more conventional than the sedan.

Nostalgia, real deep nostalgia, for me goes back into the '30s and two lines of cars just outside the auction hall put me in a time warp. One was a line of Chevrolets which ranged from 1940 to 1931 and nearby was a line of Fords of similar vintage, including the first car I can remember, a 1934 coupe my father owned.

In restored, like-new condition, these cars that were once so commonplace are now worth a lot of money — $10,000 and up for coupes and sedans, more than twice that for convertibles. But many of them were not in like-new condition, they were just unusually old used cars and would sell for prices in the $1,000 to $2,000 range. A big auction like this one can provide the least expensive way to get into car collecting.

It can also provide an expensive way, if you want to start at the top, as did Tom Monaghan in 1985, when he made his first classic car purchase at the Kruse Labor Day auction, a 1930 Ford Model A woodie Depot Wagon.

'57 Lincoln Mark III was not highly regarded when new, but is a show-stopper now.

Looking for something different? How about a VW Beetle motor home?

1957 was a pretty good year as a Chevrolet convertible, and Ford Retractable prove.

'51 Ford Victoria was designed by the late Gordon Buehrig to Grosse Pointe.

Vacation season's history, and that's one way to enjoy it

So, you've had your vacation. Except for a few holidays there is nothing to look forward to until next year — some 50 weeks away. That's if you're still in the world of work.

For retirees, this time limitation doesn't necessarily apply. They can not only travel when it pleases them but they can go in the off-season when plane tickets are cheaper and hotel rates are reduced.

But there is a rub here also. The tight budget of many retirees limits their travel even at bargain prices. It's the old Catch 22; if you have the money, you don't have the time and if you have the time you don't have the money.

However, faraway places are not the only answer to a fun-filled and relaxing vacation. There is much to see and do right here in Michigan — great swimming and beaches — but you all know that and may have experienced much of it.

If you have had enough swimming and fishing this summer, you might want to take a color tour of your state. Michigan is beautiful in the fall when the leaves on the trees turn to every imaginable shade of red and gold.

Another possibility is a historical tour. There are many landmarks of interest. Take Sleeping Bear Dunes in the Leelanau Peninsula on the shore of Lake Michigan. Its shifting golden sands were likened by historian Bruce Catton to Beethoven's "Emperor" piano concerto. Catton grew up not far from the dunes and wrote about them in a book called "Waiting for the Morning Train."

Another famous author who spent 20 of his first 21 summers at a cottage near Petokey on Walloon Lake is Ernest Hemingway.

The Hemingway cottage, called Windemere, is still there. This part of the country was the locale for 10 of his short stories and his first published novel, "The Torrents of Spring."

In Manistee there is an impressive structure called the Ransdell Theater, named for Thomas Ransdell, a civic-minded lawyer who built the theater in 1903. Opera houses were popular in those days. The Ransdell, one of the few that survived, was one of the grander edifices with a ceiling mural depicting Venus in a golden chariot, drawn by doves, and a curtain with a scene described as a "Grove Near Athens."

Senior citizens forums planned

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. (MichCon) is bringing together utility, legal and health care professionals to address the needs of Metropolitan Detroit area senior citizens. Four Senior Citizen Information Forums will be held in September in senior centers throughout the Detroit area.

Representatives from MichCon, Detroit Edison, Michigan Bell, the Detroit Water Board, Health Board, Police Department, Senior Legal Aid, Detroit Area Agency on Aging, and Samaritan Health Services will make presentations on programs available to seniors. Following the presentations, audience members will be invited to a round-table discussion with the agencies of their choice.

The free forums are scheduled on the following dates:

- 11 a.m. to noon, Thursday, Sept. 12, in Walter P. Reuther Southwest Senior Center, 5555 McGraw, Detroit; 895-5400.
- 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 18, in Brightmoor Community Center, 14451 Burt, Detroit; 531-0305.
- 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 19, in Dexter-Elmhurst Senior Center, 11825 Dexter, Detroit; 834-4579.
- 11 a.m. to noon, Wednesday, Sept. 25, in Semi-Quois Center, 8337 Gratiot, Detroit; 571-4840.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Closer to home are the logging museums in Saginaw County. The oldest are in the east central area. Paul Bunyan and Babe the Blue Ox — 42 ax handles and a plug of tobacco wide between the horns — are said to have logged in Saginaw County.

Other places of interest are the store where Tom Dewey, once a presidential candidate, grew up in Owosso; Frank Murphy's home in Harbor Beach (he was once governor, U.S. Supreme Court justice and confidante of presidents) chemical genius Herbert Dow's home in Midland; writer James Oliver Curwood's house in Owosso; the lighthouse at Mackinaw City that guided thousands of ore vessels through the treacherous straits; and finally, our state capitol in Lansing, said to be an elegant example of the type of state-houses built in the nineteenth century.

Even closer to Detroit, trips to while away a day might include a jaunt to Howell to tour the Livingstone County Courthouse where the venerable courtroom still has its shuttered windows and old oak tables; a Greek Revival home with columned portico in historic Ypsilanti, which housed a ladies' literary group in 1842; Bronson Park in Kalamazoo where a few Indian mounds remain that served as burial sites and platforms for Indian orators; the old mill in Linden on the banks of the Shiawassee which was erected in 1850 and ground grain until 1956; the octagon house in Washington, a design that was briefly in vogue a century ago.

If you only want to go somewhere for a day, there are historical sites to visit in Detroit, such as Fort Wayne, which was constructed after the War of 1812 to protect Detroit from invasion from Canada.

Then there are the old churches in Detroit that have architectural and historical significance.

The oldest of these is St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church. It has occupied eight structures, ranging from a log cabin in 1701 to the present twin-spired Gothic structure completed in 1887. The interior has a French motif and the fleur-de-lis, or French lily, is repeated throughout. All the windows are inscribed in French.

The woodwork is noteworthy. The communion rail is hand-carved and depicts the seven

AARP 3417 to meet

AARP 3417 South Macomb Chapter will meet Thursday, Sept. 19, at 1 p.m. at Blossom Heath, 24800 Jefferson in St. Clair Shores.

Travel trips will be announced. The general meeting will be followed with lively entertainment by Grant and Ruth Kurz on their harmonicas.

The meeting is open and free to anyone over 50. For more information, call 777-1218.

sacraments. A small wood altar is carved in the likeness of modern day saints. Mother Teresa of Calcutta stands among them. Father Gabriel Richard's body lies in a glass and marble crypt in a chapel that connects the church to the rectory.

St. Anne's is the oldest parish, but S.S. Peter and Paul is the oldest building. It dates back to 1848. For 20 years it was the cathedral of the Archdiocese of Detroit. The altar is made of marble imported from Italy. Three life-size paintings behind the altar tell the story of the church.

The third oldest parish is St. Mary's in Greektown. The main altar is of carved wood. There is a massive circular canvas on the ceiling depicting the Immaculate Conception of Mary. Most notable are 10 polished granite pillars originally intended for the Lansing state-house and bought by the parish for $4,000.

Across from what was the Stroh brewery off Gratiot is St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church. Its spire rises 300 feet to pierce the urban skyline. Three naves nearly equal in height are supported by 12 northern Michigan pine pillars to represent the 12 apostles, the pillars of the church.

The First Presbyterian Church on Woodward, built in 1889, was modeled after Trinity Church in Boston. Christ Church on Jefferson, "The Westminster Abbey of Detroit," was built in 1845. It is known for the beauty of its sanctuary. The woodwork throughout the interior is all butternut.

Cathedral Church of St. Paul is home to one of the city's largest Episcopal congregations. Among the treasures it holds are an altar carved in Oberammergau, Germany; larger than life oak figures of the crucifixion; and a wood gallery set high in the south transept copied from the stone gallery in the English Exeter Cathedral.

BMW PROVES A SAFE CAR NEEDN'T BE A BORING ONE.

INTRODUCING THE NEW BMW 3-SERIES.

After eight years of intensive research, thought and effort, BMW is proud to announce a dramatically different and completely new 325i sports sedan.

As you'll soon discover, it's a car built around the philosophy that driving a true performance sedan can be tremendously satisfying. And that driving safely can be considerably more so.

THE BEST WAY TO SURVIVE ACCIDENTS: AVOID THEM.

By design, the very features of the new 325i that make driving it so exhilarating also serve to make it that much safer.

A powerful engine offers even greater agility. Assertive steering allows you to maneuver out of tight situations. An entirely new suspension offers greater stability in hard cornering and a better hold of the road overall. And BMW's newest-generation antilock brakes give drivers the ability to stop authoritatively in most kinds of situations and road conditions.

BMW'S IMPACT-ACTIVATED SAFETY SYSTEM.

In the event of an unavoidable accident, the 325i sedan is well-prepared. In a frontal impact, for instance, the 325i will launch an entire sequence of events that is designed to minimize injuries.

Hydraulic bumpers absorb a part of the initial impact energy. A unique "crush tube" system absorbs yet more. Seat belts tighten their grip. Three sensors trigger the driver's-side airbag. Interior lights turn on and all of the doors unlock, to assist passengers in escape or rescue efforts.

Like all BMWs, the 325i sedan offers economic practicality as well. It arrives with BMW's 4-year/50,000-mile bumper-to-bumper warranty. A Roadside Assistance Program drivers will be able to call upon any day of the year, on any road in the U.S.A. And, perhaps most remarkably of all, an M.S.R.P. that is a mere $27,990.*

For information on the 325i, visit your nearest authorized BMW dealer. And while you're there, we suggest you treat yourself to a 325i test drive. If you're looking for an automobile to feel safe in, it's easily the most exhilarating drive you can take.

Schools' new magnet classes attract 63

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

When school started last week, three classes of extremely able students met for the first time in the Grosse Pointe schools.

The magnet classes, as they are known, are for students in grades two through five who have IQs of 140 or above. These gifted students will receive accelerated curriculums in an effort to meet their intellectual needs on a daily basis.

Superintendent Ed Shine proposed the classes as part of an overhaul of the system's program for gifted students. Parents of more than 100 students originally expressed interest. The number was whittled to 63 as people dropped out.

"My guess is that parents signed their kids up just to save a place as they considered their options and then dropped out for whatever reason," Shine said.

Defer Elementary hosts two of the magnet classes — one class contains 15 students in grades two and three and the other contains 28 students in grades four and five. Ferry Elementary has one class of 20 fourth and fifth grade students.

Students in the magnet classes will have the same lunch and recess periods as the rest of the students and every effort will be made to include them in field trips and other events in which other students their age participate.

Shine's original plan called for only two classes, but the response forced the board to approve the third, which involved hiring a teacher. No additional funds were needed, however, to hire the third teacher, because Shine had budgeted extra money should more teachers be needed. Two other Grosse Pointe teachers of gifted and talented children volunteered to teach the remaining two classes.

The plan also called for more tailoring of instruction to students' abilities on a systemwide basis.

Shine hopes to open the magnet classrooms one day a month so parents and community members can see what the program is about.

Central High plans 50th

Central High School, class of 1941, plans to meet at the Troy Marriott Hotel, 220 W. Big Beaver, for a 50-year reunion.

The date is Saturday, Sept. 21. There will be dinner, dancing with music by the Shelby Lee Quartet and a cash bar. Cocktails are at 7 p.m., dinner at 8 p.m.

Cost is $40 a person.

For information, call Alfred Shevin at 540-2779 or Richard Casey at 549-7052.

Learn calligraphy

Improve your handwriting and learn a calligraphic hand at the same time by taking the Copperplate Calligraphy class at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial this fall. This new class will be held on Mondays from 7 to 9:30 p.m., Sept. 16 - Nov. 4.

Copperplate calligraphy, the style used to write the American Constitution, can be learned easily and does not require previous art or calligraphic experience. Add flair to your invitations, letters and greetings with this technique.

Instructor Maureen Wickstrom has taught art and calligraphy for several years to both high school students and adults. She is a member of the Michigan Association of Calligraphers and has attended the last four International Lettering Artists conventions.

The cost is $80 for eight weeks, plus a materials fee of about $20. Registration one week in advance is required. For more information, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Used book sale

Sally Giacobbe, left, and Mary Remillet of the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library sort LP records, framed art prints and thousands of used paperback and hard cover books in preparation for the annual fall used book sale. The sale will be held on the terrace of Central Library Friday, Sept. 13, and Saturday, Sept. 14, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. A preview sale for members of the Friends will be held Thursday, Sept. 12, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. All proceeds benefit the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

Meet Mr. Fat and his deadly pal, Cholesterol

By Marlys Dee Craig
Special Writer

A dangerous diet myth has become popular that starchy carbohydrate foods are fattening and nutritionally inferior.

Such slogans as "a chicken in every pot" or "a steak on every plate" have pushed people to eat larger amounts of animal protein than their bodies need.

Many believe that a diet high in protein and low in carbohydrates furnishes the best nutrition, and the most energy. Such notions are clearly false.

First of all, foods high in protein are often high in saturated fats. Eating excessive quantities of animal protein means ingesting large amounts of saturated fats. One gram of fat provides 9 calories; protein supplies 4 calories.

Fats put on weight. Sad to say, for the average American, 40 percent of the total daily calories comes from fat — way too much. At the most, the amount should be 30 percent, and reducing this level would have health benefits for many adults.

Jane Brody, longtime food authority for the New York Times, says, "We could fully satisfy our nutritional requirement for fat by consuming the equivalent of one tablespoon of vegetable oil each day (equal to 100 calories). But the average American consumes eight times that amount — and in the process packs in a load of extra calories."

Fat, and its close companion, cholesterol, should be everybody's concern. Dr. Frank Sacks of Harvard Medical School and his research team showed that by adding nine ounces of meat a day to the diets of vegetarians, the blood cholesterol levels rose 19 percent in two weeks. This is not a plug for vegetarian eating, but it's an indication that animal fat is related to blood cholesterol.

Heart and blood-vessel diseases account for half of American deaths. Astonishing as it may seem, most victims do not show very high levels of cholesterol in their blood. However, autopsies of the blood vessels reveal deposits of fatty gunk laid down by years of eating too much saturated fat.

Interestingly, Dr. Robert W. Mahley, pathologist at the University of California and director of the Gladstone Foundation Laboratories, found that cholesterol made by the body is used to produce hormones, cell membranes, vitamin D and protective sheaths for nerve fibers.

Dietary cholesterol is the troublemaker because it ends up in the blood vessels carried by the circulatory system. All it takes is a small clot to shut down circulation in arteries. If the artery leads to the heart, the result can be a heart attack; if it supplies blood to the brain, a stroke may occur.

Fats vary. Saturated fats stay hard at room temperature. Examples of such fats are contained in cheese, butter, cream, whole milk, ice cream, poultry fat, suet and lard. Cutting back on this kind of fat is essential for all Americans.

Some vegetable fats are worse offenders, such as coconut oil, palm oil, and chocolate (cocoa butter). Regrettably, the first two enjoy widespread use by manufacturers of processed foods because they are cheap and don't turn rancid. Check labels of packaged foods for such fats.

Unsaturated fats are oils at room temperature. They appear in two forms both of which lower cholesterol. We are probably more familiar with the polyunsaturates which are called essential fatty acids since the body cannot make these fats and they are necessary for a number of bodily functions. Commonly used polyunsaturated fats are found in soybeans, cottonseeds, corn and sunflower and safflower seeds.

Monosaturated fatty acids are found in both animal and vegetable foods. This kind of fat is seen in greatest quantity in olive oil, peanut oil and canola oil. Dr. William E. Connor, metabolism and clinical nutrition physician at the Oregon Health Sciences University and former president of the American Society of Clinical Nutrition, says, "We recommend that you cook and bake with other vegetable oils, of the more polyunsaturated variety — they (monounsaturated oils) should not be used in excess."

Lastly, there are the omega-3 long-chain fatty acids. When eaten in fish on a regular basis, such as the Greenland Eskimos do, this form of fat appears to be more effective than polyunsaturated vegetable oils in reducing risk of heart disease.

The Michigan Department of Public Health, center for health promotion, also suggests 30 percent of the total caloric intake be fats with the kinds of fats apportioned accordingly: Saturated fats should be cut to 10 percent or less. If less, then the 30 percent total fat intake can be reduced to less, since the body makes saturated fat from other nutrients when necessary.

Polyunsaturated and monounsaturated vegetable oils may be consumed as 20 percent of the total caloric intake and apportioned roughly in equal amounts. If omega-3 oils are eaten, then another kind of oil must be reduced accordingly.

Sports speaker scheduled

University Liggett School has planned a special evening for Grosse Pointe's students, student-athletes, their parents and their coaches.

On Monday, Sept. 16, ULS will present sports psychology consultant and professional speaker Dr. Alan Goldberg, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the auditorium on Cook Road.

Goldberg's entertaining and motivational program introduces student-athletes and non-athletes to the power of the mind in improving performance. Through the use of stories, exercises, demonstrations and practice, participants will learn to confront self-limiting beliefs and begin to see that with the right kind of "mental strategies" anything is possible.

The program is open to the public. Admission is free. For more information, contact Athletic Director Bob Wood at 884-4444.

Academy enrollment up

Enrollment at the Grosse Pointe Academy has increased for the 1991-92 academic year. With school back in session Wednesday, Sept. 4, enrollment of students in grades 1-8 exceeded 400 students.

Dr. Sidney DuPont, headmaster of the academy, attributes the increase to a new field-house/auditorium, family-faculty priorities and the stability and ability of the school faculty.

The school is an independent co-educational day school serving children of 2 1/2 years of age through eighth grade.

Samaras family offers scholarship

The Samaras family of Grosse Pointe Woods is making available an annual scholarship of $500 for a North High School senior who is involved with Valhalla, the school yearbook.

In addition, the student must be accepted at an accredited college or university and have demonstrated excellent character and citizenship.

Eligible students should see their counselors for an application. The deadline for applying is March 1.

Bill of Rights essay contest open

The Michigan Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution and the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association will sponsor a Bill of Rights Bicentennial essay competition for high school seniors.

A $1,000 scholarship will be awarded to the student writing the best essay, and three runners-up will each receive $500 scholarships.

Students will answer the question: "Why the Bill of Rights is important today." Deadline for entry is Nov. 10, and judging will be completed by Dec. 1.

The bitin' Irish

For the second straight year, rain-soaked skies dampened the ground but not the spirit of parents who attended Notre Dame High School's annual back-to-school corn roast. The roast is for parents of incoming freshmen and enables parents and teachers to get to know each other. Above are Joan and Richard Hall of Grosse Pointe Farms whose son Ian is a freshman this year.

Parenting skills classes offered

This fall the Department of Community Education has scheduled nine classes in parenting.

The first in the series, "STEP (Systematic Training to Effective Parenting)" will be taught by Anita Dupes who has taken special courses in preparation for the assignment.

"This provides a practical approach to parent-child relations," Dupes said. "Being an effective parent is one of the most rewarding tasks in life — and it is also one of the most challenging."

The fee for the seven-week class, offered at 7 p.m. Wednesdays beginning Sept. 18, is $35.

A four-week class, "Talking with Your Kids About Alcohol," will begin at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 2. The class will be taught by Susan Pearce, a professional in the area of substance abuse and a school district faculty member. The fee is $25 and one or both parents may attend for that price.

"This class has been designed to help parents learn what to say to their children about alcohol and how to say it," Pearce said. "It also prepares parents to give their children information for a lifetime and age-appropriate expectations that are consistent with the values of the family."

Other classes in parenting are "Fire Safety Tips for Parents," on Oct. 3; a four-part series of "Wise Mothers Workshops," featuring such topics as "Becoming a Non-Critical Parent," (Oct. 21); "Peaceful Parenting," (Oct. 28); "Nurturing Children in a Changing World," (Nov. 4); and "Toys: Tools for Knowledge or Wisdom?" (Nov. 11).

Still other classes are "Drugs — Recognizing the Symptoms," on Nov. 7 and "Parenting — Sibling Conflict and Rivalry," on Nov. 16.

Full details on all the Community Education classes on parenting may be found in the brochure which is available at the Grosse Pointe Central Library and its branches in the Woods and Park, as well as at Barnes School, 20090 Morning-side Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Good or bad, it will be here tomorrow, Friday the 13th

What's so bad about Friday the 13th?

Nothing, if you're one of the producers of the awful, but money-making movie by that title, and its seemingly endless sequels.

Or everything, if your triskaidekaphobic.

Triskaidekaphobia means "fear of the number 13."

It may seem like a silly fear to some people; however, hotels know it's real. Just try finding a 13th floor in a high-rise hotel or office building. The floor numbers usually skip 13, jumping from 12 to 14.

And try finding dinnerware with place settings for 13. Impossible.

Couple the 13th day of the month with a Friday — like tomorrow — and watch out! In folklore, Friday the 13th is a bad day to put to sea or get married, unless your birthday falls on the 13th.

How did this legend surrounding the number 13, and Friday the 13th start?

According to Norse mythology, Loki, the spirit of evil, crashed a banquet attended by 12 other gods. During the meal Balder, the most popular god, was slain. The moral of the story, Norsemen assumed, was that 13 at a table is unlucky.

And its probably just coincidence, but Christ was crucified after sharing the Last Supper with his 12 disciples.

People who don't have to work weekends may look forward to Friday, and think of it as an extremely good day. However, some people think Friday is unlucky, because Christ was crucified on a Friday.

So what's the moral of this story? Be kind to trikaidekaphobics tomorrow, because they think it's their unlucky day.

—Donna Walker

It's not just little shavers who want this Blade

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

You could have the biggest, most state-of-the-art computer with more memory than an elephant and capable of crunching numbers in the bejillions and the first thing anyone will ask is: "What kind of games do you have?"

If you had a Macintosh computer, the answer has always been: "Nothing good."

But by the end of September, a local company expects a lot of people to have a different answer to that question.

"Blade," designed and animated by Grosse Pointe's Greg Onychuk and Mark Fortuna, who, along with Soo Glister, make up Leviathan, is the first arcade-quality game created for the Macintosh system.

Set in a nebulous future world, the player is Choric 7, point lancer of the Guardian Legion, a genetically tailored army serving as the Earth's ultimate defense and attack force. A series of creatures, each more frightening than the last, preys upon the player in his or her quest to locate and rescue a small band of humans.

"Basically it's your traditional hack and slash video game," Onychuk said.

"We had so many new ideas graphically that we wanted to keep the game simple," Fortuna said.

Blade is the product of 3 1/2 years of work, with Onychuk doing the animation and Fortuna doing the programming.

"We're both avid video players," Onychuk said. "And we both know what we like to see in a video game. The Mac, from an artist's point of view, offers me a better palette of colors, richer graphics and smoother animation."

With many games, the pair said there seems to be a definite separation between the programmer and the animator, which tends to get in the way of game enjoyment.

So that's why Blade has 18 different screens and dozens of different creatures when other games for the Macintosh have only a fraction of those numbers. That's why it has such defined animation when characters in other Mac games move in chunks. That's why it uses a palette of 256 colors when most Mac games are black and white or have only 16 colors.

And that's why it got such a good response last month at the MacWorld Expo in Boston where Leviathan had a program running for people to try.

"Mothers would drop their kids off and come back hours later and they were still playing it," Glister said.

"We got real sick of the music by the end of the show," Onychuk said of the game's eerie stereo soundtrack.

The program they showed was slightly easier than the version consumers will buy, and is considerably easier than the original, which neither Onychuk nor Fortuna could master.

The response from the more than 49,000 people from across the world who attended the expo was overwhelming.

"The response we got was real good," Fortuna said. "It's somewhat surprising we've had the response we had because most people don't show any interest until it's in the box and on the shelf."

In less than a month since the MacWorld show, Leviathan has received more than 1,500 requests for information on the game. And not all came from kids.

Doctors, lawyers and engineers have called to place orders. One phone call they returned was answered at NASA by a space engineer.

Production was expected to begin this week and the game is expected to be available by the end of the month. Distributors from Sweden, Saudi Arabia, Japan and Australia as well as the United States are lined up to market Blade. It costs $99.95.

"But that's not out of line with what is out there," Fortuna said. "Genesis games are $80 and others cost even more."

And with Macintosh offering a new low-price line the market for it is growing.

"A few years ago if you wanted a Macintosh system it would have been a $10,000 investment. Now it's more like $2,500," Fortuna said.

Leviathan is a 5-year-old design and print media company founded by Fortuna, 25, and Glister, 23. Onychuk, who's 26, joined a few years later.

The three met at Wayne State University, where not one of them majored in computers.

"We're just real intelligent," Glister said jokingly.

They started out in the graphics business, and moved into films, working on special effects for the locally produced cult horror film "Evil Dead II." The three focused on computer-generated print projects to pay the bills as they worked on Blade.

"Down the road we'd obviously like to be major players in the video market," Fortuna said. "Right now, the Japanese have the corner on the market."

But although their products are well done, they're not terribly innovative.

"The best products are coming out of the United States and England," Onychuk said. "The Japanese just keep regurgitating the same old crap."

"We want to keep pushing the envelope of what is out there," Fortuna said.

"And in a sense, the Macs have to catch up to what we're doing," Onychuk said.

"We're a small company, and this is a great opportunity for us to grow," Fortuna said. "Especially in the Mac market where the leaders haven't been established yet."

Greg Onychuk, Mark Fortuna and Soo Glister have created and are marketing the first video-quality arcade game for a Macintosh computer.

For now, they're still looking forward to the next game, now that Blade is ready for market.

And with the software they designed to create Blade, the next game — for which they already have ideas — will be easier.

"As a woman, I would like a — if you will — softer game, one that doesn't involve hacking and slashing," Glister said. "We also want to do some educational games."

"People are going to have computers and if they use them for checking or whatever, they're going to still want a game," Fortuna said.

Woman foils car-jackers

A 25-year-old Grosse Pointe Park woman told Park police that two men tried to steal her car while she was stopped at a traffic light on Kercheval and Alter Road shortly after 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 1. She said that while she was stopped, a silver-colored Chevrolet Cavalier pulled up behind her. The man on the passenger side got out, walked over to her car, and smashed in her front passenger-side window. She said he was armed but she could not identify the weapon. The man ordered her to get out of the car, but she didn't comply. He then attempted to run around the front of her car, and she accelerated, striking him. The woman then drove to the Park police station to report the incident. She said the assailant was a black male, 18 to 20 years old, 6 feet tall, and thin — about 140 pounds. The driver was a black male, she said. Detroit police are handling the case because it happened in Detroit, not Grosse Pointe Park.

FIRST AMENDMENT TO BOND RESOLUTION REVENUE BONDS (WATER AND SEWER IMPROVEMENTS), SERIES 1991

Minutes of a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms, Wayne County, Michigan, held on the 9th day of September, 1991.

PRESENT: Mayor Fromm, Councilmen Berg, Danaher, Crowley, Echlin, Kaess and Berendt.
ABSENT: NONE.

The following First Amendment to Bond Resolution (the "Amended Resolution") was adopted by the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms at a regular meeting duly called and held on September 9, 1991:

WHEREAS, this City Council has determined that it is necessary to make improvements to the water supply and sewage disposal system in the City of Grosse Pointe Farms (the "City") by updating electrical equipment in the sewage plant, acquiring automation equipment for the sewage plant, and replacing water mains and sewer lines; and

WHEREAS, on July 15, 1991 this City Council adopted a Bond Resolution (the "Bond Resolution") authorizing the issuance of bonds in an amount not to exceed $995,000 to pay part of the cost of improving the City's water supply and sewage disposal system; and

WHEREAS, the City desires to amend certain terms of the Bond Resolution to provide for a bond reserve account and to modify the requirements for the issuance of additional revenue bonds.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE FARMS, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, as follows:

- Section 15(B) of the Bond Resolution is hereby amended and restated in its entirety as follows:

B. BOND AND INTEREST REDEMPTION FUND: There shall be established and maintained a separate depository fund designated BOND AND INTEREST REDEMPTION FUND (the "Redemption Fund"), the moneys on deposit therein from time to time to be used solely for the purpose of paying the principal of and interest on the Bonds. The moneys in the Redemption Fund shall be kept on deposit with the paying agent.

After provision for the Operation and Maintenance Fund, there shall be set aside in the Redemption Fund a sum proportionately sufficient to provide for the payment when due of the current principal of an interest on the Bonds, less any amount in the Redemption Fund representing accrued interest on the Bonds. Commencing September 1, 1991, the amount set aside each month for interest on the Series 1991 Bonds shall be 1/6 of the total amount of interest on the Series 1991 Bonds coming due on the next interest payment date. Commencing September 1, 1991, the amount set aside each month for principal of the Series 1991 Bonds shall be 1/12 of the amount of principal next coming due by maturity. If there is any deficiency in the amounts previously set aside, that deficiency shall be added to the next succeeding month's requirements.

There is hereby established in the Redemption Fund a separate account to be known as the Bond Reserve Account, into which shall be deposited on the date of issuance surplus funds of the City in an amount not to exceed the Bond Reserve Requirement. As used herein, the term "Bond Reserve Requirement" shall mean an amount not to exceed the lesser of (i) the maximum principal and interest payment on the Bonds, (ii) 125% of the average annual principal and interest payment on the Bonds, or (iii) 10% of the net proceeds of the Bonds. Except as hereinafter provided, no further deposits need to be made into the Redemption Fund for the purposes of the Bond Reserve Account once the Bond Reserve Requirement has been deposited therein. The moneys in the Bond Reserve Account shall be used solely for the payment of the principal and interest on the Bonds as to which there would otherwise be a default.

If at any time it shall be necessary to use moneys in the Bond Reserve Account for such payment, then the moneys so used shall be replaced from the net revenues first received thereafter which are not required by this Resolution to be used for operation and maintenance or for current principal and interest requirements.

No further payments need to be made into the Redemption Fund after enough of the Bonds have been retired so that the amount then held in the Redemption Fund (including the Bond Reserve Account), is equal to the entire amount of principal and interest which will be payable at the time of maturity of all the Bonds then remaining outstanding.
- Section 22 of the Bond Resolution is hereby amended and restated in its entirety as follows:

Section 22. Additional Bonds. The City shall have the right to issue Additional Bonds of equal standing in a sum necessary for the completion of the project herein described in the event the proceeds of the Series 1991 Bonds are not sufficient for such purpose. No Additional Bonds payable from the Net Revenues of the System which have equal standing with the Series 1991 Bonds herein authorized may be issued for the purpose of improving, enlarging and/or extending the System, unless the average actual Net Revenues for the then last two (2) preceding fiscal years or the actual Net Revenues for the then last preceding fiscal year, whichever shall be the lower, plus the lowest estimated additional Net Revenues to be derived in any fiscal year commencing more than one year after the completion date of the improvements as fixed in the ordinance authorizing the issuance of such Additional Bonds, from the improvements, enlargements and extensions to be financed by such Additional Bonds, shall be equal to at least 125% of the largest amount of principal and interest thereafter maturing in any fiscal year on the Bonds then outstanding payable from the Revenues of the System and on such Additional Bonds then being issued.

No such Additional Bonds shall be issued if the System shall then be in default in making any payments to the Operation and Maintenance Fund or the Redemption Fund. Permission by the Department of Treasury of the State of Michigan, or such other state commission or agency as shall have the jurisdiction over the issuance of municipal bonds, to issue such Additional Bonds shall constitute a conclusive presumption of the existence of conditions permitting the issuance thereof.
- All resolutions and parts thereof in conflict with the provisions of this Amended Resolution are, to the extent of such conflict, repealed.
- If any section, paragraph, clause or provision of this Amended Resolution shall be held invalid, the invalidity of such section, paragraph, clause or provision shall not affect any of the other provisions of this Amended Resolution. The paragraph headings in this Amended Resolution are furnished for convenience of reference only and shall not be considered to be part of this Amended Resolution.
- This Amended Resolution shall be published in full once in The Grosse Pointe News, a newspaper of general circulation in the City, promptly after its adoption and shall be recorded in the minutes of the meeting of the Council at which this Amended Resolution was adopted. Such recording shall be authenticated by the signatures of the Mayor and the Clerk.
- This Amended Resolution shall be effective immediately upon its adoption.

Adopted and signed on the 9th day of September, 1991.

graduated from the University of Detroit School of Dentistry in 1979 and spent several years in private practice with a large group of dentists.

"They had a person who came in to provide anesthesia services," he said. "That was my first exposure and I decided to go into it."

He began anesthesia training at Providence Hospital, spending four months in 1982 and an entire year from 1987 to 1988 in residency training. He completed the fellowship exam of the American Dental Society of Anesthesiology in 1989.

His office in Roseville, the Advantage Dental Center, is near major freeways to accommodate patients who come from throughout the state. It's not a traditional dental office.

The reception area is designed like a living room with soft lighting and there is no glass partition separating patients from the office. The three examining rooms are large and the doors are oversized as well "to help people from feeling a tight, closed-in sensation," Kaminski said. The rooms are equipped with TVs.

The hallway has subdued incandescent lighting and there is plenty of wood, on the baseboards and walls and even cabinets. There is a comfortable counseling room with a large recliner and table and lamp for patients who are extremely nervous. Kaminski talks to them there.

Since people associate the smells of a dentist's office with their fear, there are no discernible dental smells here. Technicians open and close containers quickly and there are containers of potpourri throughout.

Kaminski estimates that about half of his patients are dental phobics. "A lot of people have had bad experiences," he said. "They have no confidence, they're anxious and they will be more sensitive to pain. It's a self-fulfilling prophecy."

The National Institute of Health estimates that 10 percent to 15 percent of the population are severe dental phobics and another 20 percent have very high dental anxiety and will delay getting treatment until pain forces them to make an appointment.

Kaminski spends time talking with his patients. He said about 80 percent of his patients who are sedated gain enough confidence to be treated without anesthesia during their next visit.

"A lot of our patients are somewhat embarrassed," Kaminski said. "They feel like wimps. What I emphasize to them is, look, it's not your fault."

Dental X-rays are accomplished with a panoramic X-ray machine that surveys the whole mouth in one sweep — good news for the "gaggers," of whom there are many, according to Kaminski.

To accommodate people who need extensive work done and don't have time for return visits, Kaminski will do everything in one session, even if it would normally take a dozen appointments. "It's not so much they are fearful," he said. "It just makes more sense because for some people, time is money."

Kaminski, who also does oral surgery at Providence Hospital, is developing a regional program at the hospital for the treatment of dental phobics. The center, which will employ psychology and behavior modification, will be the only one of its kind in the state. Another similar center is located in Chicago.

the city council.

Julie Bourke collected some 100 signatures of concerned residents who requested that the transfer be denied. She mailed the petitions to the LCC earlier this week.

"Already that store is a hang-out place," Bourke said. "We don't need a party store like that in Grosse Pointe, especially in a residential area."

Grosse Pointe school's Deputy Superintendent Harrison Cass sent a letter to the LCC expressing the district's concerns over a potential party store. So did Grosse Pointe South High Principal John Artis, who said any change would mean school officials would need to be more vigilant about what the students do on their lunch hour. He said it could possibly mean a reappraisal of the school's open-campus policy which allows students to leave school grounds for lunch.

The Grosse Pointe City Council has discussed the matter and, according to council-member Myrna Smith, has written a letter in opposition of the proposed sale, if the store will be turned into a party store.

"Hopefully, people will let us know what they think soon so Chief Kennedy can use the information in his report," Smith said.

People can write Roger J. Rosendale, Director of License and Enforcement Division at the Michigan LCC, Michigan Department of Commerce, 7150 Harris Drive, P.O. Box 3005, Lansing 48909 to express their feelings on the matter.

Suspect in Woods robbery held by Indiana police

Grosse Pointe Woods police have located a suspect in the armed robbery of the Little Caesars restaurant on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods last month.

The suspect, a 26-year-old Detroit man, was picked out of a photo lineup by a witness, and the Wayne County prosecutor's office issued a felony warrant for his arrest on Aug. 19, Woods police said.

The suspect is also wanted in other cities on armed robbery charges, police said.

He was arrested by police in Indiana on an armed robbery charge on Aug. 14, and gave police a phony name. When they found out his real name and ran a computer check on him, they discovered that he was wanted in the Woods for armed robbery, Woods police said.

On Aug. 2, the suspect posed as an employee at the Woods' Little Caesars and at the end of the night, pulled a handgun on the only remaining employee and emptied the restaurant's safe.

"He will definitely be coming back to Michigan to face charges, once they're through with him in Indiana," a Woods detective said.

Consultants take non-traditional approach to job hunt

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

They were the buzzwords of the '80s: downsize, merge, reorganize.

When companies want to cut costs, when they want to become more competitive, they employ one or more of these techniques. And if it helps the bottom line, it's good for business.

The human cost, however, has been devastating. Professionals with lengthy credentials are being cut, laid off or fired.

Everyone, including Grosse Pointers, has been affected directly or indirectly with the new unemployment, the white collar recession, according to James J. Rourke Jr., vice president and chief operating officer of Professional Resources Organization (PRO). And it's going to happen more, he said.

"Business and the way people are treated has to change," he said, "because everything has changed. There's no more loyalty."

The economies of the world are getting together, the system of democracy is changing and "there will be a shakeout," Rourke said.

"Companies can't expect people to be slaves to their jobs and people can't expect birth-to-grave jobs," he said.

The cardinal sin, Rourke said, is "we're destroying our greatest resource — people. We're firing people and not doing anything for them. There's something wrong there."

The Woods resident speaks from personal experience. After losing his job as a key executive for a large company, Rourke said he went to the unemployment office and discovered there was no code for his position and the agency was therefore unable to help him.

More than a year ago, he and Joseph Abate of St. Clair Shores formed PRO, a progressive management consulting firm. The company differs from outplacement firms because it doesn't match employees with employers; rather it focuses on the individual.

Through a structured month-long program, PRO Action for Success seeks to make the person more marketable. The brochure reads: "Think of yourself as a business. Analyze your assets, research the market, develop a business plan and take action."

A traditional outplacement firm may provide a plush office, business cards, a resume typing service — all the trappings to which an executive is accustomed. "That's all make-believe," Rourke said.

"We saw many people who went through an outplacement service and we found two types. One is totally destroyed and the other one is waiting for the same job he had and doesn't want anything different."

They send out hundreds of resumes and wait for replies, Rourke said, "or for Santa Claus." And the person's health disintegrates, his financial status worsens, there is pressure from his spouse.

"He becomes more worried and more depressed," Rourke said. "The longer it continues, it becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy."

PRO's program consists of eight sessions. The first intensive part takes one week, about four hours a day, and is conducted in a group format with industrial psychologists, human resource professionals and counselors.

"You learn to understand stress and that everyone is going through the same process," Rourke said. "It's deadly if it doesn't stop."

Sessions deal with understanding relationships, anger, the inner child. Participants take psychological tests. "We want to get the person centered," Rourke said.

The person is then introduced to a coach — a businessman or woman — who guides the person during and after the program. A professional marketing writer helps prepare a resume.

While PRO has three full-time consultants — Abate, Rourke and Frank Glogowski — the firm draws on 35 other professionals who are experts in their fields; banking, medicine, plant security, engineering, computer security, tax planning, communications and other categories.

They include George D. Mofett Jr. of Grosse Pointe; Wayne Saeger of Dearborn; Jerry Caspell of Redford; Toni Brem of St. Clair Shores; Lyman P.

"Dusty" Rhodes of Milford; Dan Mertus of North Carolina; Jack Bologna of Plymouth; Theodore L. Vernier of Grosse Pointe Woods; and Chris Hamill of Milford.

"We believe our company has an advantage because our consultants are very well known," Rourke said.

More important, he said, "We give people more options than they ever thought about."

A person who worked for one company for a long time may not know anything else. "If you don't know what you want to do, that's OK," he said. "We ask people to list eight things they can do, like going back to school, going into business for themselves, giving up."

Through testing, coaching and consulting, the person is encouraged to tap into his resources. "Maybe he wants to open up a barbershop," Rourke said.

While PRO works with individuals, the ideal situation is to work with companies that are planning to cut personnel, he said. The program, Resource Redirection, reduces or eliminates lawsuits for wrongful discharge and helps the remaining employees maintain good morale, preventing loss of productivity and possible loss of unaffected employees who feel they may be next, Rourke said.

"We want to show that these people are unfortunate victims, that the company cares and is not ashamed to show it," he said.

The larger issue is the human cost, Rourke said. One man who was fired continued with his life as if nothing had happened, Rourke said. The man played golf and maintained his social life while he spent two years with an outplacement firm. Even his wife didn't know, Rourke said.

"It's happening more and more," he said. "It's something the government will have to recognize."

PRO also maintains a network of resources for companies which require expertise — either long- or short-term — in finance, tax planning, risk management or expert witnesses, to name a few. The company also provides employee leasing, from clerical staff to chief executive officers.

PRO is located in the Hampton Square Building, 22811 Greater Mack Ave., Suite 208 in St. Clair Shores. The phone number is 776-0560.

roads leading out like spokes. "As we walked back to the square we saw that every one of the spokes had at least 10 tanks or armored cars, and crowds were forming in the square at the head of each spoke. Some people were rolling empty buses in front of the spokes to prevent the tanks from entering the square," Dr. Rice said.

The Rices didn't know what was going on, but there was no sign of violence, so they wandered around taking pictures, Dr. Rice said.

"People were going up to the armored trucks and talking to the soldiers inside," Dr. Rice said. "It looked like people were asking the soldiers what they were doing, and the soldiers just shrugged their shoulders, as if to say, 'I don't know what's going on.'"

The Rices went back to their hotel room to wait for the Russian doctor, but when he didn't show up by 2:30 p.m., they went back outside. The crowd had grown considerably, and people were standing on crates in front of the Russian Federation Building — Boris Yeltsin's headquarters — yelling through megaphones, trying to stir up the crowd.

"We weren't really frightened, but confused," Ginnie Rice said. "A man told us that Gorbachev was no more. We kind of got the impression that Gorbachev was dead."

She said that she and her husband stopped talking in public, because they didn't know if the crowd was anti-American.

"We thought that they might

The night before the coup started, the Rices had dinner at the Moscow home of Dr. and Mrs. Wasy! Antoniv. In the center. From the left, are the Rices' interpreter, Helen Ilina, Mrs. Rice, the Antonivs, and their friend, a soldier in the Soviet army. He was called to serve the next day.

hate us because President Bush wouldn't give them aid. And then as we were walking back to our hotel, these two young Russian men were behind us and I heard one of them say 'Americans,'" Ginnie Rice said.

"I turned to look at them and they smiled and said, 'We love Americans.'"

In the hotel, they called the U.S. Embassy.

"The first time we called, they said that they had heard there had been a coup, but that everything outside of the square was business as usual, and that we should do whatever it was we had planned to do," Dr. Rice said.

But the Rices remained in their hotel. "We were afraid that the soldiers might start shooting into the crowd, and we didn't want to be in it if they did," Ginnie Rice said.

When the Rices got through to the embassy again about 5:30 p.m., the embassy agreed that it was a good idea for the Rices to stay inside the hotel.

The Rices met other Americans in the lobby of the hotel, and they shared information with each other. Someone had heard that the ring road surrounding their hotel and Revolutionary Square was blocked off, making it impossible to get to the U.S. Embassy, which was on the other side of the road. That's why the Russian doctor never arrived at the hotel to take the Rices on the hospital tour.

At 7 p.m., Ginnie Rice was able to phone a friend in Grosse Pointe Shores. The friend was watching CNN, and told her that a coup had taken place, that Gorbachev was reportedly ill, and that the new leaders would be on Russian television at 9 p.m.

"We turned on the television and saw the new leaders, but we couldn't understand what was being said because it was all in Russian," Ginnie Rice said.

The Rices didn't know if the airport would be open the next day, or if their flight would leave as scheduled, or even if they'd be able to get a car to take them there because they couldn't get through by phone to the airport.

The Russian doctor was able to call them that night and said that he would come to pick them up. If the ring road was still closed, he promised, he would park as close as he could, walk to their hotel, and then carry their bags back to the car.

"We told him that it was very nice of him, but that we would order a car through the front desk. You see, we didn't know what would happen to him if he was caught taking Americans to the airport," Dr.

Rice said.

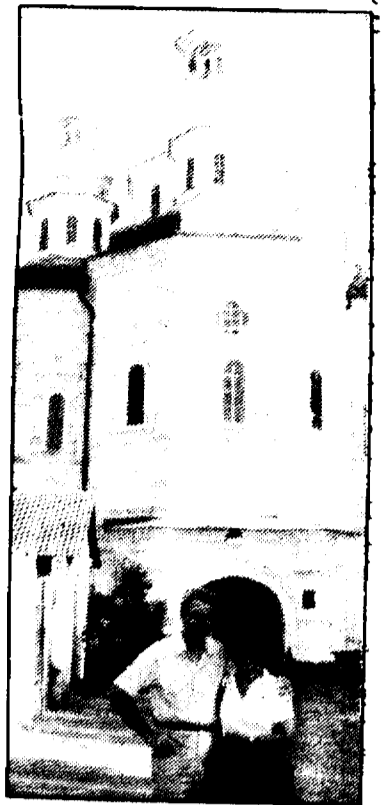

In the morning, they called the U.S. Embassy and were told that nothing was flying. The Rices were worried that the cab they had ordered would not be able to reach the hotel, so they made arrangements for a hotel employee to drive them to the airport.

As they were preparing to leave, the driver of the car they had ordered showed up. He said that he had been working all night, that the airport was open and that everything was fine outside of the desolate, tank-filled Revolutionary Square.

The Rices made their 10 a.m. flight, and when the plane landed in Helsinki, Finland, "everyone on the plane applauded," Dr. Rice said. "We were just so happy to be in a free country."

In light of the way things turned out, with the failure of the coup and the massive reforms going on in what was once the Soviet Union, Dr. Rice said he wishes they had stayed longer.

"But at the time," he said, "we didn't know what was going to happen, and we just wanted out."

Health care, Soviet style, lacks finer things — basics, too

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

When ear surgeon Dr. William J. Rice and his wife Ginnie, an associate professor in the Wayne State University College of Nursing, visited the Soviet Union last month, they said they found warm, friendly people and a medical system very different from our own.

Dr. Rice taught a five-day class on ear surgery at the Institute of Otolaryngology in Kiev and his wife gave a lecture to the hospital's nursing staff at the request of Dr. Rice's colleague, Dr. Paul Dzul of Grosse Pointe Shores, who is from the Ukraine.

The institute is a 250-bed hospital for patients suffering from ear, nose and throat ailments. It's the only hospital of its kind in the Ukraine, so when patients come to the hospital, they usually bring their families, which stay in a hotel adjacent to the hospital, Dr. Rice said.

A family tends to its patient like nurses or nurses aids would do in the United States, Ginnie Rice said.

"The hospital doesn't have a central kitchen, so the family is expected to prepare the patient's food and then bring it to him in the hospital," she said.

The hospital has trouble getting the most basic supplies, including rubber gloves and syringes. And once ordered, electrical equipment can take years to arrive, Dr. Rice said.

"They lack a lot of the finer things that we have, and the more basic things, too, that we take for granted," he said. "But they are familiar with our equipment and the latest techniques, because they read our medical journals . . . but they do have some nice things. They have beautiful microscopes, and with what they have, they do well."

The hospital now has two electronic-driven microscopic drills, which were donated by St. John Hospital in Detroit. Other medical supplies were donated by St. John, Cottage Hospital and Dr. Dzul, and were delivered in two large cases by the Rices.

The drills will replace a hammer and chisel method that was used for ear surgery, Dr. Rice said.

One of the things that surprised Dr. Rice was the way patients at the Institute are prepared for surgery.

In the United States, when it's time to perform surgery on a patient, the patient is taken from his bed, placed on a gurney, strapped in so he won't fall out, and then wheeled to the operating room, where he is lifted off the gurney and placed on the operating table. At the Institute of Otolaryngology, patients waited outside the operating room. When it was their turn, they'd walk into the operating room and hop up on the table, Dr. Rice said.

And two operations often would be performed in the Institute's operating room at the same time. One nurse would assist both operations, and had to make sure she kept the instruments for each operation separate, he said.

"Here, we only perform one operation in an operating room at a time, to guard against infection," Dr. Rice said. "We even have special ventilation systems so that the air from one operating room doesn't mix with the air in another."

Doctors in the Ukraine are poorly paid, compared to their American counterparts, Dr. Rice said, but they receive certain perks. For example, they are allowed the use of a car, he said.

And there is one final difference that the Rices noted. The institute was required to have one thing that American hospitals lack, Dr. Rice said: a portrait of Lenin in the hospital director's office.

Dr. Rice wanted to take a photo of Dr. Demetri Zabolotny, professor and director of the institute, under the picture of Lenin.

"He really didn't want to. He said it (the picture) was something he had to have in his office, but he finally agreed to it," Dr. Rice said. "I'll bet you anything that that picture isn't up there anymore (following last month's revolution in the Soviet Union, which took place less than a week after the Rices' visit to the institute).

Dr. Rice will get a chance in October to find out what happened to Lenin's portrait, when Dr. Zabolotny visits the United States to tour local hospitals.

Want to join? Here are some clubs, auxiliaries, charity organizations, volunteer groups to consider

APPOINTMENTS

By Margie Heins Smith
Feature Editor

Do you want to join a club? Donate some time and talent to a charity? Volunteer for a cause? Pursue a hobby? Join a support group?

September is prime time for expanding one's horizons and joining new groups. We asked local non-profit organizations and special interest clubs to tell us what they're all about — what they do; what kind of members they're seeking; when they meet; how much dues and expenses are; what's expected from members.

Here are the answers we got. For information about organizations that give members a chance to sing or dance or act — see page 8B.

The Alliance for the Mentally Ill-Eastside is a support group, an educational and advocacy organization for those who want to help friends or relatives who have chronic mental illnesses.

Meetings are at the Henry Ford Continuing Care Center in Harper Woods and most include a speaker or an educational program. There are no dues.

For information, call Frances at 839-9826, or Carol at 881-5429.

The American Business Women's Association's Silver Oaks charter chapter in Warren is a non-profit organization whose primary goal is to raise money for scholarships. It also serves as a motivational group geared to enhance members' business, educational and personal skills. The ABWA holds monthly meetings featuring guest speakers from the fields of health care, finance and personal growth and development. Fundraisers include fashion shows, raffles and the sale of Christmas wrapping paper.

Members are women and men who are employed full-time. Meetings are the second Tuesday of the month at different restaurants in the east side/Macomb area. National dues are $45 initially, then $20 each year. Local chapter dues are $18 a year.

For information, call Gail D. Kosnik at 755-5333.

The Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center

raises money for the center with projects such as an annual art fair (Art on the Pointe), a golf benefit, a preview party before the North American International Auto Show and tennis tournaments. The NEGC is a community mental health agency serving northeastern Wayne county. It assists children and adults in the prevention of serious mental and emotional illness by providing counseling for such problems as child and spouse abuse, coping with death and divorce, controlling aggressive behavior and preventing suicide.

The group is looking for creative, energetic volunteers of any age. Meetings usually take place in Grosse Pointe or on the east side.

Dues are $25 annually.

For more information, call Robbie LeRoy at 882-6210.

The Business and Professional Post No.

372 of the American Legion is a service organization for veterans of United States military service. It supports veterans' hospitals, school anti-drug programs, and activities for impoverished elderly veterans and inner city citizens. Some of the group's activities include a Mess Night patterned after the British regimental tradition and a dinner dance and a golf outing in Canada.

Members are veterans with professional and business backgrounds whose honorable military service occurred during one of the following periods: December 1941-December 1946; June 1950-January 1955; and December 1961-May 1975. The dates were set by Congress and cannot be waived.

Members must be over age 33. Meetings are held at the University Club of Detroit (near the Renaissance Center) on the fourth Thursday of each month. Members spend about four hours a month on club activities and there are dues and expenses.

For information, call Joe Mihalak, senior vice commander, at 882-9706.

is a non-profit 290-bed hospital which fulfills the physical and emotional needs of sick and injured children of all income levels.

Volunteers must be 15 or older and should be dependable, have good communication skills, emotional maturity, be able to follow instructions and enjoy children. Volunteer opportunities include clerical duties as well as patient care.

Volunteers typically work for four hours once a week and should be willing to commit themselves for at least three months. Expenses range between $5 and $15 for a uniform jacket.

Prospective volunteers must submit an application and be interviewed. One-day training and orientation sessions are scheduled several times a year. For information, call the volunteer office at 745-5326.

The Detroit Alumnae Panhellenic Association

is a non-profit fraternal organization which stands for good scholarship, good health and service to the community. Fundraisers support its scholarship fund.

The organization is particularly looking for members from the following sororities: Alpha Epsilon Phi, Alpha Phi, Alpha Sigma Alpha, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Phi Epsilon, Kappa Alpha Theta, Phi Mu, Sigma Delta Tau and Theta Phi Alpha.

The group meets six times a year at Barnes school and in the Dearborn Centennial Library and holds an annual spring luncheon. Dues are $25 for each member group.

For information, call Kim Davids, president, at 885-3895.

The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores

is a non-profit service club which sponsors projects for the prevention of child abuse and crime. Its major fundraiser is an annual Bowl-A-Thon held in the spring.

The Grosse Pointe Artists Association will hold its 32nd annual fall art festival on Saturday, Sept. 14, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the grounds of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore.

More than 100 artists and craftsmen will exhibit their work in watercolor and oil, jewelry, leather, stained glass, sculpture, pottery, fiber, drawing and more.

The League of Women Voters will hold its annual mum sale in conjunction with the festival. Mum plants are $6 and will be available in salmon, pink, yellow and bronze. Girl Scouts will operate wagons (Mum-mobiles) to deliver plants to purchasers' cars and Cub Scouts will help set up the plant booths. LWV members Joanne Watko and Kathleen Walters are co-chairmen of the sale.

torial and nature categories. Mini-programs on some technique in photography usually precede each competition.

The last meeting of the month is program night and may include a guest expert, a workshop or slide program. Light refreshments are served after this meeting.

Several Saturday field trips are planned each year with members bringing a brown bag lunch or gathering at some convenient restaurant. The club year ends with a banquet in June when members receive awards for outstanding work.

Potential members and other visitors are invited to meetings. However, only members may take part in the bi-monthly competitions to have their work critiqued.

Walk-A-Thon will raise money for local SIDS Foundation

The local chapter of the national Sudden Infant Death Foundation will hold a Walk-A-Thon on Saturday, Sept. 21, in Grosse Pointe.

SIDS (sometimes called crib death) kills more than 7,000 babies every year and is the leading cause of death for babies one week to one year old. The national SIDS Foundation is a non-profit voluntary health organization which provides emotional support to parents and families that experience a SIDS death, educates the public and professionals about SIDS and sponsors medical research on the causes of SIDS.

Laura L. Reno of Grosse Pointe Woods is president of the southeastern Michigan chapter of the SIDS Foundation. She said the organizers of the Walk-A-Thon hope to raise $10,000 in this, the third year of the fundraiser.

The five-mile walk begins at 11 a.m. at St. Paul Catholic Church and participants are asked to collect pledges for the miles they walk.

Prizes and drawings will add interest to the event. Prizes include a bicycle, a VCR, gift certificates, a Walkman and more. Corporate sponsors include Domino's Pizza, Pepsi-Cola Corp., Steiners Silk Screen & Printing, J. Miller & Associates, Amazing Deals, Colonial Central Savings Bank and James R. Fikany Real Estate Co.

For information or to register, call Reno at 884-4742, or Mark Titus at 790-2602. Or just show up.

Oops: The Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Architects seventh annual tour will be held on Sunday, Sept. 15, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. — NOT on the date published here last week. For more information, call 965-4104.

Antique show: The invitations are in the mail for the 1991 University Liggett School Antiques Show preview party, set for Thursday, Oct. 10, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at ULS Middle School, 850 Briarcliff, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Dozens of volunteers gathered in August at the home of Cynthia Ford to address more than 6,000 invites to the event. Preview party guests will get a chance to browse and buy antiques from 40 dealers from around the country.

Tickets to the preview party are $40, $100 and $200 and must be reserved in advance. Tickets to the Antiques Show are $5 a person; $4 in advance.

The Antiques Show will be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 11, 12 and 13 at ULS Middle School. Hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. For more information or for tickets, call ULS at 884-4444.

Holiday Spree: Members of the Fontbonne Auxiliary of St. John Hospital and Medical Center are finalizing plans for the third annual Holiday Spree to be held on Sunday, Nov. 10, from 5 to 9 p.m., at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

Silent and live auctions will give shoppers a jump start on holiday preparations while they enjoy informal modeling of fashions, furs and jewelry.

Proceeds go to St. John Hospital.

The Junior League of Detroit is planning its fourth annual Holiday Preview Beneficent party in cooperation with Jacobson's in Grosse Pointe.

The fundraiser is planned for Wednesday, Nov. 13, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at Jacobson's in the Village. Proceeds will go to the Grateful Home Dreamweavers P.O.W.E.R. project to address the critical needs of chemically dependent women and their children in the city of Detroit.

Carmen Harlan, WDIV-TV anchorwoman, will serve as honorary chairman for the event, and nearly 30 local restaurants will provide samples of their special dishes.

Reservations may be made by sending a check for $20 to the Junior League of Detroit, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236.

For more information, call the JLD office, 881-0040.

Grosse Pointer will be inducted to Michigan Women's Hall of Fame

Gladys Beckwith, president of the Michigan Women's Studies Association and director of the Michigan Women's Historical Center and Hall of Fame, recently announced the 1991 honorees selected for induction into the Women's Hall of Fame in Lansing.

Among those honored are Grosse Pointer Dorothy Com-

stock Riley, the first woman to serve on the Michigan Court of Appeals. She was also the first woman appointed to the Michigan Supreme Court, but was removed by the four justices who concluded her appointment exceeded the outgoing governor's authority. In 1984, Riley was returned to the Supreme Court by voters by a margin of 500,000 over one of the four justices who had voted to oust her.

The eighth annual award dinner will be held on Saturday, Oct. 26, at the Radisson Hotel Lansing. A reception precedes the dinner.

Tickets for the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame awards dinner are $65 each; the reception only is $75. The reception begins at 6 p.m.

Information on the honorees, the awards presentations and tickets is available by calling 517-484-1880 during regular business hours.

The Michigan Women's Historical Center and Hall of Fame was founded by the Michigan Women's Studies Association to address the omissions in history of women's accomplishments. The center is located at 213 W. Main Street, in Lansing. Tours are available.

The Pastor's Corner

The best is yet to come

By Rev. Edward A. M. Cobden Jr.
Christ Church Grosse Pointe

I've been thinking about growing older. Why? Because I've been growing older and hope to continue to do so. Even better. Because people I care about are growing older and have the same hope, and I want to help them. Because America is experiencing an Age wave, according to Ken Dychtewald in his book "Age Wave." Consider these facts:

- Senior citizens (people over 65) represent 12 percent of our population. By the year 2020, that figure is expected to rise to nearly 25 percent.
- Two thirds of all people who have lived past the age of 65 in the history of the world are alive today.
- In July 1983, for the first time in U.S. history, the number of Americans over age 65 surpassed the number of teenagers.
- More than 40 percent of the population over age 65 are 75 years or older. The over-85 age group is the fastest growing population segment in the country.
- The number of Americans over 100 years old doubled in the 1980s to about 45,000.

Because the way we think about our aging affects the way we age. Because our faith perspective can shape our attitudes and expectations. Our religious resources can play a vital part, for example, in the principal work of aging, which is integration. Pulling together, reconciling and resolving the manifold strands of our life. Think about your aging. If you would like to reflect on this with me and some others, I invite you to a six-week course I will be leading, "The Best is Yet to Come." It will be held each Monday from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. To enroll, call 885-4841.

Assistance League names scholarship winners

For the second consecutive year, the Bon Secours Assistance League has awarded nursing scholarships to Bon Secours employees. The awards were presented recently at a luncheon at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Selected as this year's recipients of the $850 scholarships were: Phyllis Andras, L.P.N., who is pursuing a B.S.N. at Madonna University; Patricia Nicholson, L.P.N. and Joyce Russell, L.P.N., who are both enrolled in associate's degree programs at Macomb Community College.

Three scholarships were awarded from a field of 11 applicants. To be eligible, applicants must be currently enrolled in an accredited R.N. program, maintain a grade point average of 3.0, be a current employee of Bon Secours Hospital and reflect the values of the Sisters of Bon Secours: compassion, growth, innovation, integrity, justice, equality, respect and stewardship.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

"Let a human being throw the energy's of his soul into creating something and let the instinct of his workmanship take care of the result"...Walter Lippman.

To be ingenious at the table yet not distort one's bidding form or lose the ability to correctly function within a given system is difficult and requires exceptional judgement and technique.

Most of our American experts, once trumps have been agreed upon, tend to tell their partner thru the use of cue bids their controls. This is the common method for the advance to game and beyond. Years ago two of Frances' finest, Réne Bacherich and Claude Delmouly developed a system of relay bids which tended to ask for (not Tell) more information about a given suit or hand until sufficient information had been accumulated to fix the final contract. In recent years, three of our most inventive younger experts, Matt Granovetter, Ron Rubin and Michael Becker have been most successful with relay asking bids. The English Acol system utilizes long suit trials or inquiries which are also a form of asking bids. In its simplest context telling bids say to partner this is what I've got. Conversely asking bids say can you help me in this suit or can you tell me more about your thirteen cards. Obviously telling bids are much more in vogue in America, but I am slowly becoming an advocate of asking bids for if employed with a practiced partner they have substantial value.

Larry Coggan, one of our more imaginative players puts ingenuity and exactness to work in his bidding formula and this has given him some remarkable results. His favorite partner, Ray Feldman who has appeared in this column was on sabbatical this past July and that gave me the chance and challenge to get in a couple of pleasurable games with Larry. Both Larry and Ray are exciting players whose bidding agenda comes from the pages of the Italian Blue Teams' manuscript and their style is daring and thought provoking. Larry is a natural in the performance of such stylized conventions and his conception and excellence are as pure as the driven snow.

We agreed to use asking bids after suit agreement had been reached and today's hand is an extraordinary example of such art. It also exhibits the tremendous confidence one partner must have for the other for a lack of such will totally destroy any hope of success.

Five hearts asked partner if he could help in that suit and if so bid the spade slam. Even though Larry was a dead minimum he could and did. The fact that South hadn't asked about clubs or diamonds told Larry that both suits were controlled by his partner and he was confident about the slams outcome when he bid it.

Actually the play for twelve tricks required the club honors divided or with East. Win the diamond lead. Ruff a spade. Ruff a diamond. Ruff a spade. Ruff a diamond. Ruff a spade and lead a high trump staying in dummy. Now the club jack from dummy and letting it ride. West wins but the defense is ended as declarer ruffs in dummy and leads another club.

For those who argue, "but partner I only had four H.C.P. or how could we make a slam with may hand unless you open the bidding with a strong two club bid?" This is proof, a Rembrandt example that you can win with only twenty-two H.C.P. and shape.

I am also sure that a well experienced North/South could find the slam with a series of cue bids, but not one of the other seventeen tables in our game that day did!

No guts, no glory — Performing organizations want you

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Does someone like the way you sing in the shower? Have you ever watched a play and thought, "I could do that?"

Do you like to paint but have no idea if you're any good?

Do you wonder what the glow of the limelight feels like?

Then perhaps you're a frustrated performer. But there's no reason to sit at home and keep your light under that proverbial bushel. Let it shine.

A lot of organizations need talented people — and that doesn't just mean actors or singers.

The following groups may be just what you need to break out and strut your stuff.

Grosse Pointe Artists Association is a non-profit organization for persons interested in the visual arts.

The group meets monthly at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and is looking for any Grosse Pointe resident interested in the fine arts — artists or non-artists. Dues are $20 for active members and $10 for associate members. Two fundraising art fairs are held each year along with juried exhibits and awards.

For more information, call Mickey Allardice, 886-8719, or Barbara Linthorst-Homan, 881-9085.

The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America (SPEBSQSA) has a history as long as its name. Founded in the early 1900s, the group has 40,000 members across the country and 18 chapters in Michigan including the 140-member Grosse Pointe Lakeshore Chorus.

Meetings are at 8 p.m. Tuesday evenings at the Neighborhood Club. Dues are $50. Members must enjoy singing, but don't necessarily need to be able to read music.

The group presents several concerts a year, and performs for charity events, in nursing homes and has sung the national anthem at Tigers and Pistons games.

For more information, call Joe Bichler at 884-6838.

functions including funerals, charity functions and other community events.

A vocal audition is required, but members don't need to read music. The group is currently restructuring the dues fee, and doesn't know what this year's figure will be.

Meetings are 7:30 p.m. every Monday evening at St. Judes at Seven Mile and Kelly.

For more information, call Bob Plociniak at 757-8600.

The Chamber Music Players of Grosse Pointe is a non-profit organization designed to bring together people who are yearly concerts are held at Lakewiew High School.

Volunteers are also needed to help run the organization which has a 25-member board.

For more information, call 776-1012.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra is nearing its 40th year of providing an outlet for community musicians of better-than-average caliber. The orchestra is conducted by Felix Resnick.

Players — who range in age from high school on up — are selected by an audition process and rehearse at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesdays at Parcels Middle School.

There are no dues, but patrons are encouraged to help finance the four concerts each year.

For more information, call Gerald Stoetzer at 881-7348.

The Grosse Pointe Community Band is an activity offered by Grosse Pointe Community Education and is open to musicians of high school age and up. Ralph Miller is the conductor.

All instruments — and talent levels — are welcome. The $15 fee covers music and other costs. Rehearsals are Tuesday evenings at Grosse Pointe South High School. One concert will be presented; the date will be announced.

For more information, call 343-2178.

The Greasepaint Players Theater Troupe was founded in 1975 and performs three shows yearly at Grosse Pointe South High School.

This year's bill consists of Agatha Christie's "The Unexpected Guest," Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" and an evening of melodramas, "Curse You, Jack Dalton" and "Virtue Is Its Own Reward." The melodramas are performed at the VFW Laethem Post on Eight Mile between Kelly and Gratiot, but the group is looking for a new venue. The group also does ben-always looking for new people to add to its 400-member group.

This year's slate of five shows consists of "Into the Woods," "Noises Off," "Steel Magnolias," "Ah, Wilderness" and "Guys and Dolls."

All shows run for two weeks at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and are cast from open auditions.

Dues are $20 and anyone 18 or older who's interested in theater — performers, costumers, backstage people and even ushers — can join. Meetings are the second Tuesday of each month in the Crystal Ballroom at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Each meeting concludes efit performances for children's homes and nursing homes.

The 45-member group meets every other month at various places and holds open auditions before each show. "The Unexpected Guest" has already been cast.

Greasepaint Players Bernie Rehse, P.J. Jenkinson and Larry Rink in last year's "Deadwood Dick."

The Grosse Pointe Community Chorus is not quite as old, but it's a very established group which puts on two concerts a year, one in December and one in the spring. The repertoire consists of classical and popular music and is chosen by the chorus' conductor Robert Wolf.

There are no auditions, and singers don't necessarily need to read music.

Dues are $15. Rehearsals are at 7:45 p.m. every Tuesday at Grosse Pointe North's choral rooms.

For more information, call Wolf at 278-4654.

The Judelaires is a show chorus which has been around for 38 years. Its main show is in the spring every year, but members perform at various interested in chamber music.

Chamber musicians and chamber music lovers of all ages can join by paying the $15 dues (additional family members can join for $8). Eight Sunday afternoon concerts are performed in the Crystal Ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

For more information, call Don Littlefield at 881-1042.

The Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra begins its 30th year of providing the residents of southeast Macomb County with live performances of orchestral music, and developing cultural awareness.

Musicians are chosen through an audition and interview process and are paid. The approximately five rehearsals required for each of the four Grosse Pointe Theatre's production of "Chicago" starred Nick Dara, Terri Turpin-Amato and Norm Colborne.

In addition to actors, the group needs set, builders and is looking for a garage, to, store flats, props and furniture. Also needed are advertisers for the programs and members for backstage committees.

For more information, call 774-0309.

Grosse Pointe Theatre has been around for 43 years and is with a short performance by group members.

For more information, call 886-8901.

Don't forget, there's also church choirs you can join, some of which pay. Pick up a church bulletin for more information.

Comedy fans get stood up by a bizarre 'Mystery Date'

By Chris Lathrop
Special Writer

If you're expecting "Mystery Date" to be a whimsical or lighthearted trip to the movies, don't. It's not.

The storyline sounds innocent enough — a teenager goes after a fabulous babe, trashing his parents' house and raising the ire of a band of thugs in the process.

Sounds like "Risky Business." That was fun, wasn't it?

Yes, it was. And so is "Mystery Date," for the first 20 minutes. After that, a complicated subplot surfaces, bringing some serious violence and intrigue with it.

It's a surprising twist, and if you like surprises, you might enjoy "Mystery Date." Then again, if you don't, you'll probably hate it.

It starts when Tom (Ethan Hawke) becomes infatuated with a beautiful blonde (Teri Polo) who lives down the block. Tom doesn't have the guts to call her, so his smooth-talking brother Craig (Brian McNamara) comes to the rescue. Craig sets them up on a blind date and gives Tom unlimited use of his I.D., credit cards and wardrobe. Tom even makes off with Craig's mint-condition DeSoto with the push-button transmission. So far, a pretty good set up.

Too bad Craig turns out to be a sociopathic criminal. And since Tom happens to be driving Craig's car, wearing Craig's clothes and flashing Craig's Visa all over town, everyone thinks he's Craig.

This includes the Chinese mafia and a group of cops on the take. Both are after an incriminating tape that's in the glove compartment of Craig's car — which puts Tom in a peck of trouble. It's not easy to impress your dream girl when a bunch of guys with guns are trying to rub you out.

The potential for comedy is definitely present here, but director Jonathan Wacks and writers Parker Bennett and Terry Runte try to be Alfred Hitchcock by turning this budding comedy into a thriller.

The funny stuff is kept to a minimum while the tension, blood and suspenseful soundtrack are pushed to their limits. What happened to the laugh riot that's supposed to go along with a story about a hormonal teenager on a blind date?

A few humorous scenes are thrown in to lighten things up a bit, but they are not enough to turn "Mystery Date" into the joke-fest a lot of people, especially those who fell for the film's trailer and advertising campaign, thought it would be.

Of course, nothing short of a complete rewrite of the script can plug up the gaping holes in the plot, which are too numerous to mention.

Okay, let's mention two. Why is a blonde goddess so lonely and desperate that she's willing to go out with a complete stranger? And why doesn't she run screaming into the night when she finds out that this stranger is marked for death? Just wondering.

Despite all this, "Mystery Date" has a certain appeal. The bad guy (superbly played by B.D. Wong) is every bit as snide as Steven Seagal, and he's got a cooler ponytail.

But even better is the way "Mystery Date" gives you more than you bargain for, which is a rare feat for a commercial release these days. You go in expecting a shallow, trite comedy and you leave having seen something akin to a James Bond flick.

Whether or not this is a pleasant surprise depends on you, the viewer. If your heart is set on seeing a shallow, trite comedy, try "Life Stinks." If not, you just might like "Mystery Date."

'Harley and Marlie' bodes ill for the scruffy look

By Chris Lathrop
Special Writer

Most guys probably won't admit it, but there's something strangely reassuring about the fact that a lot of women go gaga over Mickey Rourke and Don Johnson.

Face it — they're sexy because they're scruffy. Thanks to them, it's not always a bad thing for a guy to go out without shaving, washing his hair or putting on a pair of socks.

Of course, it helps to have Rourke and Johnson in the public eye to reinforce this fashionable filth. It helps if they're starring in a provocative movie that a lot of people will want to see.

Sorry, guys. "Harley Davidson and the Marlboro Man" is no help at all. No one in his or her right mind — unfortunate movie critics excepted — would willingly pay to see this pointless, boring thing.

What's it about, you ask? Well, it seems the owner of the bar where Harley (Rourke) and Marlie (Johnson) used to hang out needs a cool $2.5 million to keep the place open. So naturally the world's cutest pair of scumbags take it upon themselves to rustle up the cash (you keep waiting for one of them to say "we're putting the band back together" a la Jake and Elwood Blues).

With help from some of their fellow bar patrons, Harley and Marlie knock over an armored truck in broad daylight and shoot it out with four uzi-toting killers with Pat Riley hairdos and bullet-proof leather overcoats. And they manage to do this without attracting the cops.

Alas, even pros slip up once in a while. What the boys thought was cash turns out to be a shipment of a powerful drug called crystal dream. Which means Harley and Marlie have much more to worry about than a bunch of cops; they've incurred the wrath of a drug lord and his sharp-dressed goon squad who want their booty back.

What we have here is another lame action flick/buddy movie for your viewing displeasure. Now that we've established that the plot stinks, perhaps Rourke and Johnson can stir up some decent action, or at least some hot sex to heat up the screen and get those hormones pumping.

No such luck. Unless you still think that the constant racket of automatic weapons and stunt men falling through windows and onto cars is innovative and exciting, there's nothing in this movie that's good enough to keep you from wishing you'd gone to see Jean-Claude Van Damme instead.

There's even less action in the bedroom, which is strange because it seems like Rourke and Johnson have it written into their contracts that there has to be at least one no-holds-barred love scene in every movie they make. There's none of that in "Harley and Marlie."

Come on, guys. The movie's rated "R" so why not take advantage of it? At least there would have been something to watch. Marlie's lackluster affair with a motorcycle cop named Virginia Slim (yep, that's her name; pretty clever, huh?) is about as racy as a Disney movie.

I think it's written somewhere that any movie that rolls its opening credits with Bon Jovi's "Wanted Dead or Alive" playing in the background is destined to be rotten. "Harley and Marlie" proves it. It's not even worth the price of a ticket just to catch a 90-minute cat nap in an air conditioned theater.

So guys, you'd better think about shaving the face, washing that hair and wearing those socks. It might be a while before the scruffy look comes back into fashion.

The French collection, and how it wound up in Texas

Confessions of a Literary Archaeologist

By Carlton Lake

New Directions. 190 pages. $21.95

Carlton Lake, the author of an unusual memoir, is now the executive curator of the Humanities Research Center at the University of Texas at Austin, which has a world renowned collection of modern French literary research materials. Lake began this fabulous assemblage of books, letters, memorabilia, and incunabula concerning the great French writers and artists of the late 19th century and throughout the 20th century as a private enterprise. However, the collection grew by such leaps and bounds that he was finally forced to find a suitable location in which to house all his treasures together.

His apartment in Paris was bulging and some of the more precious items were stored in a Place Vendome bank vault, his house in Massachusetts was also filled with papers and books, and trunkloads of the overflow were stored in a Boston bank vault. Rejecting the idea of an auction or sale of his incomparable collection, Lake explained: "Because my own collecting had increasingly become involved with research in literature and the arts and had resulted in the accumulation of great quantities of unpublished correspondence and other manuscript material, I had a different point of view. I wanted my collections to be kept together in a place where they could be used by other writers and researchers whose interests corresponded to my own."

Fortuitously, mutual friends brought together Lake and Harry Ransom, the far-sighted chancellor of the University of Texas, who formulated a congenial arrangement. Lake's collection found its permanent home, and Ransom offered him the lifetime job as curator of his own collections — an ideal solution as Lake acknowledged. "Private collecting has always seemed to me one of the more pardonable forms of self-indulgence, he said. "Collecting for the expanding needs of a great research library, however, needs no apology: along with the usual satisfactions inherent in collecting, it brings a sense of helping to push back the frontiers of knowledge and — just possibly — the chance to light a candle of understanding...which shall not be put out." Then he ends his memoir thus: "Today, the Texas French collections are even better known in France than they are in Texas. Does that beat collecting for oneself? You bet it does."

"Confessions of a Literary Archaeologist" tells how the author became addicted to books: "In my own case, the affliction took root early, triggered by two practices: 1) reading, non-stop, everything I could lay my hands on at home — 'Don Quixote' and 'The Pilgrim's Progress,' the complete works of Shakespeare, Dickens, and Balzac and 2) browsing in secondhand bookstores and when I ran out of those, in plain old secondhand stores that had a few shelves filled with books that sold for 10 or 15 cents apiece." He attended Boston University, and, "abetted by an indulgent grandmother," he was able to gratify his growing passion for French poets. After receiving his degree in romance languages and literature, Lake immediately took off for Paris where he plunged headlong into the exciting world of Left Bank bookshops where he enthusiastically uncovered one dusty manuscript after another.

His first love was Charles Baudelaire, who ignited his interest in French writers. From the poet of "Les Fleurs du mal," Lake sought out materials on Paul Eluard, Henri-Pierre Roche, Arthur Rimbaud, Guillaume Apollinaire, Celine, Jean Cocteau, Paul Valery, and others. From these writers, Lake was attracted to fine bindings and the illustrated work of Toulouse-Lautrec, Matisse, Picasso and Chagall. Musicians such as Ravel, Debussy and Berlioz also attracted Lake's acquisitive instincts: he gathered up a large number of their original musical scores with their own notations upon them.

The more Lake searched, the wider he tossed out his net to capture precious material. As a result of his discrimination and tireless hunting, his collection is unparalleled. Throughout it all, his sense of humor remained very much in the forefront: he loved to wander around a "shop a while, filling my lungs with that musty fragrance which is the bibliophile's catnip." According to Webster's Dictionary, an archaeologist is one who makes a scientific study of the life and culture of ancient peoples, as by excavation of ancient cities, relics, artifacts, etc. By this definition, Carlton Lake is an archaeologist of a kind by appreciatively unearthing, studying and preserving the valuable manuscripts and other such artifacts connected with the French cultural scene of the recent past.

Get that book published

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association will sponsor a talk by Sherry A. Wells, lawyer, author and self-publisher of "Michigan Law for Everyone" and "founding mother" of the Michigan Publishers Association.

She will discuss "Getting Your Book Published." The session runs from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 21, at the War Memorial. To register, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Literary agent speaks on publishing

Will having an agent speed the selling of a manuscript? Does it mean a better contract, larger advance and bigger royalty share? What do editors really look for in a manuscript? Do manuscripts handled by agents receive faster review by an editor?

These questions and many more will be answered by Nancy Yost, a literary agent with Lowenstein Associates Inc. Yost is a former Avon Books editor.

Know About Agents and Editors" will be presented by the Greater Detroit Chapter of Romance Writers of America (GDRWA) on Saturday, Oct. 12, at Birmingham's Baldwin Library, 300 W. Merrill, from noon to 4 p.m.

There will be a $20 fee for non-members. Advance registration should include name, complete address and phone number. Make checks payable to GDRWA and mail to: GDRWA Autumn Workshop, P.O. Box 521, Novi MI 48376.

LCE opens season with 'A String Serenade'

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble will present a "String Serenade" on Sunday, Sept. 22, at 7 p.m. in the ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Performing will be Geoffrey Applegate (violin), James Van Valkenburg (viola), Marcy Chanteaux (cello), and Fedora Horowitz (piano). The program will consist of the Piano Quartet in A, Op. 30, by Chausson; the Piano Trio 1, Op. 35, by Turina; the Handel/Halvorsen Passacaglia for Violin and Viola; and the Elegie for Viola and Piano by Elliott Carter.

Applegate, principal second violinist for the Detroit Symphony since 1986, has appeared frequently as soloist with the DSO. He has also appeared with piano trios internationally and as soloist with orchestras in Brazil. He was a featured artist at the 1989 Kapalua Music Festival in Maui, Hawaii.

Van Valkenburg, assistant principal violist of the DSO, toured South America, the Far East and the United States 10 times with the International String Quartet, and participated in the European Chamber Music Festival at Lochenhaus, Austria, in 1989.

Chanteaux, DSO assistant principal cellist, came to Detroit to succeed Mischa Kottler as pianist for the DSO, and four years later joined the cello section of the orchestra. Four years later she was appointed assistant principal cellist. She is a graduate of the Cleveland Institute of Music.

Horowitz, founder and artistic director of the Lyric Chamber Ensemble, received her early training in Romania, and began her performing career in Israel before immigrating to the United States. She served on the faculty of the University of North Carolina before relocating to Detroit in 1973. Horowitz has maintained an active performing career, not only with LCE but as a soloist with community orchestras, at the "Brunch with Bach" series at the DIA, and as an accompanist for visiting artists. She recently accompanied Metropolitan Opera tenor Alan Glassman in concert at the Shaarei Zedek Temple in Southfield.

Tickets for the War Memorial concert are $15 for adults, and $13 for students and seniors. For tickets or information, call the LCE at 357-1111.

Attic brings 'Laughing Wild' this weekend

The Attic Theatre presents "Laughing Wild," an outrageous comedy by Christopher Durang, Sept. 13-15. The production travels to the Attic after a successful two-week run in August at the Performance Network in Ann Arbor.

"Laughing Wild is about a man and woman coping with life in the '90s. The two off-the-wall strangers come together in a number of ways which lead them into a rollercoaster relationship where angry, sexy, terrifying and hilarious experiences are the result.

"Laughing Wild" touches upon some of today's heavier topics — AIDS, the environment, therapy and New Age religions are only a few. Durang's use of standup comedy, however, gives the play its lighter, humorous moments.

Said to be an entertainment poised oddly between Samuel Beckett, Spalding Gray, Monty Python and Saturday Night Live, "Laughing Wild" was first presented at Playwrights' Horizons in New York City in 1987.

role of the Man for this production at the Attic, and the Woman is played by Miriam Yezbick. They are best known for their work with the University of Detroit Theatre Company.

Produced and directed by Annette Madias, "Laughing Wild" performances are Friday, Sept. 13, at 8 p.m.; Saturday, Sept. 14 at 5 and 9 p.m.; and Sunday, Sept. 15 at 7 p.m. Tickets are $13 and $15. To order tickets or for more information, call the Attic Theatre box office 8284.

'Pubs & Clubs' series features Van Dyke place

One of Detroit's best-known restaurants, Van Dyke Place, housed in an elegant French inspired townhouse on Detroit's east side, will be featured in the Detroit Historical Society's "Pubs & Clubs" program on Wednesday, Sept. 25.

The evening will feature both a gourmet dinner and a guided tour.

The building was erected in 1900 for William Muir Finck, a Detroit clothing manufacturer. In its April 1912 issue, The Country magazine described the Finck home:

"Rarely outside of Paris itself does one find a more perfect type of the pure French house than is the residence of Mr. William Muir Finck of Detroit." In 1981, owners Ron Fox and John McCarthy opened the restaurant in the 20-room landmark.

Cost of the evening is $45 for members and $50 for non-members. The evening's program begins at 6:30 p.m. Deadline for reservations is Sept. 9. For further information, please call (313) 833-7934.

French romantic comedy debuts at Detroit Film Theatre Sept 13-15

"Love Without Pity," the prize-winning French romantic comedy from first-time director Eric Rochant, will be shown for one weekend only, Sept. 13-15, at the Detroit Film Theatre (DFT) of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

A freewheeling and slyly comic look at the loves and lives of a group of young people in a very modern Paris, "Love Without Pity" has been awarded the Cesar (French Oscar) for Best First Film, as well as the Critics' Prize for Best First Feature at the Venice Film Festival. New York Magazine's David Denby called it "a small triumph — a melancholy film about romantic individualism that holds its style, and its cool, to the end."

"Love Without Pity" will be presented on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 13 and 14, at 7 and 9:30 p.m., and on Sunday, Sept. 15, at 5 and 7 p.m. in the DIA Auditorium. Tickets are $5 general admission; $4 for students with full-time I.D. and are available in advance at the DIA ticket office, or at the door.

The DFT's Crystal Gallery Cafe is open one hour before each performance for light snacks and beverages. All cafe proceeds benefit DFT programming.

For further information on individual tickets or group rates, to charge tickets by phone or to obtain a season schedule of DFT films, phone 833-2323, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Necessary nuisance

If you have traveled abroad in the past two years, you have probably noticed the major differences in security screening procedures at airports throughout the world. Although they are a nuisance in many ways, the procedures are in place for the protection of all travelers. The additional steps are very expensive for the governments involved as well as for the airlines. Of course, they are also expensive for the traveler, because the costs are included in or added to the ticket prices.

Let's walk through a departure from a foreign airport and assess the differences between current procedures and those in place just a few years ago. Formerly, you or a friend could leave a car unattended at the curb for a few minutes while stevedoring luggage to the check-in counter. No more. The spate of car bombings during the last few years has made an unattended vehicle a serious threat. So, the police will either insist that the car be moved — leaving the luggage on the curb unattended — or they will insist that one person stay with the car.

Next we note that the check-in counter is not the first stop anymore. Far out in front of that counter, there are likely to be a series of podiums, attended by airline or contracted security personnel. They will scan your passport, look over your luggage and tickets and ask some questions about your travel background, the reasons for your trip and about the contents of your luggage.

The various security agencies throughout the world have agreed on a "profile" of people who have the characteristics of terrorists. The questions are to determine if you fit the profile.

You will find the processing through customs, immigration and public health to be more meticulous than in past years, with all these government officials joining the effort to ensure your safety. Then, at the security checkpoint, you will find new and different detection devices that do a better job of signaling masses of metal and other suspicious materials. They also have increased the sensitivity to a higher level, so don't be surprised if you're stopped more often than in the past.

Very probably, you will again be screened by other airline or contract staff before you enter the gate area. At that point, they may again ask a series of questions similar to those asked in the terminal area. They may hand-search your carry-on items and may even do a body search (frisking) before clearing you for boarding the flight.

In areas where security is a more serious threat, they may even take you from the boarding area to another area under the airplane, at which time you will be asked to personally identify your checked luggage. In that way, they are certain that for every bag loaded, there is a related passenger on board. This procedure is sometimes generated by having more total bags on hand than have been recorded at the check-in counter. Most often, this situation is due to a clerical error, but better safe...

These extensive steps are taken in the hope that the traveling public's safety will be ensured. Unfortunately, this not all there is to it. Although all this hassle might be an inconvenience, just remember the reason for it. Each of the people involved in the process is doing everything practical to assure your safety.

Adventure Series begins

The 1991-92 Grosse Pointe Adventure Series at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial will kick off on Thursday, Sept. 19, with a "trip" to Egypt and the Nile. The series comprises nine evenings featuring travelogues narrated by professional filmmakers and dinner with foods from the same region as featured in the film. Dinner is at 6:30 p.m., followed by an 8 p.m. film.

The first evening will take the audience to the magnificent palace of former King Farouk, the Red Sea, the Nile Delta, Cairo, the Great Pyramids, the Valley of the Kings and Queens, and the Temple of Rameses II and his Queen Nefertiti. Dinner that night includes marinated beef shish kebab, boiled rice, honeyed carrots, white bean salad and cucumbers in feta cheese sauce with a fruit and marshmallow dessert.

Other evenings in the series include "The Deep Caribbean," on Oct. 9, "The People of Holland," on Nov. 19, "Alaska — Our Northern Star," on Dec. 10, "Mississippi River Adventure," on Jan. 20, "The Voyage of Columbus," on Feb. 17, "The Spirit of New England," on March 3, "Russia-Murmansk to Mt. Ararat," on April 20, and "Mexico," on May 14.

For more information, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Community Ed offers several travelers courses

The Grosse Pointe Department of Community Education is offering "A Total Travel Experience."

Besides featuring "German Christmas '91," a seven-day odyssey scheduled for Dec. 2 - 9 in Munich, the program offers series of unique holiday-related excursions to such picturesque and historic cities as Augsburg, Kinkelsbuhl, Rothenburg, Nuremberg, Landshut, Salzburg, and Mondsee. To top it off, Community Education has scheduled 12 related classes in language, cuisine, and photography to enable participants to make the most of their adventure.

The trip, personally escorted by Jan Arndt, will be described in detail at an information night program at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 1, at Barnes school, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

"We have just learned from Northwest that those making a deposit by Sept. 12 which covers their airfare are eligible for a substantial savings," Arndt said.

"From the 'Adventskranz' to the 'Christkindlemarkt,' the special German Christmas preparations of this month-long celebration are impressive. Hear fascinating stories about the Tannenbaum, St. Nicholas, and many of our favorite Christmas carols," she said. "Christmas traditions take on new meaning when experienced in the land of their origin."

Travelers will relax in one hotel for the entire trip, with breakfast and dinner daily. The fee is $1,850 per person, with a $400 deposit due to Skylight Travels by Oct. 2.

A special Community Education class planned in connection with the proposed German trip, "German for Travelers," has been scheduled at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 7, with Dr. Brigitte Rauer as instructor. The focus of the class will be on practical language designed to help the traveler.

Potential travelers wishing to study the German language may choose from among four other classes, part of a more in-depth program, depending on their interest and their proficiency. A class for beginners, "German — Phase I," will begin at 6 p.m. Monday, Sept. 16, while a somewhat more advanced class for those who have studied the language, "German — Phase IV," has been scheduled for the same night at 8 p.m.

In addition, two other classes have been scheduled. They are "German — Intermediate/Advanced," for those who are proficient but who wish to hone their skills, and "German — Conversation," billed as a class to "enable beginners and those who wish to renew their skills in German to learn basic grammar and vocabulary by using a conversational approach."

Related classes include two which focus on the cuisine of Germany. Charity Sucek, Grosse Pointe's acclaimed master cooking teacher, will present, as part of her "Cuisines from the Great Cities of the World," a single-session devoted to "Munich" on Oct. 15. Chef Jeff Gabriel of Les Auteurs restaurant in Royal Oak will present a three-week class, "International Cuisine: Highlights from Germany, Austria, and Switzerland." His class will begin at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 23.

For travelers who are interested in making a pictorial record of their travel adventures, Community Education has three photography classes and one in video recording.

"Pictures are Fun: Kodak Photographic Seminar," a single-session class slated for 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 16, in the auditorium of South High School, is a three-hour mini-course on the basics of 35mm photography. "Photography: Point and Shoot Basics," will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 3, and "Photography: Travel Basics," will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 10. Both are co-sponsored with the Grosse Pointe Camera Club.

"Video Recording: An Introduction," has been slated for 9 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 16. It is a three-hour session devoted to helping the traveler make full use of his or her camcorder on a trip. The fee is $10.

Finally, a single-session class, "Wanderlust and Fireside," is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 14. The focus is on library resources available for the mental journey that often precedes a trip.

Those wishing to obtain a detailed flier on the proposed trip may call the Department of Community Education at 343-2178 or Skylight Travels at 881-2200.

Full details on the related Community Education classes in German language, cuisine, and photography are available in the flier which has been mailed to all residences in the school district and which is available at the Grosse Pointe Central Library, its branches in Grosse Pointe Woods and Grosse Pointe Park, and at the Department of Community Education.

Forests provide stage for fall color show

If autumn in Michigan were a Broadway production, its short, six-week run would play before standing room only crowds.

Fortunately, the annual fall display is staged over 18 million acres of forest, guaranteeing plenty of room for patrons eager to take in this annual performance, according to AAA Michigan.

Production begins in mid-September in the Upper Peninsula; the curtain falls in late October in the southern Lower Peninsula.

"Autumn enthusiasts could follow fall hues from the Keweenaw Peninsula down to Benton Harbor and enjoy more than a month's worth of peak color," said Peter Erickson, AAA Michigan member services director.

The cast of colorful characters is impressive. Starring roles in autumn go to 65 species of trees displaying color — more varieties than in all of Europe.

Red, yellow and orange tints are contrasted by the blues, whites and greens of the supporting players — more than 3,000 miles of Great Lakes coastline, 11,000 inland lakes and close to 600 public golf courses.

Early reviews indicate a great show this year.

"The leaves have the potential to display some excellent color," according to Melvin Koelling, professor of forestry at Michigan State University. "We're right on schedule."

So far, growing conditions have been superb with ample sunshine and adequate rainfall, Koelling said. Now, all that is needed to produce vibrant color are sunny days and cool nights in September and October.

However, a villain lurks, with color in some areas of the state, especially central lower Michigan, diminished due to insect damage. But even those areas should display some autumn shades.

Michigan's color-filled spectacle is triggered by decreasing daylight hours. With less sunshine, leaves stop producing chlorophyll, losing their green color. This allows colors already present in leaves to appear.

Orange and red tints are common in west and northwest lower Michigan and the western Upper Peninsula, where maple trees dominate.

The eastern U.P. and eastern Lower Peninsula have more birch, aspens and oaks, so yellows, oranges and browns take center stage.

"The best seats for the fall panorama are in your car," Erickson said. "It's estimated 20 million trees are within 40 feet of rural roads in Michigan."

Vacationers have a choice of countless fall color tours, ranging from a trip to one of Michigan's more than 100 cider mills to a nearly 500-mile route along the Lake Superior coastline.

AAA Michigan has created 10 driving routes that range from 17 miles along Hines Drive in suburban Detroit to 318 miles for an Upper Peninsula excursion. Free copies of the routes are available to the public at all 35 full-service branch offices statewide.

Tough tests Saturday for grid teams

Romeo invades South

By Steve Stein
Sports Editor
Romeo is known for its peaches and great high school football teams.

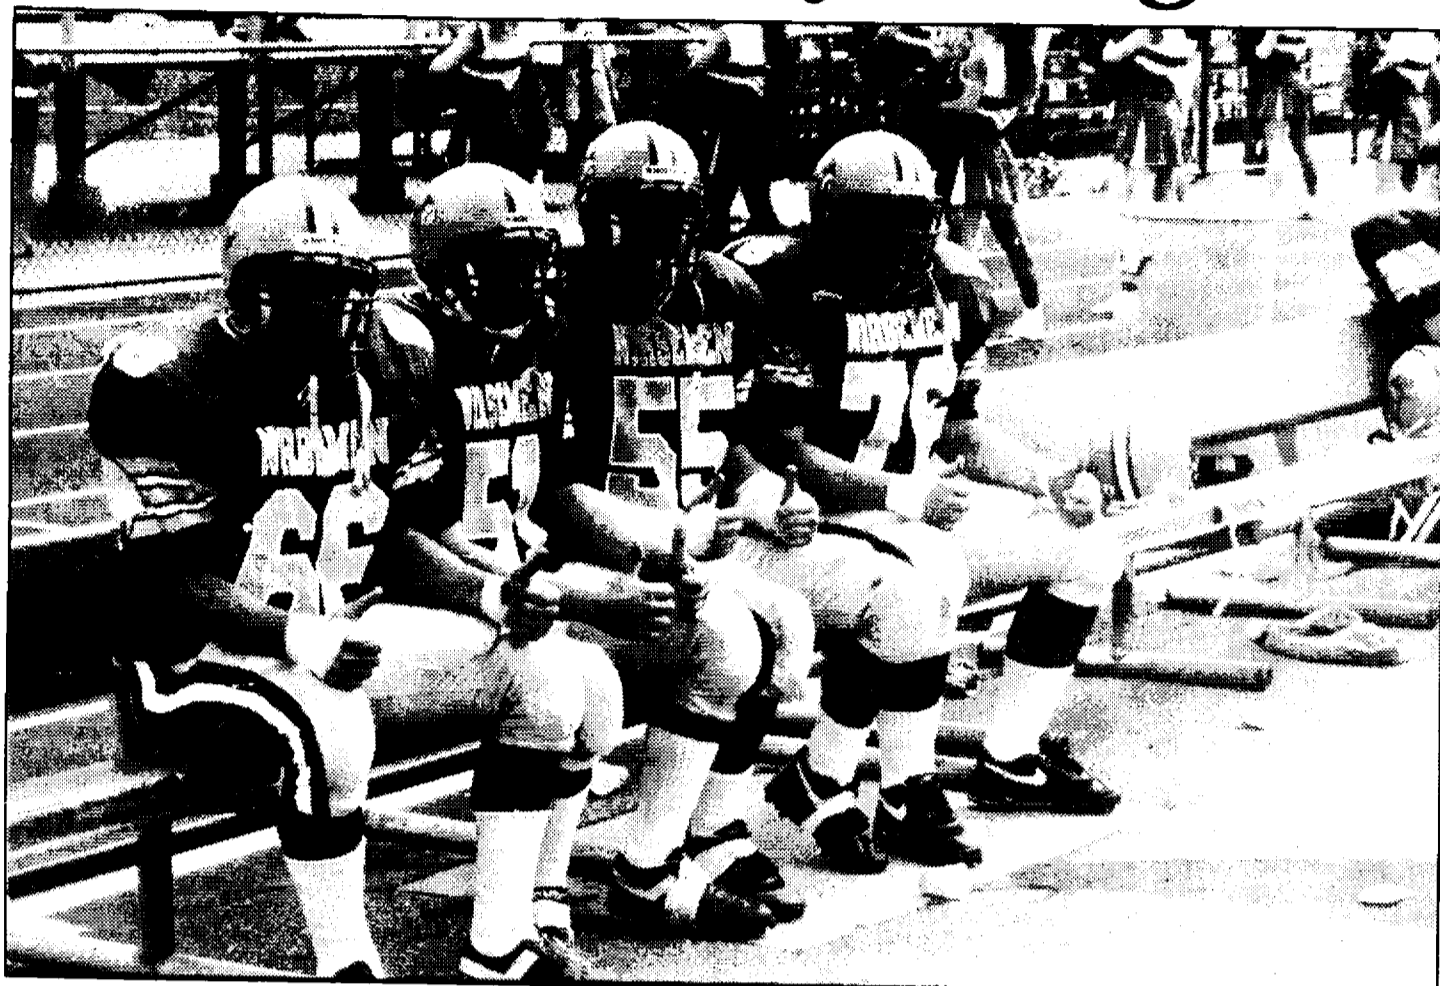

The Grosse Pointe South grid squad wouldn't mind gaining some recognition for itself at the expense of the Bulldogs.

Despite losing a 21-14 heart-breaker to visiting Mount Clemens Clintondale in their opener last Saturday, the Blue Devils look like they're ready to face the Romeo challenge.

South will play host to the Bulldogs at 1 p.m. Saturday in a game which will launch the Macomb Area Conference White Division campaign for both teams. Romeo has either won outright or shared the last four White Division championships.

"When I talked to our kids after the (Clintondale) game, I told them I'd feel bad about the loss for 30 minutes, then start thinking about Romeo," said

North tackles Ford

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

Those in the know when it comes to football metaphors and analogies are familiar with the phrase, "Student body left, student body right."

Translation: The tailback or whateverback follows the largest players on his team because they're steamrolling the opposition at the line of scrimmage.

Last Saturday against a backdrop set more for wave-watching at the beach than football watching at Grosse Pointe North, the Norsemen, in particular senior tailback Paul Straske, ran up and down and under and over the St. Clair Shores South Lake Cavaliers.

The outcome of the opener saw the Norsemen outlast the Cavaliers, themselves and the officials to grab a 14-6 victory.

"We were in control at the line," said Norsemen coach Frank Sumbra. "We set the tone, isolating them from

Two good halves are a must for University Liggett

By Steve Stein
Sports Editor

If the University Liggett football team wants to defeat Redford St. Agatha Saturday night, the Knights are going to have to play two good halves.

That may seem obvious, but Liggett got away with just one solid half while blanking visiting Harper Woods 27-0 in their opener last Friday.

The Knights scored on the first play of the game and led 27-0 at halftime, but sputtered in the second half. They did preserve the shutout, however.

"St. Agatha is always tough," said Liggett coach Bob Newvine. "We've lost four of the five times we've played them."

"It'll be interesting to see how our kids react to playing a night game at their place. That will give them the whole day to think about the game."

There are just eight seniors on Liggett's 19-man roster and Newvine hopes his younger players can quickly learn how to win because he will need major contributions from them if the Knights are going to have a successful season.

The Liggett junior varsity went just 1-8 last year.

The seniors on Newvine's team are another story. Many played on Liggett's 7-2 squads in 1989 and 1990, so the coach knows he doesn't have to worry about their winning attitudes.

Newvine felt his players "got comfortable" with the big lead over Harper Woods in the second half, then started to panic a bit when things began breaking down.

The first half was just the opposite.

"I really liked our intensity in the first half," the coach said. "I didn't know what to expect. We beat Harper Woods 29-0 last year in our opener but we were supposed to do that."

Two seniors combined to give Liggett a very early lead. On the opening kickoff, Jason Drook put a tremendous hit on the Harper Woods return man and Andy Stroble picked up the fumbled ball.

Stroble, living out a lineman's dream, rumbled 32 yards for a touchdown and when Mike Whelan added the first of his three PATs, Liggett led 7-0 just nine seconds into the season.

Runs of four and seven yards by junior Mike Fox produced two more Knights touchdowns and Drook tallied on a one-yard quarterback sneak.

Fox was the game's leading rusher, gaining 118 yards on 19 carries. Teammate Ryan Molitor, a senior, added 57 yards on nine attempts.

Liggett recovered three Harper Woods fumbles and intercepted two passes. Drook and Molitor were the aerial thieves.

University Liggett quarterback Jason Drook takes off against Harper Woods. Drook played a big role in the Knights' 27-0 victory.

What a great sports town!

My first impression of the Pointes: What a great area for sports!

Top-notch high school programs, solid youth organizations, magnificent facilities and tremendous fan interest are just some of the reasons why I'm looking forward to covering sports here.

In my previous job at The Daily Tribune in Royal Oak, I covered sports in several southeastern Oakland County cities. With all due respect, none of those towns has the sense of "community" I feel here.

At the high school level, I've been very impressed with the philosophy of athletics in Grosse Pointe.

Sports are a big part of a student's academic training here. Winning is great and it's a major goal, but there are so many other benefits that can be gained from being a member of a team. An athlete can take these benefits and put them to good use in the "real world."

Teamwork, friendship, overcoming adversity, time management, commitment, learning to respect authority — getting an early dose of these attributes can do nothing but help an athlete after he or she graduates from high school.

During my introductory conversation with Tom Gauerke, the athletic director at Grosse Pointe North, he proudly pointed out that 66 percent of North's 1990-1991 athletes earned Scholar-Athlete awards from the school. To qualify, an athlete had to maintain at least a 3.0 grade-point average during his or her sports season.

Two years ago, the mark was 56 percent. In 1989-90, it was 62 percent.

The top team during the 1990 fall season was the girls varsity tennis squad. All 18 team members won Scholar-Athlete awards.

Best in the winter was the freshman girls volleyball team with 12-of-14 earning the award for an 86 percent mark. In the spring, the best squad was the varsity girls soccer team with 14-of-16 awards for an 88 percent mark.

Enrollment at North last year was 1,065. There were 727 athletes and 477 won Scholar-Athlete honors. That's impressive.

During an interview with North girls tennis coach Karen Cooksey, we talked about the disappointment of her team's third-place finish in the Class A regionals last year.

The Lady Norsemen didn't qualify for the state tournament. Meanwhile, other schools in much easier regionals earned berths.

But years from now, when the North girls recall the 1990 season, they'll remember the great team spirit this squad boasted. Cooksey said the girls "pulled together" more than any team she'd coached.

That makes it a successful season, no matter what happened in the regional.

Yes, sports are a very important part of this community and I'm going to do my best to keep Grosse Pointe News readers informed about what's going on on the fields, courts, rinks and other venues.

I'll also offer weekly commentary in this column. I hope you'll agree with me but if you don't, that's okay. After all, one of a newspaper's goals is to be a marketplace of ideas.

Feel free to write a rebuttal. I'm looking forward to working with you.

Knights plotting course toward state tourney

By Steve Stein
Sports Editor

Don't let the University Liggett boys soccer team bother you. The Knights are just going through a phase.

Phase 2, to be specific. Coach David Backhurst set up his team's schedule in four phases and Liggett currently is in the second one.

"Phase 1 was our trip North (in late August)," Backhurst said. "We played three good teams up there in three days. I wanted those games to be an eye-opener for our young team."

"In Phase 2, we're playing small schools. Hopefully, we'll get our act together and gain some confidence during this time."

"In Phase 3, we'll face bigger schools like Cranbrook (Sept. 20), Grosse Pointe North (Sept. 27) and Country Day (Oct. 1). That should prepare us for Phase 4, the (Class C-D) state tournament."

Liggett, which has three freshmen, four sophomores,

Liggett Sports

four juniors and just three seniors on its roster, owns a 3-1-1 record following a 3-1 victory last Friday over Allen Park Inter-City Baptist.

The Knights, who are ranked No. 5 in Class C-D in the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association poll, opened with a 2-0 victory at Flint Powers Aug. 29. After a 3-2 win at Alpena Aug. 30, they lost 2-0 to Saginaw Valley Lutheran Aug. 31.

Following the grueling trip, Liggett played a disappointing 2-2 tie at Warren Bethesda Sept. 3.

assist from senior Richard Berri; then Spicer set up senior Walter Gasser's fifth goal and Berri tallied No. 3 with an assist from junior Jeff Backhurst.

Coach Backhurst has enjoyed great success during his 11 years at the helm of the Knights. His teams won Class D and Class B-C titles in 1982 and 1983 and made it to the Class D and Class C-D finals in 1986 and 1987 but lost. Liggett has been ranked in the top 10 in its class every year that Backhurst has been the coach.

The Knights fell 4-2 to Country Day in the Class C-D final in 1987. It was the first of four straight times that Country Day eliminated Liggett from the Class C-D tourney.

South

South coach Jon Rice. "Our season really begins this week."

Romeo won the White Division crown last year with a 6-1 record. The Blue Devils finished 4-3, good for a fourth-place tie with Grosse Pointe North in the eight-team league.

Like South, Romeo graduated quite a few players and it struggled in its opener against Warren Woods-Tower.

Down 16-14 going into the fourth quarter, the Bulldogs exploded for a 36-16 win, gaining revenge for a loss to Woods-Tower in last year's opener.

After taking a look at the South game films, Rice came away feeling pretty good about his team's performance against Clintondale, which qualified for the state playoffs last season.

"Our offense executed very well, especially the offensive line with our new blocking schemes, and our defense did a good job," Rice said. "It's just that every mistake we made cost us dearly."

North

With one win under their belts, Sumner and his squad will head to Sterling Heights Stevenson this Saturday to face Utica Ford (also 1-0 after a 42-7 drubbing of St. Clair Shores Lake Shore last Saturday) in a 1 p.m. Macomb Area Conference White Division opener.

"We'll have our hands full," said Sumner.

While North was piling up the rushing yards on South Lake, Ford did the same to Lake Shore. Chris Thomas carried three times for 104 yards and two touchdowns and teammate Cory Reiss carried four times for 119 yards and two touchdowns.

Ford plays a run-and-shoot offense and Sumner admits North faces a tough task.

"We'll have to play more solid defense. Their passing attack sets up the run," he said.

Two miscues, one at the conclusion of the game and the other at the end of the first half, led directly to Clintondale touchdowns.

With the score tied 14-14 and South driving for a possible winning touchdown, Clintondale linebacker Todd Kipela intercepted a Matt Recht pass and raced 55 yards down the sideline into the end zone with 43 seconds left in the contest.

Clintondale gained a 14-6 halftime lead on a 55-yard touchdown pass from LaVette York to 6-foot-5 Tony Terry on the final play of the second quarter.

"We were in our two-minute offense at the end of the game and it looked like their defense was confused," Rice said. "Their linebacker (Kipela) actually was in the wrong spot at first. When he realized it, he got into position just as the ball arrived."

"On the touchdown at the end of the first half, Terry got behind the secondary."

To South's credit, the Blue Devils didn't let Clintondale's pre-halftime bomb bother them. They took the second-half kickoff and drove 61 yards for a score.

Chad Hepner tallied from two yards out on fourth down and when Recht connected with Chris Harwick on a two-point conversion pass, the game was tied 14-14.

The Blue Devils lost three fumbles, were intercepted once and were penalized five times for 55 yards during the hot, sunny afternoon.

On the positive side, Hepner, Recht and Harwick put up some good numbers on offense and Drew Woodruff and Brian Blake did the same on defense.

Hepner, the lone back in South's one-back attack, ran for 121 yards and two touchdowns on 26 tough carries. Recht, a southpaw, was 9-of-14 through the air for 147 yards. Harwick, a highly-recruited 6-4, 240-pounder, grabbed five aeriels for 62 yards.

Woodruff made nine tackles and had two assists. Blake contributed eight tackles and three assists.

South Lake also displayed a solid ground attack, posting 131 yards.

The most serious problem for the Norsemen, however, was the officials and their flags. Eight penalties good for 90 yards made what should have been a one-sided game into a close contest. A holding penalty to open the second quarter nullified a 60-yard touchdown run by Corona.

Later, when the game was all but decided, a clipping penalty kept Straske from recording his second touchdown after he twisted and maneuvered his way 43 yards into the end zone.

"Penalties hurt us," said Sumner, who knows that another 90 yards in penalties could very well put his team on the wrong end of a lopsided score against Ford.

Junior fullback Mike Haskell scored North's first touchdown, diving in from one yard out in the second quarter.

Girls race to Algonac title

"Domination" would be a good way to describe the Grosse Pointe South girls cross country team's performance in the Algonac Invitational.

Coach Steve Zaronek's squad easily won the team title and boasted five of the top six finishers in last Saturday's meet.

The Blue Devils scored 17 points. Runnerup Port Huron Northern had 73 and third-place Harper Woods Regina tallied 74. There were eight teams in the field.

South runners swept the top three spots. Rachel O'Byrne, Heidi Wise and Sandy Dierkes finished 1-2-3. Michele Evans and Claudine DuPont placed fifth and sixth, respectively, and teammate Amy Balok also earned a medal, coming home 12th.

The Blue Devils will compete this Saturday in the 25-team Holly Invitational.

South Sports

BOYS CROSS COUNTRY: South finished in second place in the team standings and junior Dan Quinn placed second in the race in the Muskrat Invitational in Algonac.

The Blue Devils were second behind champion Port Huron Northern. Quinn was timed in 17:16.

Sophomore Brad Crowley and juniors Mitch Romano and Alex Zachary also ran well for the Blue Devils.

BOYS GOLF: Led by medalist Jay Strobl, who shot 44, South defeated Sterling Heights Stevenson 180-193 Sept. 5.

3 at No. 1 and Lori Shaft and Candace Malie stopped Liz Norris and Kelly Burnhardt 6-3, 6-2 at No. 2.

Star came back the next day to edge Catholic League rival Birmingham Marian 4-3 at home.

Abi-Raji again won at No. 3 singles, beating Laura Lalain 6-3, 6-4. At No. 2 singles, Elke Zabinski stopped her foe 6-1, 6-3.

Star's No. 1 and No. 2 doubles team triumphed again. Thomas and Zimmer tripped Michele Trenta and Kristen Raphael 6-0, 6-3 and Shaft and Malie crushed Jenny Stoval and Karen Knsyz 6-0, 6-1.

Bednarchik had eight points and eight rebounds in the loss to Lake Shore. Mary Helen Ciaravino contributed five points, eight rebounds and four steals but the first-game jitters didn't leave Star until the fourth quarter.

The tennis team opened with a 4-3 loss at Grosse Pointe North Sept. 4. The only singles winner for Star was Monique Abi-Raji, who defeated Julie Galvin 6-3, 7-6 at No. 3.

Star's two doubles triumphs came at No. 1 and No. 2. Phyllis Thomas and Anne Zimmer combined to beat Kerry Witting and Courtney Yates 6-3, 6-

Star teams win, lose openers

Doing the splits was the in-thing last week at Grosse Pointe Star of the Sea.

Both the basketball team and the tennis squad posted a victory and a defeat in season-opening competition.

The basketball team fell to host St. Clair Shores Lake Shore 43-23 Sept. 3, then defeated visiting Hamtramck Immaculate Conception 45-32 Sept. 5.

Star played outstanding defense against Immaculate Conception and poured in 29 points during the second and fourth quarters.

Mustangs almost tarnish Silver

Hi yo, Silver, away!

Yes, the Pointe Mustangs Under-12 soccer team certainly would have preferred to see less of the Sterling Silver squad during the Romeo Peach Festival Tournament.

The Silver handed the Mustangs their only two losses, beating them 1-0 on a late goal in their opener and 3-1 in the Division 2 title game.

Sterling scored first in the championship contest but the Mustangs answered with a goal by Courtney Lytle, assisted by Anne Peacock.

It was 2-1 for the Silver at halftime and the champs added an insurance goal late in the second half. Despite the loss, Mustangs coach Doug Dold was happy to accept the runnerup trophy because his team played well during the two-day tournament.

After losing to Sterling in their opener, the Mustangs bounced back with three straight victories.

Goals by Anne Morris and Jean O'Brien gave the Mustangs a 2-0 win over the Rochester Rockettes. Lytle's goal helped the Mustangs beat the Fraser Fury 1-0 and Morris and Lytle tallied in a 2-1 triumph over the Chippewa Valley IDJ Reds.

Rebecca Cadaret, Meg Guillaumin and Lytle shared the goaltending duties for the Mustangs and were stingy in the nets.

Sweeper Julia Rouls was a tower of strength on defense, playing just about every minute of the tourney.

Lindsay Hawkins, Sarah Rahaim and Allison Dold also were strong on defense. Halfbacks Christina Bakalis, Holly Wellard and Carrie Howe did an efficient job getting the ball to the Mustangs' forwards.

STRAIGHT SHOOTERS: The newly-formed Pointe Mustangs II Under-19 girls team, a squad made up mostly of 14 and 15-year-olds, defeated the Romeo Shooters 3-2 Sept. 7.

Rebecca Soltis and Amanda Spicuzzi scored goals and the final Mustangs' goal was set up by Gwen Stellingwerf's shot. Andrea Salamy played well in the nets with defensive support from sweeper Kelly Kennedy.

PHANTOM FINISH: The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Phantoms Under-10 travel team opened its season with a second-place finish in the Romeo Peach Festival Tournament.

A 2-0 loss in the finals to Warren Sport Club 24 kept the Phantoms from the title in the Under-10 Premier Division.

The Phantoms defeated the Livonia Meteors 11-1 Saturday. Matt Lapish scored four goals, Mike Tymrak and Brad Drummy two each and Ken Potenga, Nick Rotondo and David Smith one apiece.

Adam Buddy and Brad Staniszewski provided offensive support and Nick Clark played well defensively.

The Phantoms are coached by Tom Lapish. Frank Tymrak is the team's assistant coach.

Players include Buddy, Clark, Louis Ciotti, Randy Graves, Joshua Hurd, Eric Krauss, Matt Lapish, Potenga, Rotondo, Justin Schoenherr, Smith, Staniszewski, Mike Tymrak and Danny Woutat.

HURRICANES SEASON: The GPSA Hurricanes Under-12 travel team opened the season with a 2-0 win over Royal Oak Rampage II.

A corner kick by Drew Harris produced the game's first score. Steve Howson tallied in the second half.

Paul Yeskey and Sebastian Nordlund played well defensively, helping keeper Brad Cenko record the shutout.

Seven straight titles for Yacht Club team

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club swimming team won a record seventh consecutive Michigan Inter-Club Swimming Association championship at the Red Run Golf and Country Club in Royal Oak.

GPYC topped 13 other squads in a close meet.

The team, coached by Fred Michalik and assistants Julie and Laurie Michalik, Anna Francis and Jim Bellanca, ended the season with a record 94 consecutive dual meet victories.

The last two medley relays decided the meet. Lauren Rashid, Heather Olson, Jenny Paolucci and Suzanne Toledo of GPYC combined to win their girls event while Kile Zeller, Patrick Kirchner, Peter Haarz and Matthew Kirchner placed third in the boys relay.

The GPYC age 8-and-under medley relay team of Molly Conway, Kammy Miller, Elizabeth Moran and Anthony Stefani placed first in its event while the age 8-and-under freestyle relay squad of Elizabeth Moran, Chris Waldmeir, Anthony Stefani and G.J. Kordas broke the club record in a second-place finish.

The girls all-age freestyle relay team of Heather Olson, Jamie Taylor, Stephanie Lafond and Ashley Moran placed second while the boys all-age squad of John McLellan, Matthew Kirchner, Marc Bickenbach and Brenn Schoenherr was sixth.

GPYC swimmers turned in a strong showing in the breaststroke.

Liggett

The Knights lost to host Country Day in the semifinals in 1988 and 1989 and in the regional at Liggett last fall.

But Country Day has moved up to Class B, so Liggett's nemesis has left the premises.

When Liggett finished 9-9-3 last year, it marked the first time in Backhurst's career that the Knights didn't top the .500 mark.

Liggett's three seniors are forwards Berri and Gasser and sweeper Alex Crenshaw. The speedy Berri was the starting sweeper as a sophomore and junior; Gasser, who boasts a tremendous shot, is a two-year starter and three-year player; and Crenshaw is in his fourth season with the varsity.

Junior keeper Vince Harkins had a 1.85 goals-against average last season. His mark this year is 1.4.

GIRLS TENNIS: The Lady Knights made it 2-for-2 in invitational tournaments this season, winning their own tourney last Saturday.

Liggett compiled 21 points to defeat Grosse Pointe South (15), Grosse Pointe North (six) and East Grand Rapids (six).

Seniors Margo Metcalfe and Beth Weyhing combined to win the title at No. 2 doubles.

GIRLS BASKETBALL: Liggett opened by splitting two games in the Ann Arbor Greenhills Invitational last weekend.

After losing to Greenhills 58-34, the Lady Knights bounced back with a 35-14 win over Allen Park Inter-City Baptist.

Freshman forward Julie Grant tossed in 18 points to lead Liggett past Inter-City Baptist, which trailed 21-2 at halftime.

Senior guard P.R. Stark added six points and sophomore center Shona Malkar and freshman guard Stacey Corbin played well.

CROSS COUNTRY: Senior Jennifer Miller finished in first place in the girls Class B-C-D division at the Algonac Invitational last Saturday. She was timed in 20:53.

Wilson Wehmeier (46th), Brad Espy (54th), Mike Junge (56th) and Jay Ricci (64th) also competed for the Knights, who came in 10th in the team standings.

One victory on opening day for the Red Barons football teams

Well, one out of three isn't too bad.

The Grosse Pointe Red Barons little league football teams went 1-2 in their openers Sunday against Mount Clemens with the varsity posting the only victory, a 20-6 decision.

The Red Barons' junior varsity fell 2-0 and the freshmen lost 12-7.

The varsity led 20-0 at halftime thanks to a touchdown run by Vince Thomas and a 65-yard burst by Jeff Halso. Jon Rapp also scored on a 57-yard pass from Halso.

sion and Halso tossed to Dave Grant for another.

Center Joe Schmitt and guards Ryan Kingsley and Ben Reynolds spearheaded a strong performance by the Red Barons' offensive line.

The Red Barons' defensive effort was led by Thomas, Rapp, Halso, John Peitz, Ken Marone, Jason Ramberger, Jason Lorence, Nelson Ropke, Jay Watson and Mike Lucido.

A Mount Clemens safety early in the second half decided the junior varsity contest. Larry Marantette and Shane Conlan both recovered fumbles for the Red Barons and Martin Mathews made several tackles.

Keith Nosis, Bill Quasano, Armand Bove, Mike D'Hondt and Logan Campbell contributed key tackles.

Linebacker Danny Griesbaum scored the lone touchdown for the Red Barons' freshmen team and tailback Josh Lorence ran for the extra point.

Linebacker William Solomon recovered four fumbles for the Red Barons and defensive tackle Jonathan Paquin had two more. End Jack Donnelly caught a pass from Griesbaum.

NO ONE DOES MORE TO IMPROVE YOUR VIEW OF THE WORLD

Of all the decisions you can make in building or remodeling your home, choosing Pella® brand products may prove to be the most satisfying.

They look beautiful. They perform beautifully. And we go through extraordinary measures to ensure they will stay that way, giving you lasting pleasure season after season, year after year.

They are, quite arguably, the finest windows, doors, sunrooms and skylights in the world. And it's not just us doing the arguing. With more than one hundred brands to choose from, more architects specify Pella windows than any other brand.*

To find out for yourself what sets Pella products apart from the rest, just turn the page. We're confident that the more you know, the easier your decision will be.

BUILT TO IMPOSSIBLY HIGH STANDARDS. OUR OWN.®

DOUBLE-HUNG AND CASEMENT WINDOWS

For classic American style and state-of-the-art performance, look to Pella® Double-Hung windows. Solid wood construction and superior weatherstripping provide outstanding insulating value. Washing our double-hung windows is easy — each sash pivots to give you full access for cleaning from inside your house.

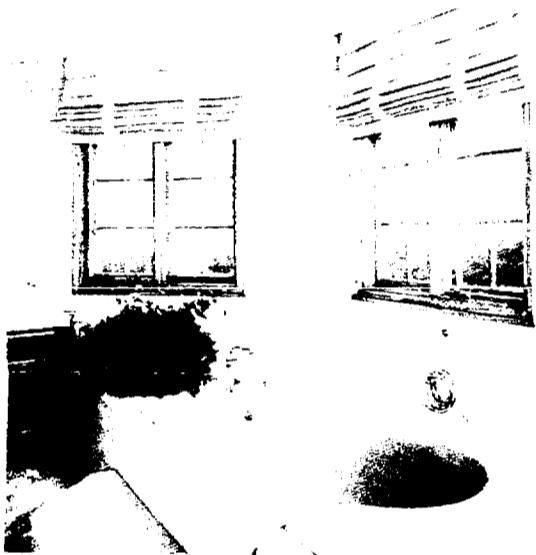

The Pella Casement window is so well constructed, it's eleven times tighter than the industry standard, stopping drafts cold. Upper and lower locks operate in unison with a single handle, preventing sash warpage. An interior wash feature makes cleaning easy.

Both our casements and our double-hung windows are ideal for remodeling or replacement projects, with a large selection of standard sizes designed to fit most houses.

THE ARCHITECT SERIES™

Incredibly beautiful, yet energy-efficient. The Architect Series™ captures the beauty of true divided light while maintaining the performance of insulating glass. Elegant narrow windowpane dividers characterize these extraordinary windows and French doors, which are particularly suited to historical renovations or traditional new construction. Available in wood or low-maintenance clad.

OPTIONS, OPTIONS, OPTIONS

Our exclusive Double Glazing Panel System provides a 1/2" insulating air space between the panes of glass. This extremely versatile, energy-efficient system eliminates the need for storm windows, and provides room for Slimshade® blinds, pleated shades, or wood windowpane dividers between the panes and away from dust and damage.

Slimshade® blinds are narrow-slat adjustable blinds that are safe from dust and damage, because they're protected by the glass in our Double Glazing Panel System. Extremely popular for Pella Windows, Sliding and Traditional French doors, and Sunrooms, Slimshade blinds offer measurable increases in energy efficiency.

Pleated shades can be raised or lowered to control light. Installed within our Double Glazing Panel System, or mounted room-side, they offer a fashionable, energy-efficient alternative to drapes or blinds. A variety of colors and fabrics are available to complement your decor.

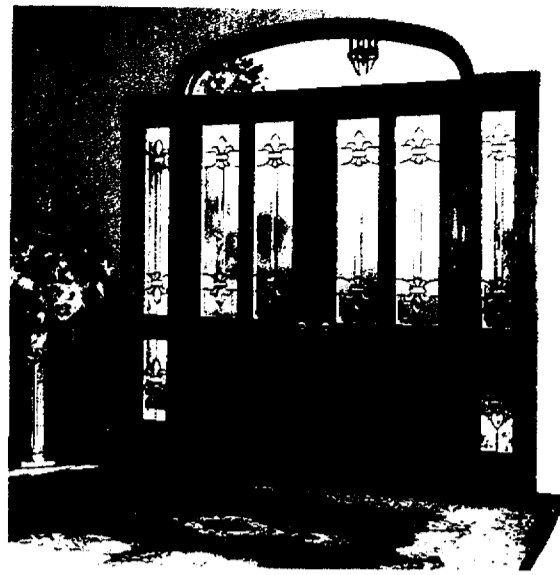

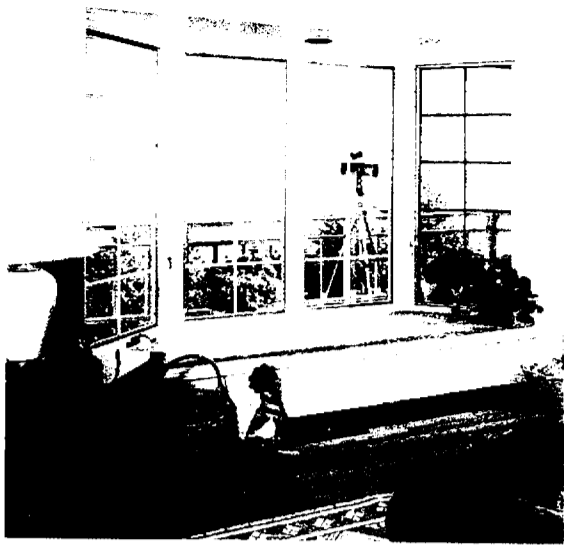

On casement windows, consider adding our convenient Roloscreen® rolling screen. It pulls down when you need a screen and rolls up when you don't. When it's rolled up you get a clear view and 40% more light than you'd have with a fixed screen.

BOW AND BAY WINDOWS

A bow or bay window can provide a uniquely beautiful focal point whether you're replacing ordinary windows or remodeling an entire room.

Add living space and sunlight with a walk-in bay, or bring a room to life with the graceful charm of a bow window. With the exceptionally flexible Pella® Bow and Bay System, you can combine casements or double-hungs to create a window that will complement your home perfectly.

WOOD ENTRY DOOR SYSTEMS

Few things provide a warmer welcome than a richly crafted wood door. Finely constructed, superbly engineered, the Pella Wood Entry Door System is quite possibly the most elegant entry door system you can buy. But there's more to its appeal than looks: our exclusive Warpguard™ laminated construction makes these handsome doors three times as warp-resistant as regular solid wood doors. Warping, sticking and drafts are virtually eliminated. A variety of styles, from traditional to contemporary, are available in both 6'8" and 7'10" heights.

SUNROOMS AND SUNSPACES

For truly extraordinary living, a Pella Sunroom or Sunspace is an unparalleled choice. Create a small, sunny retreat...brighten an attic room with a skylight...or add light and living space with a walk-in sunroom bay. Our flexible system allows you to design the perfect sunroom or sunspace for your home.

TRADITIONAL FRENCH DOORS REGULAR AND FRENCH SLIDING GLASS DOORS

Pella Traditional French and French Sliding doors open up a world of design options, from elegant to classic to contemporary. Choose the traditional charm of in- or out-swing French doors, or consider stylish sliding French doors if space is at a premium. All feature an easy-care clad exterior, energy-efficient glass and our exclusive Pella Double Glazing Panel System, which allows you to select Slimshade™ blinds or pleated shades for between-the-panes shading.

For a more expansive view and the energy efficiency of insulating glass, choose our regular sliding glass door. On all sliding doors, a security footbolt allows you to lock the door in either of two positions: closed or open about 1" for ventilation. Stainless steel door tracks ensure years of trouble-free use.

Men's Garden Club's roots go back 38 years

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor
The Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe has flourished for 38 years and shows no signs of wilting.

Today there are 126 members, ranging in age from the 30s to the 90s, and they come from all walks of life, said president Sheldon Flynn.

Flynn, 76, has been a member for six years. He considers himself a newcomer on the club's roster. The veterans include one member who joined in 1953, the club's first year, and another who was a charter member, along with founder Vincent De Petris.

De Petris specialized in hybridizing chrysanthemums, said Flynn, whose own area of expertise is scented geraniums.

"To me, they're just fascinating," he said. "You have 31 flavors like Baskin Robbins. They're unlike what we think of as American geraniums."

One advantage of joining a club is to learn from others' expertise, and a lot of that goes on at the Men's Garden Club.

"It's an ongoing learning experience," he said, "whether it's in flowers or vegetables. We always have a member that's a specialist in some area."

With members from the Pointes, Harper Woods, East

Detroit, St. Clair Shores and Mount Clemens, there's little that escapes some member's interest. There are lawn specialists, a husband-wife mums team, rose enthusiasts and an arborist specializing in fruit trees.

"We all have our own gardens," Flynn said, "and others putter along with anything that sets them off."

He said men do not have to be expert gardeners to join.

Men's Garden Club members do more than tend their own gardens, though.

Every year, they plant various plots around the Pointes, including those at the gazebo near Richard school on the Hill, a plot at Elworthy Field near the Neighborhood Club in the City and several beds at the Farms' Pier Park.

"That's a big job," Flynn said.

The club also tends the Ken Cary Memorial Garden at Pierce School in the Park. Cary was an assistant principal at the school and a Men's Garden Club member.

Other school activities include the tomato plant project at Defer and Kerby schools.

Every year, club members teach first-graders how to grow tomato plants from seeds. They then transplant the sprouts to milk carton pots and the kids take the plants home.

"The students mark their cartons, and they're very proud," he said. "Kids that age think all vegetables come from Kroger. We come out of one of those (teaching) sessions just floating. They just can't learn enough."

He likes the way kids must go home and ask their moms and dads for milk cartons. The parents then get involved and the tomato plants become family projects.

Club members have also started working with youths at the Children's Home of Detroit. The kids get to plant their own flowers with the help of the members, and the plants give the children something of which to be proud, Flynn said.

The club has also donated money to help build a children's garden at the horticultural college at Michigan State University.

The club provides two scholarships a year to Grosse Pointe South High School choral members to attend Interlochen in the summer.

The non-profit group does all this with just one fundraiser a year — the annual May plant sale. "That's our sole method of raising funds," Flynn said.

Membership dues are $15 a year, and the money goes to the national Men's Garden Clubs of America. Members receive a monthly publication from the national organization and a monthly newsletter, called "Garden Pointers," from the local chapter.

The Men's Garden Club meets monthly on the third Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Brownell school on Chalfonte in the Farms. Nine months out of the year, the group invites special speakers, such as professors from the Michigan Extension Service.

Once a year, six members' gardens are selected for a garden tour.

Half the members are retired, Flynn said. Gardening not only provides something rewarding to do in their spare time, it's also therapeutic. Flynn can point to many seniors and handicappers who use gardening to give them fulfillment.

"It's amazing how rewarding gardening is," he said. "It's excellent therapy, no doubt about it."

For more information about the Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe, call Flynn at 882-8404.

HEAT offers rewards for auto theft info, and tells how not to be a victim

HEAT, Help Eliminate Auto Thefts, has announced it is offering up to $1,000 in rewards for any information relating to vehicles stolen at gunpoint, the newest trend in Detroit crime.

Since it began in 1985, HEAT has helped decrease the number of auto thefts by offering rewards for information leading to the arrest of suspected auto thieves.

Anyone with information on car thefts can call 1-800-242-HEAT. All tips are confidential.

To guard against the possibility of having your car stolen, particularly at gunpoint, law enforcement officials say:

- Always lock your car doors, both while you're driving and when you're parked.
- Be aware of your surroundings at all times; be cautious when getting in and out of your car, particularly if you see loiterers.

- Park in well-lit areas, particularly at night. If you have a garage, use it.

- Activate alarm or other theft deterrent devices.

- Don't tempt thieves. Keep packages and other valuables out of sight.

- If you are confronted by someone who is armed, do what is requested.

- If you do see a vehicle being stolen, call 1-800-242-HEAT.

So far this year, the group has paid nearly $109,725 in rewards for tips received on its hotline. Under the program, 102 vehicles have been recovered with an estimated value of $1,867,722.

Since the program began in October 1985, HEAT has logged 2,817 tip calls, leading to the arrest of 891 suspects and the recovery of 1,192 vehicles with an estimated value of $13,700,162. Rewards totaled $824,705.

Funded by the Michigan insurance industry, the organization allows citizens to report information about stolen cars and suspected thefts confidentially. Rewards of up to $1,000 are paid for the arrest and prosecution of car thieves, and up to $10,000 for the arrest and trial of suspected theft ring members and/or chop shop operators. Rewards are paid even if the persons arrested are not convicted.

Tip calls are monitored from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday by the Michigan State Police.

A tree box planter can pep up a deck

Looking for a colorful focal point for your deck or patio? Or maybe a cool escape from the afternoon sun? Try a tree or large shrub in an oversize container and see how it transforms your outdoor space.

This handsome planter, 22 inches square, is big enough to hold an 8-foot to 10-foot tree. (With this container, you can even add a tree in mid-season — just leave it in the nursery until it's safe to transplant. The planter will easily hold a 15 to 20 gallon plant can.)

The plant container, which requires no special skills or tools to build, is made from standard size western lumber. For durability, use lumber that has been pressure-treated for ground contact, or use a decay-resistant species such as western red cedar.

For the base you will need four lengths of 2 by 4, 17-1/2 inches long, and five lengths of 1 by 4, 19 inches long. Butt each 2 by 4 over the next at one end to form a 19 inch square. (The 2x4s are joined on edge.)

Glue and nail each joint with two 12d galvanized nails, predrilled to prevent splitting. Space the 1 by 4s evenly across the top of the 2 by 4s to form the base, allowing about 1/4-inch between boards for drainage.

You also may want to drill several 1-inch holes for additional drainage. The base can be covered with a rust-proof screen to prevent dirt from washing out.

For the sides and upper frame you will need 20 lengths of 2 by 4, 20-inches long; 16 lengths of 1 by 1, 20-inches long; and four lengths of 1 by 4, 18-1/4 inches long.

Mark all four sides of the base 1-1/2 inches from the bottom edge. Using glue and 8d galvanized nails, attach the eight corner 2 by 4s to the base so the lower edges are even with the mark. Lap and glue the 2 by 4s at the corners as shown.

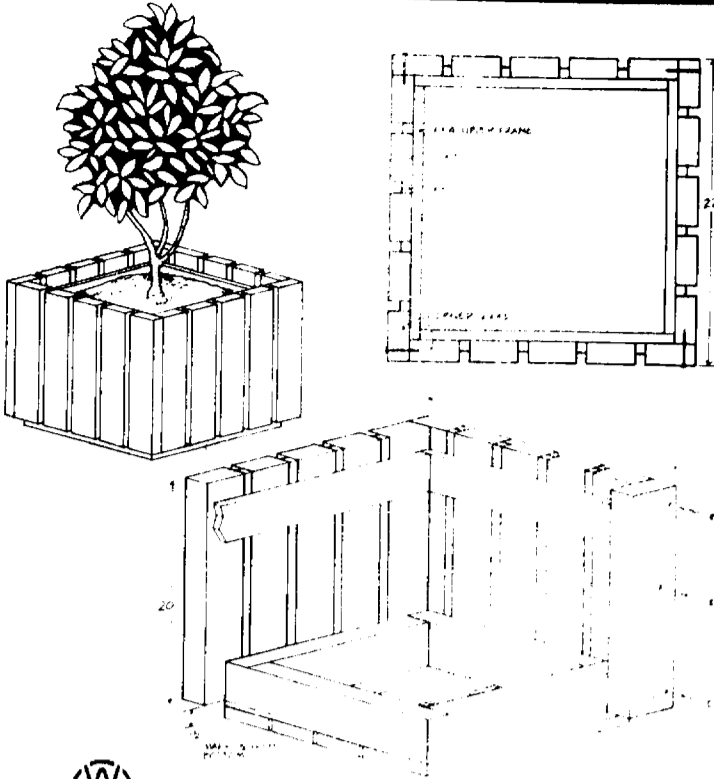

Glue and nail the 1 by 4 upper frame to the inside of the corner 2 by 4s about 2 inches from the top. Butt the upper frame at the corners as shown.

Glue and nail the 1 by 4 at the corners as shown. Glue and nail the remaining 2 by 4s in place, alternating them with the 1 by 1 spacers. Nail to the upper frame from the inside to conceal nail holes.

Make sure the sides are square and plumb, then reinforce the corners with three 2-1/2 inch rust-proof screws per joint. The screws may be countersunk and plugged for a more finished appearance. For easy mobility, install heavy duty casters on the base.

Finish the planter inside and out with an exterior stain, paint or water-repellent finish. Before painting, line the interior with plastic sheeting (a large plastic yard bag works nicely.) Punch holes in the bottom for drainage.

For a free list of do-it-yourself projects and ideas, write Western Wood Products Association, Dept. HI891, Yeon Building, 522 S.W. Fifth Ave., Portland, Ore. 97204-2122.

Edison extends phone hours

Detroit Edison customer telephone representatives will be available Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and weekdays from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. as the utility extends normal customer telephone business hours. Previously, only emergency calls were handled Saturdays and after 5 p.m. weekdays.

"Detroit Edison's telephone representatives have always been available 24 hours for emergencies," said Robert J. Buckler, Edison's vice president for Divisions.

Expert discusses interior design

Learn the principles of interior design and professional trade secrets in a course at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The class, taught by Eve Garvin, meets Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to noon, Sept. 24 through Oct. 31.

The class will cover such topics as colors, fabrics, furniture, wallpaper, lighting, accessories, floor plans, window treatments, and architectural details. Students will have the opportunity to design three different floor plans and visit various design trade centers.

Garvin founded the Lawrence Institute of Interior Design in Sarasota, Fla., and was a design columnist for The Birmingham Observer and Eccentric for two years. The cost of the class is $250 for 12 sessions.

For more information, call the War Memorial at 881-7511, Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Golden eggs from empty nests

One by one your children have left home. Suddenly, the place that was once a busy beehive of activity has become an empty nest. If you find yourself with too much space, perhaps it's time to see your home in a new light, says the Michigan Association of CPAs.

For example, now may be the right time to consider trading down. Buying or renting a smaller home can leave you with a profit to invest or enjoy. Additionally, if you or your spouse are 55 or older when you sell your home, you may be able to pocket up to $125,000 of the profit you realize without having to pay tax on the gain.

The ability to generate income from an empty nest is not limited to those who decide to sell their homes. If you remain in your home, you can put the extra space to practical use and earn income and tax savings as well. For instance, if your home is in a resort area or an area where a popular annual event attracts tourists, consider renting your home during this period. If you rent your home for less than 15 days during the year, the income you receive is tax-free. The related rental expenses, however, will not be deductible.

Another alternative is renting an extra bedroom, perhaps to a local college student or professor. When you rent a portion of your home, the part you rent is considered rental property. This means you can depreciate the rented portion and write off some of your expenses against the rental income you receive. Most expenses must be allocated between deductible rental use and nondeductible personal use. But expenses incurred solely for the rental portion,

Homes with specialized facilities or amenities may offer other means for generating income. For example, a gourmet kitchen can provide the perfect location for someone who would like to give cooking lessons. Are you an amateur photographer with a darkroom? If so, perhaps you can find someone who would be willing to pay for the use of your darkroom facilities. Of course, you should talk to your insurer and financial adviser before adopting any of these ideas.

Even an empty attic or basement can bring you unexpected financial opportunities. You may be able to rent the space to someone in need of extra storage room. Is there spare space in your garage now that your children's cars are gone? Consider renting it to a garageless apartment dweller who wants to shelter a fancy sports car. One precaution: When you rent storage space, make sure your tenant is insured against loss while his or her property is in your home.

Another way to put your empty nest to use is to run a small business from your home. The deductions for your in-home office are based on the percentage of your home used for that purpose.

An empty nest can provide many ways to generate income, become involved in new interests, and prepare for the second half of your life. With the children gone and tuition and child-rearing expenses behind you, you should look for personal and financial growth in the years ahead.

Builders' pre-licensing class offered

The Michigan Builders Institute, in cooperation with Grosse Pointe Community Education, will offer a 16-hour evening seminar to prepare people to pass the Michigan state builders' licensing examination. The seminar will begin Tuesday, Sept. 17, at Barnes school.

The course is designed for people in the building trades who are now working without a license who want to obtain one, as well as for those who want to subcontract the building of their own homes. The cost of the seminar is $160 a person and includes all materials.

Pre-registration is required no later than Friday, Sept. 13. Those interested should call 343-2178 to register during school office hours.

The course instructor is a licensed builder with extensive experience teaching builders' pre-licensing classes. The co-owner of a residential building company, he is able to answer questions related to all facets of home building.

Meet designers at open house

Michigan Design Center in Troy will open its doors to the public Saturday, Sept. 14, to inform consumers of the benefits of working with an interior designer.

Grosse Pointe designers who will participate are Bernard Reilly of Reilly & Sands and Rick Carmody. Consumers will be able to meet them and other designers, review their portfolios, attend lectures on working with a designer and tour the center to see what is available.

Admission is $10, payable at the door. The open house is from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Mid-America Room at the center.

For more information, call 649-4772.

Alaska-inspired design

Active lifestyles will find room for expression in the Selby. A vaulted great room incorporates areas for living and dining around a central hearth and wood stove. Two stories of glass in the V-shaped prow end light this space. Sliding glass panels allow easy passage between the interior and the wrap-around deck.

The large kitchen has counter space on three walls, and connects with a wet bar that serves the great room. Just down the hall is the hot-tub room. All these spaces have skylights that provide illumination and enhance the feeling of openness.

Upstairs, a mezzanine hall looks down over a half-wall into the great room. Off this hall is the master suite, with storage areas under the angles of the roof. Downstairs, a daylight basement provides space for recreation and utilities.

All this informality may be too much for owners who want greater privacy and separation of space. For instance, the hot tub room also includes the shower, bath and vanity for the two downstairs bedrooms. On the other hand, Selby makes a fine vacation retreat or quality resort rental.

Designed for an actual building site in Alaska, the Selby is at home in harsh climates. The extensive glass around the great room admits light and warmth, while nearly solid side walls minimize heat loss. In bad weather, the "airlock" entry keeps cold air and wet footprints out of the house. And when weather is fine, that huge deck allows day-long sunbathing.

For a study kit of the Selby (207-12), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832, Eugene, Ore. 97402. Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.

SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!
An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.
