Group supports SSI for children
 The National Academy of Social Insurance, a bipartisan group of national experts, responding to a study request from the House Ways and Means Committee in the 102nd Congress, strongly supports the payment of cash benefits to families with disabled children. It also suggested specific steps to change the supplemental security income (SSI) program which makes disability payments to children. The academy determined that the allegations of widespread abuse have not been substantiated in any of the studies that have been done. The data showed that children who receive SSI have very significant disabilities, and that those who are suspected of 'gaming the system' are denied benefits. Copies of the report may be requested by writing: The Disability Project, National Academy of Social Insurance, 1776 Massachusetts Ave. NW, Suite G15, Washington, D.C. 20036-1304.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Park to pave streets and separate sewers

By Jim Stockford
Staff Writer

Killing two birds with one stone and saving some money down the line, the Grosse Pointe Park City Council last week voted to separate the storm sewer systems from the sanitary sewer while the city repairs several blocks on Westchester.

City manager Dale Krajniak approached the council with the plan at the Aug. 14 council meeting. The plan made sense in light of the fact that the council had recently approved a plan to separate the city's sanitary and storm sewer systems. Krajniak said.

The council earlier this year agreed to eliminate the discharge of combined sewage overflows into Fox Creek in Detroit. The city has had an agreement with Detroit since the 1920s that allows this practice. But recently the Department of Natural Resources has been cracking down on the discharge of CSOs. The Park's permit to discharge expired last year, and the DNR notified the city that it would not renew it, forcing the city to develop a plan to end CSOs.

The plan chosen by the council is to separate the city's storm and sanitation drains with the idea being that storm water would drain off into the lake instead of being combined with sanitary sewage. Currently, when the system gets overwhelmed with storm water and sanitary discharge, basements can flood when the sewers back up.

"Prior to the resurfacing of Westchester, it is advisable to redirect the street flows to our neighborhood relief sewer already in place on Avondale," said Krajniak. "This work will prevent the retrenching of Westchester in two or three years, and provide storm drain relief to both Middlesex and Westchester where the flows currently run."

The idea is to create a separate storm sewer line now, while the street is being dug up and repaired, because in a couple of years, the city will be separating all its sewer lines, said Krajniak. Doing it now will save money later, he said.

The city is asking for bids right away. Krajniak told the council. Costs have been estimated to be between $35 and $125 a foot. The city will begin repaving Westchester in the next few weeks.

"We'll be doing the 600 and 700 blocks of the street," Krajniak said. "That's between Windmill Pointe and Essex. If it goes well we might try to do the 800 and 900 blocks of the street."

The council unanimously approved the plan. Councilmember Shirley Kennedy said that it would ultimately benefit residents in the area, because when it was finally complete, it would help alleviate flooding.

Farms party out of control

Police were called to a house on Harbor Hill around 10 p.m. Aug. 20 to investigate a report of a rowdy open house party. When they arrived, officers found several youths congregating and beer bottles and cans littering the street, lawn and driveway.

Inside the house, officers found beer cans and bottles in every room of the house, from the basement to the upper floor. Teets were found hiding in the basement and on the roof. The boy who lived in the house said his parents were out of town and he had invited a few friends over but things quickly got out of control.

Police broke up the party and advised the young man that a police report would be filed. Within a half hour police were again summoned to the house, where the party had resumed.

Again, police broke up the gathering. The owners of the house could be charged with violating a city ordinance which prohibits open house parties. The maximum penalty for the misdemeanor charge is a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jail. The matter is being reviewed by the Farms city attorney.

Dispute at money machine

A Grosse Pointe Farms woman using an automated teller machine at a Mack and Moross bank branch on Aug. 20 told police that another customer in line behind her stole her money.

But the other woman, a Detroit resident, said the Farms woman cut in front of her and all she did was reach over the woman's shoulder to grab an envelope.

The Farms woman said after the Detroit woman reached over to grab the envelope, the money dispensed by the machine was gone.

Police, after obtaining permission, searched the Detroit woman's purse but did not find any money. The matter is under investigation.

Break-ins — then and now

A resident who lives on Piche in Grosse Pointe Farms reported that his house was burglarized sometime between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Aug. 16.

It appears the intruder got in through a side door leading to the garage. The burglar stole some jewelry, a 35 mm camera and an envelope containing money.

Another Farms resident returned from vacation to find that his house also had been broken into. He reported several large bottles of liquor and a portable compact disk player missing. The incident occurred sometime between Aug. 7 and 11. It appears the intruder got in through a door leading from the garage to the kitchen. Police are investigating.

Woman charged in home B & Es

A 30-year-old Detroit woman was charged on Aug. 21 with first-degree home invasion in connection with a number of break-ins around the Pointes.

Bobbie Barnett pleaded not guilty at her arraignment in Farms Municipal Court. She is free on $5,000 personal bond and is scheduled to return to Farms court on Aug. 30 for a preliminary hearing.

After an extensive investigation, Farms detectives obtained sufficient evidence that pointed to Barnett as a suspect. After obtaining an arrest warrant, detectives found her in the Chandler Park and Grayton neighborhood of Detroit and arrested her on Aug. 19.

The investigation continues.

Rummage sale robbers nabbed

Two Detroit girls are facing the prospect of time behind bars for allegedly robbing a senior citizen and a child while at a garage sale on Cadieux on Aug. 16.

The girls, 15 and 16, were being held in the Wayne County Youth Home at press time and were expected to be charged as adults with armed robbery and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

The girls were shopping at the garage sale around 2:45 p.m. when they approached a Grosse Pointe Park woman and a 7-year-old boy, who is the son of the resident holding the sale, pointed a .38 caliber revolver and fled with the woman's purse.

Park officers, with the help of City of Grosse Pointe police, searched for and located the two girls in the area of Bishop and Jefferson. The pair were originally charged as juveniles but Park police sought and received a waiver from the Wayne County prosecutor that would allow them to be charged as adults.

"We sought adult charges because of the seriousness of the crime," said Park detective Lt. Dave Hiller. "If they want to play adult games then they should suffer adult consequences."

Crime Stoppers Inc. offers rewards of up to $1,000 for information leading to an arrest of persons responsible for crimes. Callers remain anonymous and will be assigned a code number. Call 1-800-445-5227.

Library relinquishes rare book collection

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

They're old, they're not in the public's view and those who knew the most about them are dead.

Those charged with their care have decided that they belong in a place where they will get the attention they need.

"They" are a collection of rare and valuable old books donated to the Grosse Pointe Public Library in the mid-1960s. Since then, they have been housed in the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library meeting room.

"At some point, someone gave the library some rare books," said John Bruce, library board president. "Some libraries see this as prestigious. But the accessibility and utilization of the collection is inadequate. We don't have the space to store or display the books, our security is inadequate to safeguard against theft, defacement and physical deterioration."

In addition, the cost of insuring the books is beyond the library board and the Friends' budget, said Ed Deeb, Friends president.

"We agreed that we don't have the facilities to store these books and that we should get them in the hands of those who do, such as collectors and museums," Deeb said.

The donation of the books was considered a charitable trust, said Tom Nowinski, Friends board member and attorney handling the case, free of charge, in probate court. It is customary in probate court to have the beneficiaries consent to actions taken by trustees, he said.

Since the donation was made when the library was under the jurisdiction of the Grosse Pointe schools, the school board on Aug. 14 and the library board on Aug. 21 both approved waiver and consent agreements to relinquish their rights and responsibilities to the collection.

Deeb said the value of the books has been assessed and the Friends have some prospective buyers. The proceeds will be put into an endowment fund to help assist the library in other ways, he said.

No one directly involved with today's library operations knows the exact history of the books.

"The idea was conceived in the 1950s. Those who know about it are dead," Nowinski said, adding that as far as he knows, if there was an oral history of the collection, it was not passed on and he's not aware of a written history.

Sports doctor to young athletes: Have fun, competition comes later

By Marge Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Dr. Carl L. Stanitski of Grosse Pointe Farms encourages children to participate in sports. He is an orthopedic surgeon who specializes in pediatric and adolescent sports medicine.

His own family includes several outdoorsmen, a lacrosse player, swimmers, hockey and soccer players and a gymnast.

POINTER OF INTEREST

Stanitski is a former marathon runner. He currently participates in several sports: tennis, skiing and some less intensive running. For the last eight years, he has been an outdoorsman, working out two or three times a week at the YMCA in Mount Clemens.

Stanitski's wife Debbie (she's also an orthopedic surgeon) is an equestrienne who competes in dressage, stadium jumping and cross country events.

"But children should start playing sports for fun," Stanitski said. "The goals for younger children should be to learn sport mechanics, or skills. Winning or losing should not be important."

"Later, in middle school and high school, competition will become more of an issue."

Stanitski is chief of orthopedic surgery at Children's Hospital of Michigan and a professor of orthopedic surgery at Wayne State University. He has edited a textbook on pediatric and adolescent sports medicine and recently was selected "Citizen of the Year" by Operation Friendship, a cooperative project of Detroit's public and Catholic high school athletic leagues. He was honored for developing a program through Children's Hospital to provide school athletes with preseason evaluations and to provide coaches' clinics on injury prevention and treatment.

Stanitski grew up in Shamokin, Pa. "It's near nothing," he said. "It's in east central Pennsylvania."

He taught high school physics and coached high school basketball and track before attending medical school at Jefferson Medical College. He completed a residency in orthopedic surgery at the University of Pittsburgh Health Center Hospitals and a fellowship in pediatric orthopedic surgery at Harvard University/Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston and in orthopedic surgery and rehabilitation at the University of Southern California/Rancho Los Amigos Hospital.

He's a former team doctor for the Pittsburgh Penguins.

"I've been interested in scholastic athletes for decades," he said. "Kids are becoming in-involved in sports at younger and younger ages and at higher and higher levels of competition.

"Most kids sports are safe, however."

There are two broad areas of sports injuries, Stanitski said. "Acute injuries are fractures, tears of ligaments or cartilage, sprains. Overuse injuries are things like little league elbow, swimmers' shoulder and tennis elbow. Overuse injuries are often the result of poor sports mechanics or improper training methods because kids are asked to do too much, too soon," he said.

"It's sad to see 7- and 8-year-olds turned off because they're not as good as their peers. They think of themselves as little league failures."

Stanitski said there may be too much focus on children's sports that involve hand-eye coordination. Children without good hand-eye coordination can often participate more successfully in sports like wrestling or swimming.

New developments in surgical techniques such as arthroscopic procedures have been revolutionary, he said. Accelerated rehabilitation programs are also new.

"We used to put children's legs in casts for six weeks, then see what happened. They'd experience atrophy and stiffness and end up walking like 40-year-olds," he said.

Stanitski and his wife Debbie have lived in Grosse Pointe Farms for four years. He likes the proximity to Children's Hospital and they enjoy living in a beautiful community where people can walk to stores and to school, he said.

Stanitski's advice for parents, coaches and children: "The main goals of sports are fun and learning sports skills. Be sure children's equipment is appropriately sized."

"And enjoy."

Dr. Carl L. Stanitski lectures on orthopedic surgery at Wayne State University in addition to being chief of orthopedic surgery at Children's Hospital of Michigan.

Is too much government a local issue?

The local government supposedly is a limited government. It's supposed to be a limited government. But does it apply to the local level?

It's a question that you read in the local news and pondered adopted last week by two different governing bodies in the Woods. It's a question that seems to increase government's jurisdiction at the local level.

Let's look at them one at a time. The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council passed an ordinance making it illegal to operate lawn equipment before 9 a.m. on Sundays.

On days we like to sleep late in the morning, we can sympathize with the sponsors of this proposal. It came, not surprisingly, from Woods resident Soella Knutbe who is running for the city council in November.

The ordinance deals not only with lawn mowers, but with edgers, clippers, leaf blowers and weed-cutters, all of them noisy, too. The use of any and all are now forbidden before 9 a.m. in the Woods.

In a second incident, the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council acting in line with President Clinton's campaign against teen smoking, approved an ordinance banning smoking by students, regardless of age, within 200 feet of any outer-perimeter boundary of school property.

That means that smoking is prohibited on South High School's athletic fields as well as Messner Field on McMillan and Ridge, and Kerby school's athletic field.

In setting such bans, the ordinance merely "expands on the existing state law to prohibit outdoor smoking on school property." Farms public safety director Robert Ferber said.

Will the farms ban create a problem for the City of Grosse Pointe which lacks a similar ban but whose boundary is Fisher Road across the street from South?

Not necessarily, says City public safety director Bruce Kennedy, because "we will continue to enforce the state law."

The third instance of more government in the Pointes came from the school board's approval of a policy that would permit administrators to use "breathalyzers" on high school students reasonably suspected of being under the influence of alcohol.

The board acted despite protests from two South high teens who complained the new policy will "scare" students away from school dances, and students will find some where else to drink.

So let's return to what we said at the beginning. Are these the kind of government actions people are complaining about? We doubt it. In fact, we think all three set reasonable standards of performance for both adults and students.

Radio pays its tribute to J.P.

WJR and 22 other radio stations in Metro Detroit and Windsor shut down at 8:10 a.m. Friday for a moment of silence in honor of J.P. McCarthy, WJR radio's top personality, who died Wednesday.

McCarthy, who led the local radio ratings for 30 years, has been called "virtually irreplaceable." Other observers said his death has changed the "total landscape of morning radio" and has left "a huge void."

The 700 mourners at his services Saturday "formed a family portrait of the broadcaster's varied interests and vast influence," James Tobin wrote in The Sunday Detroit News and Free Press.

Tobin's story went on to list high officials of the Catholic Church, as well as leaders in politics, broadcasting, business and other walks of life who were J.P.'s friends and had often appeared as guests on his radio programs during his three decades at WJR.

McCarthy sometimes seemed to be too cozy with members of the community's establishment whom he interviewed in pursuit of a story, but he also had time for the "little guys" who brought their troubles to him to win sympathy and support.

Whatever the status of the person he was interviewing, McCarthy was congenial and courteous while wasting no time in getting to the heart of the issue at hand and passing along to his audience what he had learned.

At WJR, he will be missed more than anywhere else except at his home. At this writing, nobody has been announced as J.P.'s successor. In fact, nobody can fill his gigantic shoes.

Both political parties in trouble

Both GOP and Democratic leaders took stiff blows last week that complicate the 1996 presidential race.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, the front-runner for the GOP nomination, was unexpectedly tied by Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas in the crazy-quilt Iowa public opinion poll.

It's a ridiculous poll, because anyone who paid $25 could vote, although the Iowa GOP made a handsome profit from its venture.

Yet Gramm now claims that his candidacy, which had been in the doldrums, is back on track, while Dole can just reflect on the hazards of being the GOP front-runner.

The Democratic leadership may have suffered a more serious blow when Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey announced he would not seek re-election, and added he might mount an independent campaign for the presidency.

Bradley, a former Princeton and professional basketball star and a Rhodes scholar, earlier appeared to be on President Clinton's team as a moderate Democrat, and is still highly regarded.

By remaining in the Senate, Bradley could have helped form a constructive and moderate alternative to the GOP's continued move to the right. Instead, as the sixth Democrat to retire, he escapes from what could be a sinking ship.

The New York Times may even have been correct Sunday with this comment: Bradley's departure "foreshadows the end of the Democratic Party as Americans know it today."

Board to ban cash gifts

It was surprising that the Grosse Pointe school district had not banned vendors' cash contributions to the school board earlier, but such an action is better late than never.

The board voted to draft such a ban after newly elected trustee John Mills had raised a question about two $100 PAC contributions the Detroit legal firm of Hill Lewis had made to the incumbents defeated in the recent board election.

Despite the criticism, however, Hill Lewis, the board's legal counsel for more than 20 years, with attorney Doug West being the primary legal counsel, was retained for another year at an increased rate of $161 an hour. Mills, Sears Taylor and Cindy Pangborn voted against the motion.

However, Gloria Kansler, board treasurer and one of the majority who backed retention of Hill Lewis, supported the drafting of a new board bylaw that would prohibit all vendors from making cash contributions to the board.

Her argument on behalf of Hill Lewis was that "it would be wrong to hold a law firm to a policy that didn't exist."

Legally, she's right, but such contributions always have been ethically wrong, in our view.

A view from the sidelines

Lou Gehrig, hero of '30s

When I asked myself why I never worshipped Mickey Mantle as millions of Americans did, I realized that my boyhood baseball idol was Lou Gehrig, a forgotten hero of the Yankees of the 1920s and 1930s.

Along with millions of Americans I wept when Gehrig ended his consecutive game streak at 2,130 in Detroit on May 2, 1939, because of a form of multiple sclerosis that disabled him. The disease killed him only two years later just short of his 39th birthday.

I wept again when he made his final appearance at Yankee stadium and, without mentioning his own illness, said he was "the luckiest man on the face of the earth."

Gentleman Gehrig, one of the first college graduates to make it in the big leagues, never won the public acclaim that came to Mantle and other stars because he was in the same lineup as Babe Ruth. Gehrig, too, was a home run hitter, but he couldn't match the Bambino.

Now Cal Ripkin of Baltimore is scheduled to break Gehrig's consecutive game record in a home game in Baltimore on Sept. 6, 1995, assuming he doesn't miss a game before that date. I have mixed feelings about that prospect.

If Ripkin succeeds, as he is expected to do, will Gehrig sink further back into obscurity without that record?

He shouldn't, in view of what he did for baseball and his fans in his many years with the Yanks.

Too much government

To the Editor:
Whatever happened to common sense and common courtesy?

I read in the Aug. 17 issue of this paper that the City of Grosse Pointe Woods has passed another city ordinance: this one telling the residents that we cannot utilize power lawn equipment until 9 a.m.

As a life-long resident of the Woods, neighbors have always utilized common sense and common courtesy as to when we cut our lawns. Never too early, never too late. Being aware that contractors cannot start their work until 8 a.m., residents have utilized this time as a starting time for when we can work on our lawns.

For the four-plus decades that I've lived here, this procedure had worked. Now, from what I've read, one person wanted this 8 a.m. time changed to 9 a.m. and the council passed an ordinance.

Oh, wait! Now that the lawn services will have to start an hour later in my city, they may still be around when one comes home from work. A time when one may like to have a quiet moment on their patio to unwind from their day. But those blasted lawnmowers may still be in the area. No problem for this present council; they'll just pass another ordinance.

When the rest of the country are trying to get politicians out of their lives, it appears that some of the Woods' residents are unable to cope with city life without government telling them what to do, when to do it and how to do it.

Please, people, let's learn to live and respect one another without government dictates. Not every issue needs to be regulated; let's recognize and respect the sovereignty of the individual. Let's get back to some common sense and to common courtesy.

School tax levy questioned

To the Editor:
On Aug. 28 the board of education will hold a public hearing on the coming year's levy rate for property taxes, presumably at an approximate total of 8.1 mills, i.e., the full amount passed at the June 12 election.

Taxpayers need to seriously consider the following facts and appropriately advise the board of their concerns:

1) Throughout the millage campaign statements were made that it would not be necessary for the board to levy the full amount of the rates requested.

2) The budget, which was approved in June, was based on documents which were replete with errors, including the overstatement of anticipated 1994-95 expenditures in excess of $1 million, which now have been added to available funds for the coming year under the caption "contingency."

3) The Grosse Pointe school system's MEAP results fall far short of those attained by the Forest Hills school system even though it can be clearly documented that on a cost of living adjusted basis, excluding capital expenditures, it spends at least 10 percent more per student.

Unfortunately, the board approved a technology plan which spreads the upgrading of the system over five years. This is unlikely to significantly improve the relative position vis-a-vis other Michigan school systems, but at this point precious little can be done to improve that situation.

United We Stand — not!

To the Editor:
As an active Democrat and supporter of President Clinton, I was thrilled by Ross Perot's staging of the United We Stand conference.

Among the perhaps unintended consequences of the event (one can never be absolutely certain of Mr. Perot's real objectives) is that it exposed the wide-ranging ideological divisions in the Republican ranks and sent DWR constituencies scattering as well.

A large primary field inevitably weakens party unity. The GOP platform and ticket will, undoubtedly, be hotly contested, leaving party chairman Haley Barbour with the impossible task of placating all the disparate factions.

Historically, the outcome of such scenarios is that large blocks of party activists simply opt to "sit out" a campaign. The diminished organizational strength which ensues finds the candidates themselves as ultimate victims.

The electoral bygonies of both parties are uttered with case studies wherein margins of victory became the casualties of interne-cine crusades.

These internal divides are the Republicans' Achilles heel. Mr. Perot may have exacerbated it by providing a forum for another round of "divide and conquer" en route to the primaries.

Meanwhile, it is a given that any moderately credible independent or third party candidate would de facto ensure Clinton's re-elections. Andy Brodhead

First thing — kill all the spiders

As I leaned out my front door on a recent morning to retrieve the newspaper from the porch, I peripherally noticed a tangle of white silk.

I looked down and saw stretched across the space between the patio fence and the brick face on the front of my condo, a massive, dense spider web.

Entangled in the sticky strings were several leaves fallen from trees overhead and in the corner — unmoving but very much alive and waiting — a black-and-brown-striped wolf spider.

My heart jumped. Instinctively I wanted to grab a broom and jam the tip of the handle into the corner where the speedy spider would predictably retreat. I wanted to crush it now a rusty plug but I let it go. It's all part of a new goal I've made for myself to overcome my phobia of spiders and other eight-legged creatures. I'm doing this for my daughter, because I've learned phobias and other irrational behaviors are learned and not innate. Whether she's ensnared or repulsed by spiders, I want it to be her decision and I want none of the blame.

Lately, when I see a spider dangling in the light fixture, lurking in a corner or otherwise zigging and zagging across the carpet, I bite my tongue, take a deep breath and either quickly kill and dispose of it, or in supremely brave moments, turn away and go about my business.

In order to put these reactions in perspective, you have to realize how far I have come.

Exhibit A: Sometime in the late 1970s I witness a spider the size of a small toad crossing a dirt road in a wilderness camp in northwest Michigan. Its brown humped back undulating as it hobbles through the dirt. I lean closer to the ground and discover the six-spider is actually chaulfleuring thousands of her brood on her back. Whatever I was before that moment I was forever after an arachnophobe.

Exhibit B: Strange, crab-like spiders inhabit the screened-in back porch at my parents' house. You creeped out to actually get within a foot of these things. I begin burning them with fireplace matches. Once, my brother and I firebombed them with a can of aerosol hairspray and a cigarette lighter a la "Beavis and Butt-head." Not a proud moment, especially when you consider what that does to a paint job.

Things got so bad that I once chased a wolf spider around my parents' basement with a sledgehammer in hand. I missed the spider but managed to chip some chunks out of the concrete floor.

Exhibit C: In an early attempt to overcome my fears, I trap an unusual spider found in my mother's kitchen. I keep it in a pickle jar and look at it for a week. It's about the size of a thumbnail, covered with a black fuzz, with bright red marks resembling a miniature tarantula. It does nothing but drag itself in circles around the circumference of the jar, occasionally lifting its two front legs over its head and waving its legs. I've never seen anything like it before. I've never seen anything like it before. I've never seen anything like it before. I've never seen anything like it before. I've never seen anything like it before.

It's all part of a new goal I've made for myself to overcome my phobia of spiders and other eight-legged creatures. I'm doing this for my daughter, because I've learned phobias and other irrational behaviors are learned and not innate.

I looked outside my door this morning and the wolf spider was still there. In fact, by the looks of things, several of his brethren have taken up residence.

I looked the other way, vowed to hide this column from my daughter, but made a note to keep a rolled-up paper handy. You never know when you'll run into a brown recluse.

A new tack on parties

It was one of those weekend dinner gatherings that makes the Land of Pink and Green the envy of the civilized world (and maybe even certain parts of Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills).

At the Saturday, Aug. 12, affair at their Westchester Road home, hosts Dick and Marge Cameron spared no expense to set that special tone.

In the words of Joe Trowern, there was only one word to describe it: "Tacky," said Joe, revealing the whole thing was a put-on to show Pointers can laugh at themselves. "We wanted to spoof the conservative image we have, so our dinner group decided to throw a Tacky Party."

At first Joe had a little trouble with the concept. "When I heard about it, I had to ask my wife, Nancy, what 'tacky' was," he admitted. "She looked at me and said it was the way I dressed all the time."

Attire for the occasion ran to polyester, with tank tops, blue jeans, white socks for men, leisure suits, bolo ties and combat boots, and, of course, oodles of jewelry. The hors d'oeuvres included Vienna sausage stew, Spam, and Cheez-Whiz on saltines.

Normalcy was temporarily restored after the appetizers, when the group settled down to a thoroughly enjoyable "delicious, real dinner."

Well, that just about does it — oh, wait, I almost forgot the guests: They were Georgia Brand, of East Lansing; Carol and Bill Carleton, of the Farms; Mary and Bill Herbert, of the Park; Jean and Don Harbold, Pointers until they moved to Traverse City in February; and the Park's Trowerns.

So, will the Tacky Party concept become an annual thing? "Probably not," says Nancy. One of the group's real fears was being seen around town dressed in polyester, tank tops, blue jeans, white socks, leisure suits...

Thanks from Madagascar

Pointers responded to an appeal made here back in May to send him English textbooks and now Al Ament (South High Class of '85) sends many thanks from 9,000 miles away in an island country off the coast of South Africa.

Organized by South High Foreign Exchange Club president Erin Patrick, the drive netted over 300 hard-cover books which the club used its own funds to mail.

"You are very generous... to have collected the books," writes Al. "You will be helping to put into place the English Center of Alaotra, a resource center for some 70 English teachers, thousands of students and many, many people enthusiastic about improving their language skills."

Al is about to complete a two-year stint in the Peace Corps, where he volunteered to set up the library for an English school.

"As I sign off, I have to tell you how proud I am of South's contribution and of all the work done by the individuals concerned," Al says. "It shows a cooperation and concern that is so badly needed in today's tumultuous world... it simply affirms what I've known and felt since I was a young boy: There are some very dynamic people in the Grosse Pointes."

Janice, you did it again!

In her 45 years Janice Lee Wedge, of the Woods, has had to deal with more cares than the first 45 people you stand to meet on the street, but she just keeps on overcoming them and serving as an inspiration for the rest of us.

Since being born with a blood incompatibility to her mother's which resulted in brain damage, Janice has undergone over a dozen operations for a host of problems and also survived many bouts with pneumonia.

Despite all this, she graduated from Osborn High School as a member of the National Honor Society with final exam grades of 98 in psychology and 94 in economics.

She has used an electric wheelchair for 16 years now, and has been taking college correspondence courses via video cassette. "Janice does her homework on her computer with the one finger she can use," says her mother, Catherine Wedge, of Blairmoor Court.

This past May, after 10 years of work, Janice Lee Wedge received her Associate of Arts in Religion degree from Liberty University School of Lifelong Learning in Lynchburg, Va., graduating with honor and a 3.7 average.

All bets off in dysfunctional society

A letter from my sister asks if all my friends seem to be in crisis.

"Three of my good friends are all next to dysfunctional due to catastrophic situations at home with mates or children," she writes. "My women's group is made up of people seemingly paralyzed by emotional traumas. What's going on?"

Hmmm. As if I knew. I am reminded of a cartoon illustrating a convention for functional families. Two people are sitting in the middle of an otherwise empty auditorium.

There have certainly been times when all my acquaintances seemed to be in crisis. Right now they're all on vacation instead.

My circle of friends has, over the years, included victims of sexual abuse, false memory syndrome, emotional abandonment, AIDS — both the trauma of dying of it and the guilt of surviving it. Drug abuse, alcoholism, lack of self-esteem, perfectionism, workaholism, stress, nymphomania. Infertility, suicide, depression, child abuse.

In other words, your garden variety collection of modern humans, trying to deal with incomprehensible changes as a society based on the Industrial Revolution writhes in its death throes and something new and unknown struggles to be born.

Yikes. But are they dysfunctional? The problems they face are nothing new. If anything, life was once far crueler than it is now. Something has changed, though: People no longer hide their problems from the world — or from themselves.

It's probably healthy, and it's certainly messy. In the old days, not just scandals, but even disease was hushed up. People used to whisper the word "cancer," as if it were shameful or catching.

It was important to keep up appearances and present a facade of normality to the outside world. And in the process of carrying on as if nothing were wrong, people bottled their problems inside, keeping a stiff upper lip, chin up, grinning and bearing it.

You probably learned all that as a kid. I know I did. It kept you from looking and acting dysfunctional. But I'm not so sure it kept you from being dysfunctional. It isolated your everyday, outward life from your inner feelings. Maybe it led to feelings of alienation. Certainly it led to being out of touch with yourself.

Today, being in touch with your feelings is the single most important aspect of emotional/mental health. Whether it's healthy to blab about it everywhere is debatable.

A supportive women's group is, however, just the kind of place where it feels safe to air one's fears and inadequacies. But what my sister is getting at, I'm sure, is not whether there are more problems or people are talking about them more, but whether people are having more trouble coping with them.

And that's where the end-of-the-millennium stuff comes in.

Yes, speaking anecdotally from my admittedly sheltered perspective, I do think people are losing it. I think it's temporary (like, maybe, a generation), and it isn't happening to everybody, but it is happening.

It's happening because society is changing in ways that no one can predict yet. Some examples:

- Americans thought they had some kind of guarantee that their material life would just keep getting more and more comfortable. With wages in a perceived decline and jobs looking precarious, all bets now seem to be off. People are wondering just what the American Dream really means and if they can still salvage some of it.

- If corporations continue downsizing, what does that mean for the immediate future? In larger terms, if the new post-industrial age means corporations will no longer provide the livelihood of most people, then what will we do to support ourselves economically? Society will clearly look different — and without that kind of economic support, life will look riskier. Americans don't like risk.

- A widespread feeling exists that many of our institutions don't work. We don't trust our government, we feel schools let their students down, we're afraid on our own streets, as a society we are currently extremely conflicted over whether to embrace or flee from the coming era of internationalism. Whew!

That's it in a nutshell: Risk and uncertainty are making us crazy. Thanks for asking.

Cruisin' North Woodward: The Wigwam's gone and we're the old guys

Bob Lienert was an important mentor to me at Automotive News where he was editor for most of the years I toiled there. He had a number of rules of writing and logic which became ingrained in me, including this one:

Woodward late in the afternoon in a friend's red and cream '54 Chevrolet Bel Air. I will ignore Lienert's law and assume it will happen again. If the goal was to bring a lot of traffic to North Woodward, it was a stunning success.

Concours d'Elegance, we see the great automobiles of this century in elegant settings.

It was fun to see the automobiles of our youth out in traffic (and heavy traffic, at that) in their natural habitat. These were not the Packards, Lincolns, Pierce-Arrows, Mercedes-Benz and Duesenbergs we see at the shows. They were the cars we drove, mostly the Fords, Chevrolets and Plymouths, Hudsons and Nashes, Mercurys and Dodges that the young set actually cruised in.

The real allure of an outing like the Dream Cruise is, of course, nostalgia. And the old cheapos aroused strong feelings of nostalgia. The classics are beautiful, but do not arouse nostalgia, because for most of us they were not the cars of our youth. I never saw a Pierce-Arrow until I was in my 50s and I never heard of Duesenberg until Tom Monaghan bought one. As a teenager and young guy, I wouldn't have known a Bugatti from a Ruxton (both spectacularly beautiful classics; I'm not knocking them).

One of the things I really like about the '54 Chevy we were driving is that it delights so many people whose parents or friends' parents owned one or who say "that was the first car I ever owned."

We pulled into a bank parking lot to take a closer look at the hundreds of cars from the '30s, '40s, '50s and '60s, many like new, many customized, some hot rods. In the traffic jam on the way to that bank lot somewhere south of 12 Mile, the Chevy began overheating, but it stayed out of the danger zone until we could get moving again and cool it off.

One of the things that attracted us to that lot was a cloud of steam pouring out of somebody's car. I must admit to a nasty delight to discover that it was not an oldtimer billowing vapor, but a late-model Ferrari.

As we got out of the Chevy, See AUTOS, page 12A a man walked over to us. "My first car was just like this," he said. "It was even the same color." His day had been made. So was ours.

There were really two different eras of cruisin' on North Woodward and other strips and both were well represented at the cruise.

First came the hot rodders, a subculture born right after World War II, made up of young guys who loved cars

By Richard Wright

Don't use the term "first annual" something or other. It only becomes "annual" if it happens again next year.

So I was dubious about the "First Annual Remember Woodward Dream Cruise" sponsored last Saturday by the communities of Ferndale, Huntington Woods, Pleasant Ridge, Berkley, Royal Oak and Birmingham.

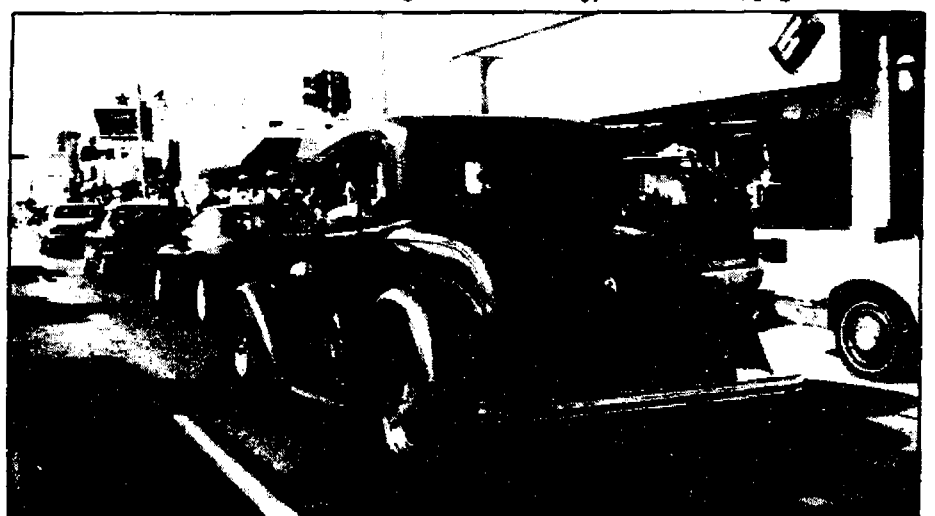

But after cruising

(Bob Lienert is late of this world, but while he was here he not only mentored another generation of auto writers, he also fathered one, Grosse Pointe Paul Lienert and Jean Lindsmood, of Automobile magazine.)

The Dream Cruise was a unique automotive experience. At shows such as the Eyes on Classic Design and the Meadow Brook

This mean-looking custom coupe began life as a '41 Willys American.

Traffic was heavy in Ferndale Saturday, and unusual: a modified early-'30s Ford nears Nine Mile Road.

but didn't think they were fast enough. The rodders "hopped up" just about any make of car, as long as they could afford them.

Fords of '30s and '40s vintage were the favorites because these were the cheapest V-8s available. But it wasn't all power and performance. The art of car customizing also flourished and often it was hard to tell what kind of car a rod had been when it started out.

Parked along Woodward was a sleek, rounded deep purple coupe with a curved toothy grille along the bottom of the front. "Did this start out as a Willys?" I asked the owner. "Yes," he said, obviously pleased that someone recognized his Willys even through the heavy makeup.

Detroit took note of the burgeoning hot-rod culture in the '50s. Chrysler unveiled its "hemi" V-8 and Chevrolet introduced its first high-compression V-8. In the early '60s, Pontiac brought out the GTO and Ford introduced the V-8 Mustang. Soon all the makers were selling "muscle cars."

These cars had enormous appeal to the generation of baby boomers just coming of automotive age and cruising really got big. They didn't have to build their own cars. Ford, Chevy, Pontiac and Chrysler would do it.

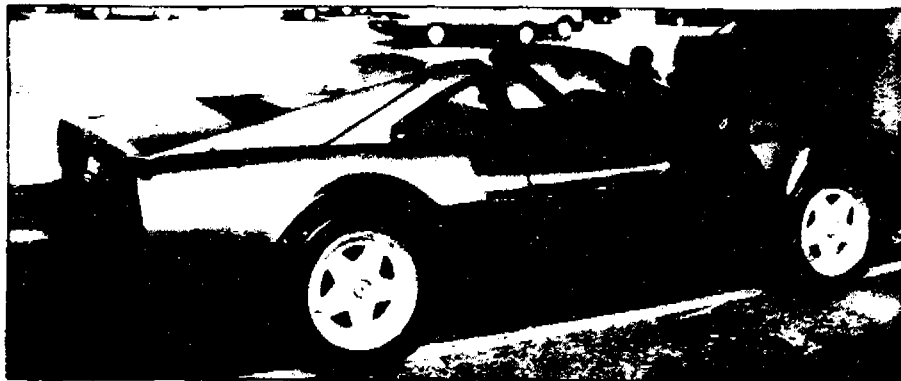

North Woodward was only one of the cruisin' strips around the area, but it was the most popular. The Totem Pole, Maverick's, the Wigwam and Ted's Driveway were favored pit stops.

The communities along North Woodward were not so happy with the swarms of young folks who used the street as a staging ground for racing, but mostly as a place to meet other young folks.

It all came to an end in 1973 when the oil embargo skyrocketed the price of fuel and the boomers drifted off to adult pursuits.

Everyone seemed delighted to see them back last weekend.

In contrast to the oldies was this Ferrari, which overhauled in the cruisin' traffic.

Driver ed needs overhaul

Driver education needs to be reinvented," advises a new report from the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

Traditional driver education methods teach teens how to get licenses, but do little to reduce crashes. The AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety recommends that young drivers be taught a broad-based curriculum that focuses more on safe driving attitudes and behavior than on basic skills.

"We're letting our kids down... we're not doing enough and it's time to do more," said AAA Michigan vice president corporate relations Larry Givens. "Fifteen- to 20-year-olds account for nearly 15 percent of all driver fatalities, but make up only 7 percent of all licensed drivers."

According to Givens, the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety report supports findings released by AAA Michigan in its study released earlier this year, "Portrait of a Young Driver."

Both studies confirm what many have known all along: Young drivers are at a much greater risk for crash-related death or injury than the general population; driver education efforts must be enhanced to provide more on-road experience; feelings of "invulnerability" among young drivers are responsible for risky behavior behind the wheel and alcohol use among teens is at an all-time high.

"Teenagers are inexperienced and do not have the ability to perceive risks appropriately," added David Willis, executive director of the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety. "According to the National Safety Council, 10-year-olds have 40 crashes per 100 licensed drivers each year, compared with a rate of nine crashes per licensed driver in the 45- to 54-year-old age group."

J.P. — we didn't appreciate you enough while you were here

Joseph M. Callahan
Special Writer

Most of us didn't realize what a great guy we had in our midst until WJR's J.P. McCarthy suddenly died on Aug. 16, probably at the peak of his success.

I didn't realize this when I first met J.P. 25 years ago after being named WJR's automotive commentator. Nor did I really appreciate his greatness in the following quarter century during which I had quite a number of encounters with him.

Looking back, I can now recall and treasure many of these encounters which were of several varieties.

J.P. interviewed me on the air seven or eight times. In recent years I talked to him from Normandy Beach in 1994 and 1984 on the 50th and 40th anniversary of D-Day, respectively. He apparently was interested in the fact that I was the skipper of a small landing craft that hit Gold Beach at 11:30 a.m. that day.

In many other years, he or his producer would call me on June 6 to reminisce about D-Day. As I recall, I usually made almost identical reports unless I remembered something different.

On a few occasions he invited me to his "Focus" program to talk about something going on in the auto industry. The last time I shared the program with feminist Gloria Steinem, a very articulate but not entirely persuasive lady.

Since my Automotive Industries office was also in the Fisher Building, I often encountered J.P. — now the legend — as he was scooting out of his office or the building. I was sure he was headed to a golf course or Lake St. Clair, although now they say he was going home for lunch with his wife, Judy.

I taped my 4,500 nightly programs between 1970 and 1987 in old Studio D on the 21st floor where J.P. originated his programs for many years before moving to a new studio on the 22nd floor.

One of my most vivid recollections was being in Studio D when J.P. interviewed an old friend of mine, the controversial but fascinating John DeLorean, the former GM executive.

On another occasion, J.P. and I had a chat about my favorite weekly J.P. program — "What's Bothering You." He acknowledged that it was getting a favorable reaction but said he didn't like the negativism these programs elicited.

This reflected one of his great qualities, a desire to be upbeat and cheerful as much as possible.

Although J.P. started out as a mere disc jockey, he became one of America's greatest reporters. A major advantage of these encounters with McCarthy was the opportunity to learn about his interviewing technique. But this was not a great discovery.

It was based on being extremely well informed, being curious, treating everyone respectfully and being gutsy enough to ask the good, tough question at the right moment.

His breadth of interest was slightly incredible. Although obsessed with golf and boating, he totally amazed me one day when he displayed a substantial knowledge of women's clothing styles.

J.P. acknowledged one day that his greatest disappointment was not being given a chance to host ABC's "Good Morning America" program. This was that network's biggest mistake, in my opinion. I have a vision of J.P. fascinating the nation on that program with his great ability to reach out and get interviews with the important people across the nation and even around the world.

Because of his intelligence, curiosity and fairness, J.P. had what every reporter wants and needs — access to the movers and shakers. J.P. had far more access than anybody else and this resulted in a larger, more influential audience than anyone else.

Of all my encounters with J.P. McCarthy the most valuable one and one that hundreds of thousands of others shared was to begin each morning listening to him and learning from him. Especially valuable and fascinating were his noon-hour "Focus" shows which he withdrew from a couple years ago after Rush Limbaugh became so popular on WXYT. This was arguably J.P.'s greatest setback.

A popular saying is that "anybody can be replaced." But, amazingly, that young disc jockey who came back from Alaska after serving in the Army is truly irreplaceable.

Tales of the transom

There are people in our lives who lend varying attributes to a relationship. Some make us laugh, some challenge us intellectually, some are just fun to be with, others are good travel companions and make you feel good. Recently I had lunch with a dear friend who is occasionally as silly as I am. We always have fun and laughter punctuates our times together.

This particular afternoon we decided to drive out to the lake to try a restaurant near the water. The long entrance-way to our destination was the trigger for an uproarious discovery. Boats of all descriptions lined the drive, most with their sterns pointed at us, affording us a view of the names the owners had chosen.

Many of the names were obviously honoring some family member or an earlier boat, as evidenced by the IIs, IIIs and IVs after the names. Others announced an identity or state of mind. Examples of some of these would include: Moonlight Gambler, Insanity, Kingfish, Spin Doctor, Therapy, Raven, Pure Pleasure, Pier Pleasure, Precarious, Trophy, Liberator, Escape, Temptress, Fortuitous, Time Out, Patriot, etc.

Still others made personal statements as in Satisfaction, Paper Profits, Material Girl, Rent's Due, Current Affair, Smiling Back, Big Change, You'll Never Know, Non-Stop Bob, It's Business, Come Along, Liquid Condo, Margin Call and, my personal favorite, She Got the House.

Those who were a tad frisky had fun identifying their watercraft with double entendre monikers including Sweet Cheeks, Insatiable, Our Way and Midnight Mary to name a few of the tamer ones.

My imagination took off and I found myself making up a story using some of the names I had seen. I pictured a rendezvous at sea that might go something like this: After "She Got the House" and he moved to his "Liquid Condo," he was in for a "Big Change." It was "Time Out" for some "Pure Pleasure." He called his friends "Non-Stop-Bob," "Spin Doctor," "Kingfish" and the "Midnight Gambler." They decided to have a little "Escape" party and wanted to include "Sweet Cheeks" and "Midnight Mary."

You get the picture. This is a family newspaper and I'll leave you to finish this little tale for yourselves. It might even be a good party game.

I wonder, is this tendency to transfer our wishes, feelings, etc., of any significance? I'll leave the revelations, if any, to the professionals. However, my friend and I had a swell time driving up and down the rows of boats and trying to top each other with the most creative and the possibilities for their existence. Occasionally it feels good to do something spontaneously, just for the fun of it. We agree.

BLOWING A (HEAD) GASKET

A rough idle and misfiring are sometimes indicative of a blown head gasket. This is the gasket that seals the combustion chamber of each cylinder between the cylinder head and the engine block. In the event that the gasket fails at the narrow area between cylinders, compression will be lost and engine misfire will result. The cause of head gasket failure may be engine overheating or localized cylinder head overheating, which may cause the head to warp. Whatever the cause, it should be located. In the event that localized overheating of the cylinder head is to blame, it may be caused by obstructed coolant passages in the head gasket, the engine block, or the head itself. If so, neither the radiator nor the temperature light will display symptoms that indicate future failure.

While blowing a head gasket is not a car problem anyone wants to deal with, if it happens to you, consult the experts. At RINKE TOYOTA, your safety is our concern and our pleasure to ensure. You can find us at 25420 Van Dyke. Phone: 758-2000. Hours: Mon. & Thurs. 7:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m., Tues. & Wed. 7-7, Fri. 7-5, closed Sat. and Sun. If our customer thinks something is wrong, we make it right.

New Arrivals of 1995

The Grosse Pointe News and The Connection Newspapers are planning a special edition featuring the babies of the past year. We hope you (and the little one) will participate by supplying us with a recent photograph of your child (only 1995 babies, please) for use in this section.

This tabloid section will be published in January, 1996. Your child's picture, along with other 1995 area babies, will be the main attraction. News and advertising about clothing, feeding, educating and caring for your child will also be included. It will be very informative as well as a commemorative edition for you!

Please send a cute, clear photo (color or black & white, home or studio produced, preferably smaller than a 5x7) to The Grosse Pointe News & The Connection, 96 Kercheval Grosse Pointe Farms Michigan 48236. Attention: Display Advertising. Complete the information slip with your child's full name, date of birth and hospital and return it with your photo. Please print your name on the back of the photo so you can pick it up at our office after printing.

Your picture must be received in our office no later than Friday, December 22nd, and earlier would assist our production schedule. (Late November and December birth photos may be submitted until January 6, 1996.)

We look forward to producing our annual "Baby Edition" and are sure you want your little one included. A limited number of extra copies will be available to give to family and friends.

The Grosse Pointe News & The Connection requires a $8.00 fee to cover production costs. Please include a check, money order or credit card number with your photo.

Elms

elm removals are almost double from a year ago with 32 trees lost so far this year, but less than half of the 68 private elms that were lost in 1990.

The Farms has had 12 public elms removed this year, compared with 14 in 1994.

In 1993, the Shores had 200 elms; 15 have been removed since then and three more are diseased and may also be removed, Irish said.

The Shores is the only one of the Pointes that still sprays trees to fight Dutch elm disease.

"We spray methoxychlor twice a year and monitor trees on public property to see if there are any infected trees," Irish said. "If a tree has a symptom of the disease, we will take a sample of the infected area."

"With Dutch elm disease, there is a butterscotch-colored streak in the tissue beneath the bark. If we can prune out the infection, we will do that. Otherwise, we'll have to take down the tree."

The Woods does not spray or inject trees, but keeps a close eye on developing problems.

"We monitor trees on a weekly basis," said Joe Shock of the public works department. "The city is divided into eight districts. Each year trees in one of the districts are trimmed."

Homeowners have the option of injecting or spraying trees (with neighbor approval), "but we'd prefer they don't spray," Shock said.

The Park does not spray trees at all, Colter said.

"Public opinion is against spraying," he said. "The city doesn't inject trees, but we make Arbortech (a fungus control) available to residents."

At the urging of a citizens group, the Farms discontinued its use of the mandatory spraying of methoxychlor, although residents may spray trees on private property with neighbor approval.

"We make surveys of the city of both public and private trees," DaFoe said. "With trees on private property, we will tell a homeowner to prune off the diseased part. With city trees, our contractor will also cut off the infected part."

The City of Grosse Pointe does not spray or inject trees.

"We do active trimming, sanitizing and removing diseased trees," said City administrative assistant Brian Murphy. "We have a fungicide available for citizens to use. If someone wants to spray a tree, they need the approval of their neighbors."

Environmental concerns and liability questions have caused some communities to take a reactive approach, rather than spraying and injecting, to combatting Dutch elm disease.

Murphy said that each fall, replacement hardwood trees are planted near spots where elms have been removed.

"We try to variate the types of trees we plant," he said. "The last thing the city wants to have is another disease taking all of the same types of tree again."

Park gets same-day trash, recyclable pick-up

By Jim Stockford
Staff Writer

It's an idea whose time has come. The Grosse Pointe Park City Council last week approved spending $24,000 to coordinate trash pickups with recycling and compost pickups.

"The schedule for the picking up of compost and recyclables will be affected by this new schedule," said city manager Dale Krajniak. "Previously those items were picked up by an independent contractor on Wednesdays and Thursdays, depending on what street a resident lives on. They will now be picked up on the same day trash is picked up."

So if a resident's trash is picked up on Friday, his recyclables and his compost will be picked up the same day, said Krajniak.

The new service begins the first week in September, Krajniak said. But because Monday, Sept. 4, is Labor Day, trash pickup begins on Tuesday of that week.

"One of the reasons we are doing this is because when there was a holiday on Mondays, schedules for trash pickups are changed, but not for recycling," Krajniak said. "This confused people, and they often ended up having their recyclables and compost on the curb for a long time because they would put them out a day later, meaning they weren't picked up until the next week."

The reason for the confusion, said Krajniak, was that trash pick-up takes place Monday through Friday, depending on where you live, so losing a Monday pick-up throws that schedule off. Recycling and compost pick-ups take place on Wednesdays and Thursdays, so a Monday holiday doesn't affect that schedule.

The Park uses two contractors to handle refuse and recycling, Krajniak said. Efficient Sanitation handles the refuse part. Tringali Sanitation collects recyclables and compost.

"The Park, along with Grosse Pointe City, Farms, Shores and Harper Woods, uses Tringali," Krajniak said. "Because Tringali handles all the cities, each city gets a better rate through economies of scale. It will cost the city extra to have Tringali develop a special schedule just for the Park."

The cost is $470 a week, or about $24,000 a year, said Krajniak. The city recently renegotiated its refuse pickup contract, saving the city over $30,000 a year.

"This rebid of the refuse contract has allowed us to modify our recycling pick-up schedule without incurring additional direct costs to residents," Krajniak said. "We will still require compost to be placed in a clear plastic bag or an open container."

Pain may be eliminated for millions
(SPECIAL)—The Federal Government has approved a drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain. The material has been included in the formula for a new product known as "Arthar Itis..." and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthar Itis... relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthar Itis... is an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work. Use only as directed.

Bonnie Sue Oliver

Bonnie Sue Oliver, 66, of Grosse Pointe Woods, died of cancer at St. John Hospital in Detroit on Monday, Aug. 19, 1996. She was born in Detroit and was a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods for 30 years. She was a member of the Grosse Pointe Woods Church and the Grosse Pointe Woods Garden Club. She was preceded in death by her husband, Robert Oliver, in 1987.

Bonnie Sue Oliver

Born in Detroit, Mrs. Oliver was a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods.

She attended Wayne State University and worked at St. John Hospital in the physician referral department.

Mrs. Oliver battled her illness while inspiring others. Throughout her long fight with breast cancer, as throughout her life, she touched the lives of all that knew her and inspired others through her positive attitude and wonderful sense of humor.

Mrs. Oliver will be missed by her family and many friends. The love for her was evidenced by the vast amount of friends and family who visited her throughout her lifetime and, most importantly, during her illness. The flowers, cards and kind words she received were symbols of everyone's love for her.

She is survived by her husband, George Oliver; two sons, Daryl and Ryan; her mother, Gladys Anderson; and a sister, Lynn Frech. She was predeceased by her father, Frank P. Anderson.

Interment is at Oakview Cemetery in Royal Oak.

Arrangements were made by the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Sheila MacLean Schollenberger

A gathering of family and friends will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 26, at Excalibur

Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods. Mrs. MacLean-Schollenberger was born in Detroit on Monday, Aug. 21, 1908, at her home in Burt Road.

A former resident of Grosse Pointe Park, Mrs. Schollenberger was a 1927 graduate of Grosse Pointe High School.

She enjoyed gardening and cooking.

Mrs. Schollenberger is survived by her husband, Bud Schollenberger, two sisters,

Sheila MacLean Schollenberger

Marcia MacLean-Smith and Janice MacLean; and two brothers, Brian and Kelley MacLean.

Memorial contributions may be made to Saginaw Hospice or to Wertz Cancer Center in Detroit.

William S. Fiscus

Services were held Wednesday, Aug. 23, at the Chas. Verheyden Inc. Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park for William S. Fiscus, 66, who died of complications from emphysema Saturday, Aug. 19, 1996, at Munson Hospital in Traverse City.

Born in Leechburg, Pa., Mr. Fiscus was a resident of Grosse Pointe Park.

He personified service, commitment and loyalty. He joined Detroit Boy Scout Troop 244 when he was 12 years old. He quickly earned his Eagle rank and went on to become a leader and Scout Master, a position he maintained until his death.

Among his many awards, Mr. Fiscus was honored with the Silver Beaver Award for distinguished commitment to lifetime service in the Boy Scouts. Every Monday night for the last 56 years, he rarely missed a night at the east side Detroit meetings.

Mr. Fiscus became interested in coins and stamps at an early age when his father gave him a starter collection. He opened Coins & Stamps Inc. on Mack in the City of Grosse Pointe in 1958 and spent every Thursday afternoon and many odd evenings and weekends there as long as anyone can remember.

Mr. Fiscus served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. He remained active in the naval reserves until eight years ago, when he retired as a captain.

He spent two years at Purdue University before enlisting in the Navy. He received his degree in metallurgy from Michigan State College in 1950.

Mr. Fiscus immediately joined Haron Steel Co. in Detroit, a company his father had founded. He was vice president of sales at his death.

"Most of his customers have been with him 30 years or more," said his wife, Letty. "They were like family to him. You should see our house at Christmas time. There would be hundreds of boxes that needed to be wrapped. The whole family participated. He loved his customers and they loved him. He never really regarded what he did for a living as work."

Mr. Fiscus was a total participant in life. He never rested, he always had more to do. Besides all of his other activities and hobbies, he cherished his involvement with his fraternity, Sigma Alpha Epsilon. To many people involved in the organization, especially in Detroit, Mr. Fiscus was Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

He had been a fully active member for more than 47 years. His awards included The Order of the Phoenix and he was the youngest recipient of the fraternity's Distinguished Service Award. He was treasurer of the organization. He was a member of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, where he was a former deacon, a lifetime member of the Detroit Yacht Club, a member of the commandery of the Masonic Temple, Acacia Lodge and a participant in the Grosse Pointe Numismatic Association.

Mr. Fiscus was an incredible example of life lived to its fullest. His shoes will be impossible to fill.

Despite his full and busy life, Mr. Fiscus was a loving and active participant in the lives of his children and grandchildren. They were his greatest joys of all. He was always reaching into his coat pocket for the most recent photos to show off.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Fiscus is survived by two daughters, Lori Prickett and Karen Bacon; two sons, James Ivan and William S. Fiscus III; and five grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Boy Scouts of America, 1776 W. Warren, Detroit, Mich. 48206 or to the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Endowment Fund, 1856 Sheridan Road, Evanston, Ill. 60201.

up to 60 months

Apply by phone to get things rolling quickly.

Our car loans are loaded with attractive features. A sticker shock absorber comes standard: a low 8.9% APR fixed rate for new cars, good for any available term up to 60 months.*

Maintenance is low—you can apply toll-free by phone or visit any of our nearly 200 branches. And selection is high. This special rate also applies to RV and boat loans. And we've lowered rates for used cars and used RVs, too.

We'll even throw in an additional 1/2% discount on any loan if you arrange automatic payment from a Michigan National Bank checking or savings account.

There's an important safety feature, too. The peace of mind you enjoy from dealing with a financial institution that's been around for more than 50 years. It's always nice to ride with someone you trust, don't you think?

You must apply by August 31, so call now. To avoid sticker shock, stick with us.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

In these controversial times when there is so much discussion of adjustments and/or cuts in Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid, those social bulwarks that are the fortresses of many older citizens who depend on these entitlements for a happier and healthier retirement, it has become increasingly important to keep up with the news and views of possible candidates for public office, their qualifications and priorities.

Older Americans represent a major chunk of the voting population. As a group, they can, by being enlightened voters, protect what they have and keep their benefits in line with the economy.

Fair and concerned legislation will become increasingly important in view of what appears to be a trend toward a critical view of benefits received now by older citizens. Never mind that many live at the poverty level, and that even those with private pensions are finding it difficult to maintain themselves. There are dissenters who believe that too much is being done for the older population.

Be that as it may, young people have many years ahead to better their lot. All that older people have is the here and now.

Implicit in such arguments against benefits for senior citizens is the rising rate of Social Security taxes. It is true that the increasing number of older citizens and the decline in the ranks of younger workers put a strain on Social Security. But it is also true that older citizens are not the only beneficiaries of Social Security.

The support of dependent children is an example. This excellent benefit comes out of Social Security funds. Such a benefit is right and proper. The only question that might be asked is: Should such benefits come from Social Security or would it be better if they came from a tax-supported fund?

Another factor which critics of old-age benefits might consider is that if benefits for retirees are seriously cut, families might have to support them. This is not a happy proposition to ponder. Such a situation would be demeaning to older people and place a burden on the young generation who in inflationary times have a difficult time supporting themselves and their families, even with both spouses working.

It's better for all to contribute to Social Security while working toward ways and means of creative funding and more efficient disbursements of funds, but not curtailment.

Another concern of older citizens is funding of schools. Bond issues and millages for schools are not always approved. There is no doubt that schools need additional support. But taxes on older people are becoming excessive and burdensome. When it comes to older taxpayers who vote against increases, shouldn't the question be asked: All their working years they have built and supported schools, shouldn't they have a tax break now in view of curtailed incomes?

Perhaps both schools and older citizens would get a better break if school taxes were tied to income rather than property value. There are older affluent citizens who could afford to contribute more to education, but it seems unfair to make it difficult for those with less to hang onto their homes because of increased taxes. It is a touchy subject but one that needs exploration, consideration and a new solution.

Problems, no matter how urgent, are never pleasant to face. Wrestling with them makes one feel like the customer who enters a restaurant and says, "I need a bowl of soup and a few kind words." When the waitress brings the order she says, "Don't eat the soup."

It's not very cheering, but the alternative is to supply your own soup.

Pointers are logging on to computers

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The introduction of Windows 95 is supposed to make computers more accessible to the public than ever before. But for many Grosse Pointers, the computer age arrived a long time ago.

Eric Dubiel of Pointe Consulting, a computer consulting firm in Grosse Pointe Woods said that computers are used heavily by Grosse Pointe businesses.

Charlene Chesley, operations manager of Roney & Co. on the Hill, said that in the 26 years she's been in the stock brokerage business, computers have changed the way they operate.

"In the old days in order to make a stock purchase on behalf of a customer, we had to use a teletype to contact the downtown Detroit office," said Chesley. "They in turn contacted New York via teletype to make the order. New York then teletyped back confirming the purchase, and Detroit then teletyped the branch office. It was done quickly, but not as quick as now."

These days, the branch office can make purchases directly through desktop computers, which are also used to write and create graphics for reports. "We used to type everything," Dubiel said. "Try typing a spreadsheet. Our computers update customer portfolios automatically. It used to take all night before. We all also get price quotes on screen right away, instead of having to try to read quotes punched out on paper tapes."

"Almost all small businesses in Grosse Pointe use computers in their operations," said Dubiel. "Before the advent of the personal computer in the early 1980s, computers were big file cabinet-sized machines in separate rooms that could only be operated by specialists in big companies. Small businesses could never afford to operate a computer."

But desk-top computers developed after 1980 changed all that, said Dubiel. These small computers can do everything the big mainframes could do, but faster. Businesses like Roney could afford those mainframes, and they did use computers before the advent of desktops. Now desktops make it possible for others to get into the game, as well.

Jack Riashi and his partner Michael Piku are SEC registered investment advisers who operate a small company called Triad Capital Group in Grosse Pointe Woods. Desk top computers give them the opportunity to run their own business, something they couldn't have done in the past.

"We're able to get financial quotes and updates from on-line computer services like America On Line (AOL), CompuServe and the new Microsoft Network," said Riashi.

With the development of inexpensive computer software, his desktop computer can be used for correspondence, financial planning, graphics, record storage and e-mail or electronic communications with others who operate computers.

"We couldn't offer these services without a computer," said Riashi. "It would take a much larger staff to produce our work if we didn't have a computer. The potential of computers has barely been tapped. With developments in hardware and software and growth in the Internet, I see computers becoming much bigger."

Grosse Pointe News columnist Ken Eatherly uses his computer to write his weekly column as well as to edit manuscripts for writers before they are submitted to publishers.

"I was scared of computers," Eatherly said. "I first learned to use them when I was working for The Detroit News in the early 1980s. Once I learned how, I really grew to like them. I know a lot of people like that, some older than myself, who have become quite adept at using computers. I can't imagine not using them now."

Dubiel said that computer-phobia is real. He advises on systems, as well as offering training on how to operate them. Many of his students are even afraid to turn their machines on at first.

"In five years I will be hard-pressed to find a home in Grosse Pointe that won't have a computer," said Dubiel. "New software is making using a computer easier than ever. Computers are here to stay, and those who know how to use them have a big advantage in a competitive business and job market."

Business People

Grosse Pointe Woods resident Richard Kewalk was recently presented with the 1995 Distinguished Service Award by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants. The award was given in appreciation for his contributions to the accounting profession. Kewalk was president of the organization in 1994, and is managing principal with the firm of Goffrey, Hammel, Daniels & Co. in St. Clair Shores.

Grosse Pointe Park resident Donald Hart Jr. recently joined the Health Alliance Plan (HAP) as its associate vice president of research and planning. He will be responsible for all strategic planning and market research.

City of Grosse Pointe resident Martin Petz recently received the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce's Trade Advantage Award for the second year in a row. Petz is president of Communications Creative in Grosse Pointe Park. The company is a full service advertising agency, and the award was given in recognition of Petz's volunteer efforts on behalf of Detroit's small business community.

Grosse Pointe Woods resident Wayne Peters was just named as a financial consultant with Merrill Lynch in Farmington Hills. Peters was with the Financial Mortgage Corp. in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident John Jacobs was recently elected vice president of the Michigan Defense Trial Counsel Inc. The organization is an association of civil defense attorneys established in 1979 to enhance and promote the defense bar. Jacobs is with the law firm O'Leary, O'Leary, Jacobs, Mattson & Perry.

Grosse Pointe Park resident Roger Snyder recently joined the Detroit architectural firm BEI Associates as a project director. He will deal with clients and supervise the day-to-day activities of construction projects.

Teresa Crowe of the Grosse Pointe Woods business Lou's Pet Shop was recently declared a Certified Reptile Specialist by the Pet Industry Joint Advisory Council. The PIJAC has certification in the areas of avian, canine, small animal, freshwater fish and reptile care. Crowe had to take a special course in the proper care and feeding of reptiles before receiving her certification.

Grosse Pointe Woods resident Christopher Pflaum recently became a regional manager for Johnson and Johnson's international division. He will reside in Hong Kong.

Woods approves Assumption project

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Declaring Assumption Greek Orthodox Church's senior housing project the best use for a small piece of land by the Milk River, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council approved several variances that will permit the project to go forward.

The Rev. Demetrios Kavadas, pastor of the church, was on hand to ask that the council approve the variances. Fr. Kavadas said St. Clair Shores had approved the variances needed to build the project in that city.

The proposed senior housing project would be built on land that crosses the border between Grosse Pointe Woods and St. Clair Shores, which is also the border between Wayne and Macomb counties. Most of the project is in St. Clair Shores, but eight of the 65 proposed housing units would be in the Woods.

Constantine Pappas, an Assumption and the project architect, was also on hand to answer any of the council's questions. City building inspector Melissa Spranger said that the church needs three variances, as well as a rezoning of the property from single family residential to apartment.

The variances needed included one for the city's 50-foot sideyard setback requirement, a variance for the ordinance requiring all apartment buildings to be built on either Mack or Vernier and a variance for minimum size of dwellings.

The council made the rezoning conditional on approval of all the variance requests. Pappas told them that the land in the Woods was not really useful for anything else but a church project. He said that the 30-foot setback was not a problem because of the proximity to the Milk River and that in order to provide housing for the largest number of seniors, the units had to be slightly smaller than city ordinances allowed.

No residents spoke against the project, and the church's request received strong support from the council. One concern was that the proposed firelane was not wide enough at 18 feet. Pappas agreed to widen it to 22 feet, saying that St. Clair Shores officials were also worried that 18 feet was not wide enough to permit fire trucks and other equipment through.

City administrator Peter Thomas gave the council a letter from St. Clair Shores stating it would provide municipal services to the project, including police and fire protection.

Mayor Robert Novitke asked that a formal agreement between the two cities over this matter be drawn up, just to clarify once and for all who had responsibility to provide services.

The Woods council unanimously voted to approve all the variance requests, and the rezoning request. Fr. Kavadas thanked the council for its consideration and said the project could now go to the construction phase after many years of planning.

Lawn sign policy already in place

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

At a time when other Pointers are contemplating what to do about lawn signs, Grosse Pointe Woods residents needn't worry. The city has had a policy in place for a while that seems to please just about everyone involved.

"We've had an ordinance in place for many years," said Woods city manager Peter Thomas. "The ordinance forbids the placing of signs on city property. This includes traffic islands and property between sidewalks and curbs."

The ordinance includes all types of signs, from construction signs to political signs to for sale signs, said Thomas. The only exception is open house signs for Realtors.

These signs, Thomas said, may be up while the event is taking place. But if a Realtor wanted to put up an open house sign three days before the actual event, it would be a violation of city ordinances.

"As I've said, we've had these rules for many years," Thomas said. "If we get a complaint we go to the home and explain about the ordinance."

Most people say they didn't know about it and take the sign down without any complaint.

Woods city attorney George Catlin said the city could probably ban signs on residential front lawns, but that could raise freedom of speech issues.

Plus, said Catlin, it's not really a problem in the city.

"The city doesn't want signs on city property, but it has been decided that it's all right for private homes," Catlin said. "Whatever happens in the other Pointes, I don't believe the council thinks this is a serious problem in the Woods."

Charitable taxpayers get deductions

While your financial resources and personal interests should play a large role in your charitable giving, don't overlook the tax deductions you may receive for your generosity.

The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants points out that when you donate to a qualified charity, either through lifetime giving or through charitable bequests, estate taxes are avoided and you may qualify for an income tax deduction.

To claim the deduction, you must make the contribution to a tax-exempt charity. Gifts made to federal, state, and local government for public purposes, or to religious, charitable, scientific, literary, cultural, and educational organizations are normally deductible.

Although the definition seems broad, it does not encompass every nonprofit organization. Check Cumulative Lists of Organizations, IRS Publication 78, for those that qualify.

You may be able to save substantial tax dollars by arranging to bestow property that has increased in value rather than donating cash. When you contribute appreciated stocks, real estate, or other investments that you have held for more than a year, you can generally deduct the current market value of the property and avoid paying long-term capital gains taxes.

From an estate planning viewpoint, your gift reduces the size of your taxable estate.

Here's how it works. If you write a check for $10,000 to a charity, you get a $10,000 deduction and the charity receives a $10,000 gift. Suppose, instead, you donated some stocks that you bought two years ago at $5,000 which are now worth $10,000.

By offering the appreciated stock, you avoid paying the capital gains tax that would be due on the $10,000 if you sold the stock yourself.

As a tax-exempt entity, the charity incurs no capital gains tax on the sale of the shares, so it receives the full benefit of your contribution. In addition, you get to deduct the investment's current market value of $15,000.

Keep in mind that there are some limitations on charitable deductions. In general, you are allowed charitable deductions of up to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income for gifts of

When contributing appreciated property, your deduction is limited to 20 percent to 30 percent. Also, some types of appreciated property may yield reduced deductions.

A charitable remainder trust enables you to avoid capital gains taxes, increase income for you and your family and at the same time benefit your favorite charity.

You may also choose to make a temporary gift of income through a charitable lead trust. Through this type of trust, you set aside assets for charitable use for a specific number of years or during your lifetime.

At the end of that period, the assets in the trust are then returned to you or your heirs.

Although these trusts provide a tax deduction for the donation, the trust must comply with governmental guidelines and the amount of the deduction can be different from the actual amount of the gift.

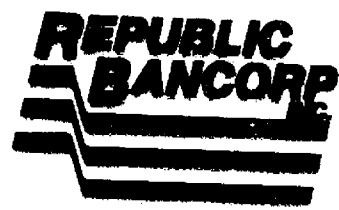

If you have the desire and resources to make large charitable gifts, it's wise to explore all your options with a tax adviser, such as a CPA. A CPA may help you find ways to make larger gifts at a lower cost, as well as generate some benefits for you and your family.

Job description: low pay; high stress; substandard housing; bad water The payoff: A lifetime of self-reliance, community awareness

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Eleanor Allen and David Fellows are two nice kids who grew up in Grosse Pointe, went away to college, earned bachelor's degrees, landed good jobs, got married and started living happily ever after.

The end?
No. They quit their jobs and moved thousands of miles away so they could do physical labor, cope with primitive living conditions and transportation methods, learn a new language and earn next to nothing. Contact with their old friends and family would be limited, the climate would be hot, air conditioning rare, refrigeration nonexistent and the water undrinkable.

They joined the Peace Corps. And they wouldn't trade places with anyone.

Eleanor and David returned to Grosse Pointe recently for a brief holiday, but they're looking forward to returning for another year near the tiny village of Los Lirios in the coffee-producing mountains of the Dominican Republic.

They came home bearing sacks of coffee that they had personally picked, washed, dried, roasted and ground; stacks of photographs of their new friends; pictures of their aqueduct project; and a friendly half-grown puppy of unknown parentage named Chinola.

"When we first got to our village in the Dominican Republic, we stood up in a town meeting and asked people if they had a puppy and a kitten for us," Eleanor said.

Kika, their kitten, and Chinola were deposited in their laps that day. Chinola is Spanish for "passion fruit," she said.

Eleanor and David applied to join the Peace Corps in 1993 and waited a year to be accepted.

"I wanted to do the Peace Corps since high school," Eleanor said. She earned a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from Tufts University and is a water engineer.

David earned a bachelor of arts degree in English from the University of Michigan.

They began their Peace Corps training in Pedro Garcia, a town of about 2,000 people near Santiago in the Dominican Republic. The three-month training program with a group of 35 other Peace Corps volunteers was like studying for college finals, David said.

The first part was an intensive course in the Spanish language and culture. The second part was to learn the technical aspects of their job — how to build water and sanitation systems.

"We studied the history, customs and politics of Dominican society. It was an extremely difficult training period.

"We lived with a family in an urban neighborhood where we were smothered with affection."

Dominicans are very social people, he said, and to be alone is a negative experience. The culture is loud and the colors are bright. It's not unusual to walk down a village street and find each door open, each blaring music from a different radio station.

After the three-month training period, David and Eleanor traveled to the coffee-growing region between the tiny towns of Los Lirios and Las Yuyitas, where their plan was to help residents build water systems and latrines.

They rented a small house with a tin roof and a huge front porch, painted bright turquoise and orange. It came with four rocking chairs and two uncomfortable beds. They bought a new bed and a kitchen table.

Peace Corps volunteers Eleanor Allen and David Fellows are building an aqueduct in the mountains of the Dominican Republic, where coffee trees grow wild.

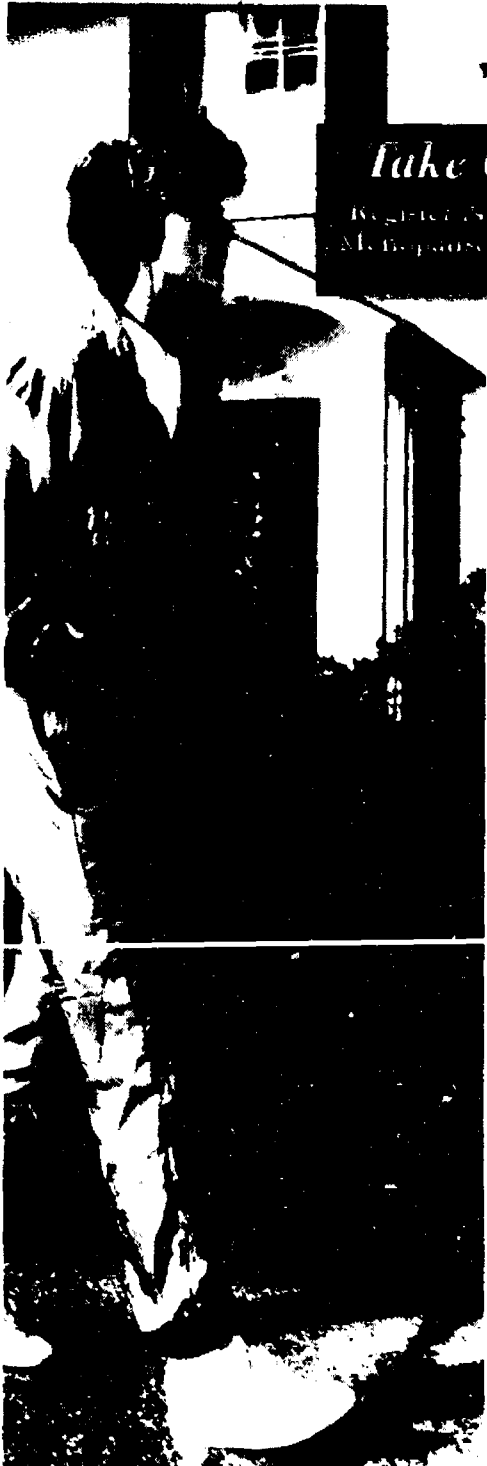

Eleanor relaxes on the front porch of their rented house, above. A plastic pipe on the right, collects rain water from the gutters and stores it for household use.

David shows off the couple's kitchen, at the right, which includes a propane stove. Their home is wired for electricity, but service is too unreliable to be used for refrigeration and cooking.

They sleep under mosquito netting.

"Ours is an upscale house," David said. "Our next door neighbor, who owns our house, has a refrigerator, but electric outages are frequent, often five or six times a day. We often eat our meals with them. Food is cooked outdoors, on a three-burner wood stove. People shop before each meal."

"Our goal was to improve the health of the children of the area by providing better water and better sanitation," Eleanor said.

They began plans for constructing an aqueduct for the people of Los Lirios.

They have built a spring box, a cement tank that captures water from a natural mountain spring and stores and protects it from contamination. Then they put together a series of plastic pipes to deliver the water to a community tap.

"Moving materials is a big part of our planning," Eleanor said. "We haul everything on mules and donkeys. We walk everywhere, including a one-hour walk to work each day. We could have bought a horse, but we like the exercise. Also, we want to fit into the community, which is very poor."

For their own use, they collect rain water through a simple system of roof gutters, pipes and a storage tank. They add bleach to the water, let it sit a few days, then drink it.

"The Peace Corps tells its volunteers to refuse offers of water or juice unless they know it has been purified," David said. "But it's impolite to refuse someone who offers you a drink. We've had some intestinal problems and we probably carry parasites."

Eleanor said they often drink questionable water and juice. "But we think of this as our home. There is some risk," she said.

"Ten percent of our work is construction," David said, "and 90 percent is educating people about why a new water system is desirable. We try not to force our ideas on people. Our goal is to educate and help."

David and Eleanor will finish their term in the Peace Corps in June 1996. Eleanor plans to earn a master's degree in environmental engineering. She would like to work as an engineering consultant in developing countries.

David plans to earn a master's degree in education. "I was influenced by this Peace Corps experience," he said, "and I know now I want to teach."

Eleanor said one of her reasons for joining the Peace Corps was a desire for adventure. "I'm intrigued by the developing world and its relationship to engineering. I was naive though. What I'm getting from this is personal growth. We're getting much more from this experience than the people we help are getting from us."

David agreed. "I'm growing personally," he said. "I joined to travel to a new culture and to help. Once I got there I realized I'm growing. I'm my own boss. I make all my own decisions. Every day is a learning experience. We're gaining much, much more than we're giving."

Both agreed that participating in the Peace Corps has given them a sense of community.

"When we come home we are going to be acutely aware of what it is to be a member of a community. We will vote; act; not just criticize," David said.

"People often ask why it's necessary for Americans to go abroad to help needy people. They point to the disadvantaged people here at home who need our help. I couldn't answer this question before."

"Now I can. When Peace Corps volunteers return home, they are probably going to be Peace Corps volunteers for the rest of their lives. They'll be active citizens here at home. They'll always be more aware, more involved."

"If you would like to correspond with Eleanor Allen and David Fellows, write to: Peace Corps, Box A29, Apartado 1412, Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.

WOODS OPTICAL FACTS

STICK TO THE CARROT APPROACH

According to the latest research, eating vitamin-rich carrots can do more for eyesight than help you see better in low-light situations. The nonprofit Better Vision Institute points out that the recent research suggests that people who eat foods high in antioxidants, vitamins C, E, and (vitamin A precursor) beta carotene, are less likely to develop cataracts. This benefit is derived from the fact that these antioxidants scavenge oxygen compounds that are linked to cell damage in the eye lens that leads to the clouding of the lens associated with cataracts. This oxidative damage results from accumulated exposure to ultraviolet light. To protect the eyes from light rays that are known to cause cataracts, therefore, it pays not only to wear sunglasses, but to eat antioxidant-rich foods.

This weekly column has been brought to you by WOODS OPTICAL STUDIOS, as a service to our community. If you are in need of new eyewear, you'll find we have a well trained staff able to provide you with a choice of eyewear and accessories to make you see and look your best. We're conveniently located at 19599 Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods, 79 W. Long Lake Road, Ste. 307, in West Bloomfield (313-882-9711). Repairs on frames can usually be performed while you wait. Enjoy better vision today!

P.S. The new research also shows that diets rich in antioxidants and zinc help protect against macular degeneration, an irreversible condition that causes vision damage.

The Pastor's Corner Philadelphia mission

By the Rev. David M. Wick
Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

Earlier this month, I spent almost a week on a mission trip in the north Philadelphia neighborhood of Hunting Park with nine members of my congregation. Hunting Park is quite a contrast to the broad lawns of the Pointes and the sparkle of Lake St. Clair. The park itself, for which the neighborhood is named, does sparkle when the light hits it just right, but that's because of all the broken glass.

The neighborhood is African-American and Puerto Rican. The rowhouse-lined streets are narrow, wide enough only for one car to pass and a single row of parking. Front porches start at the sidewalk. Back yards are narrow strips of concrete facing even narrower alleys and the concrete back yards of the next block of row houses. A couple of especially blessed streets have a few sycamore trees, but most are barren.

Yet few of the homes are abandoned and most are well-kept. Children are everywhere, playing on the sidewalks and porches. Our mission was to conduct front step Bible clubs with the children, to do some visiting with parents on behalf of the church that hosted us, Fleischmann Memorial Baptist. The church is the original North American Baptist congregation, founded in 1843 as the First German Baptist Church of Philadelphia. We know that we don't have to go all the way to Philadelphia to find an urban environment for ministry, but we have special ties with Fleischmann.

The church has organized the ministry well. We brought the curriculum, consisting of music, puppet shows, and Bible stories, to a well-prepared setting. Our team split in two, and each did two Bible clubs each morning, with 15 to 25 children at each club, but with many different children each day so that the total number of children involved was probably over 200 representing dozens of families.

Afternoons and evenings were devoted to building repairs and to visiting with people in the neighborhood. We ate at the church, using the church kitchen, and slept on mattresses in the church basement.

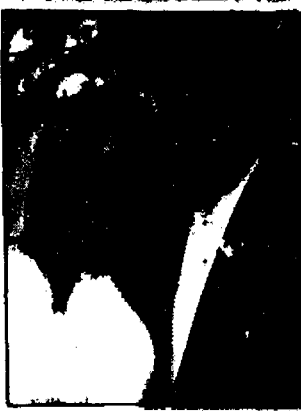

We went to give and to serve. For most of our group the giving included the sacrifice of precious vacation time. But we felt, by the end of the week, that we had received and been served in greater measure.

Being in the Hunting Park community was exciting, because it really is a community, for all of its problems. Even a short walk to the corner store brings you past dozens of people, greeting one another or chatting. Like Jerusalem, Philly is a "city that is built compact together." We were encouraged that children and adults were open and eager to talk about spiritual things. The children were eager to hear the Bible stories and to learn their memory verses and to talk about Jesus. That should have come as no surprise to us, because Jesus said, "The poor hear the Gospel ... gladly."

We were refreshed by the wonderful sense of family and the high commitment on the part of the members of the church. Fleischmann is a small congregation with a big heart, and it is having a huge impact on its community. Being there reminded me what a mistake it is to measure a church's worth by the size of its membership or budget. Ministry doesn't require big numbers or wealth; it requires a heart for God.

What we did in Philly will enrich and inform what we do in our ministry and our urban partnerships in Detroit. Being in Philly touched something deep within me. I want so much for my church to have a heart for serving Christ in the Grosse Pointes and Detroit like Fleischmann Baptist does in Hunting Park and Philadelphia.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Roger Saelen

Boeneman-Saelen

Marsha Alyce Boeneman, daughter of Dale and Cindy Boeneman of Grosse Pointe Park, married Lawrence Roger Saelen, son of Roger and Marilyn Saelen of Harper Woods, on May 5, 1995, at St. Edward's Chapel in St. John Hospital.

The Rev. Michael Nardone officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Barrister House.

The bride wore a white silk gown with a jewel neckline and a Basque waistline, a lace bodice, short sleeves with cuffs, a fan-back peplum with fabric roses and a chapel-length train. She carried a bouquet of long-stemmed gerberas, lilies, tulips, roses and asters, all tied with a white ribbon. The flowergirl was Amy Saelen.

Attendants wore two-piece evening suits of seafoam aban-tung with pleated backs decorated with rosettes. They carried long-stemmed gerberas, carnations, tulips and roses, tied with a seafoam ribbon.

The best man was the groom's brother, Vincent Saelen.

Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Jason Boeneman; Kurt Krueger; John Shea; and Nick Bommarito. The usher was the bride's brother, Matthew Boeneman.

The ringbearer was Timothy Lupo. The reader was Jim Lupo. Flutist was the groom's sister, Susan Lupo.

The bride and groom are employed by the St. John Health System.

The newlyweds went on a Caribbean cruise and visited Chicago and Niagra Falls. They live in Detroit.

This block of Charlevoix will provide locals a place to taste the wares of six east side restaurants during the sixth annual Outdoor Taste Fest.

That's good eatin' Park shows its good taste by hosting annual food fair

By Ronald J. Berman
Assistant Editor

If you're in the mood to eat out — literally — this weekend, then Charlevoix between Beaconsfield and Lakepointe in Grosse Pointe Park is just the place for you.

That's where the Outdoor Taste Fest, sponsored by the Pointes East Restaurant Association, will be held. It is the first time the event, now in its sixth year, has been held in Grosse Pointe.

But if Pointes East's Dennis Schaefer, the driving force behind this weekend's event, has his way, it won't be the last.

"The Pointes East Restaurant Association has had this festival in the past but they've never had it at a set place and they've never had a street fest like this," Schaefer said.

The Grosse Pointe Park council agreed to close one half of Charlevoix (the other half becomes one-way) between 11 a.m. and 9 p.m. to make room for stands set up by the six east side restaurants which comprise the Pointes East Restaurant Association.

Those restaurants are the Sunrise-Sunset Saloon & Grill, Sparky Herbert's, Irish Coffee Bar & Grille, Wimpy's Grill, The Blue Pointe Restaurant and P.J. Kelly Bar & Grill.

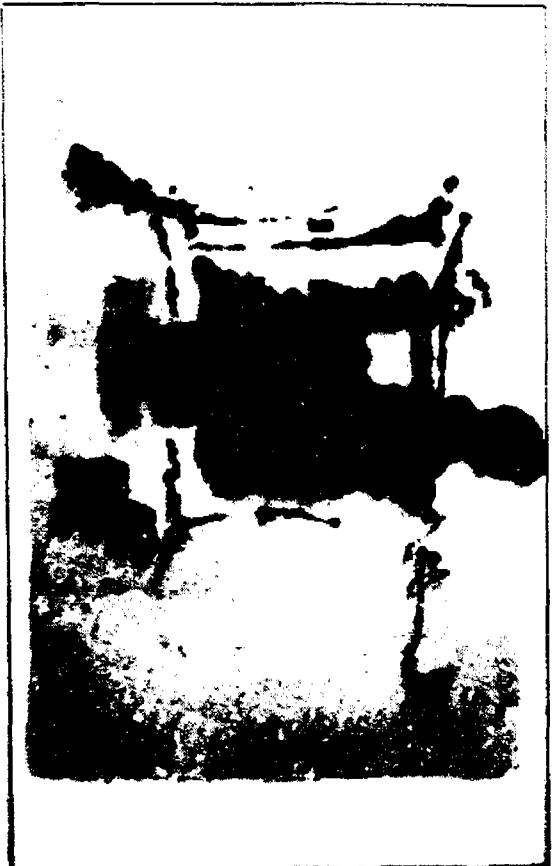

Schaefer said there's also space available for artists and craftspeople to display their wares. (Space can be reserved by calling Schaefer at (313) 331-5448.)

Several Detroit-area bands will provide entertainment during the event and other local food distributors have agreed to take part in the festival.

"Everything being done is voluntary," Schaefer said.

"We are raising money for charity and all proceeds will go to that charity; usually it will be a children's charity or the Capuchin charity.

"We hope this goes off big this year so it can become an annual event in Grosse Pointe," Schaefer said.

On display

A one-woman show of art works by Grosse Pointe artist M. Stirling Allardice, will open Friday, Aug. 25, at the Ashley-Cris Gallery, 13128 Kercheval, in Grosse Pointe Park. Allardice, who has a BFA from George Washington University, studied at the Art Students League in New York City. She has taught many art workshops and classes, including the popular children's art classes at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial for years. The exhibit, called "In. Of. With Paper" is of paintings and sculpture made of pigmented handmade paper and runs through Sept. 30.

Moonlight serenade

The 1995 Music on the Plaza Concert Series continues at 7 p.m. tonight with the Bird of Paradise Orchestra playing Big Band favorites. The concert series, which had several rain-outs this summer, is sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Village Association and is held at the corner of Kercheval and St. Clair in the Village.

The '95-96 exhibition season begins with 'Flight & Friction'

The Art Center will open the 1995-96 exhibit season with "Flight & Friction" Sept. 8-29.

Award-winning Michigan artists Timothy Norris and Pi Benio present their unique mixed-media creations. The public is invited to meet the artists at the preview reception Friday Sept. 8, from 7 to 9 p.m. Admission is free.

Norris, a resident of Kalamazoo, suggests friction in his sculptural paintings. Using wood and canvas, he constructs forms to which paint and a plaster-like material are applied.

In her Adrian studio, with the use of cast linen paper and wire, Benio invents mystical figures that hang suspended in flight. Now a professor and art department chair at Adrian College, Benio received her master of fine arts degree from Eastern Michigan University.

The Art Center is located in the historic Carnegie Library

Building at 125 Macomb Place (southbound Gratiot at North Avenue) in downtown Mount Clemens. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. For further information regarding The Art Center's exhibits, classes or special activities, call (810) 469-8666.

Two local artists exhibit

Jill Grunberger, 13, or Grosse Pointe Park was recently chosen as one of the artists featured in a juried art exhibition at Interlochen Arts Camp, this country's premier fine arts camp. The exhibition showcased work from 30 campers attending Interlochen. Grunberger, the daughter of George and Zuzana Grunberger, is enrolled in Intermediate Painting at the camp.

Nancy E. Patek of Grosse Pointe is exhibiting new works in printmaking at Start Gallery, 211 N. Woodward in Birmingham through Aug. 31.

A reception for the artist will be held at 5 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 24. Call (810) 644-2991 for gallery hours.

Make a date for a quick, tasty dinner

Foraging a few weeks ago for a quick dinner, I found a pack of dates I'd put in the freezer at the end of last year. I went to my files, pulled out the California Dates folder and reassured myself that dates can be stored in the freezer at zero to 32 degrees F for up to a year with out losing quality.

Reading the materials was a refreshing course reminding me that dates are high in potassium, which may help reduce the risk of high blood pressure and may protect against cholesterol buildup. Ounce for ounce, they provide 250 percent potassium more than bananas, another popular potassium source. Dates provide fiber and have no sodium, fat or cholesterol.

I also found a couple of recipes ideal for the in-a-hurry cook. One is a pilaf gently spiced with allspice and fresh ginger with a bit of crunch provided by almonds. The second is a warm turkey or chicken salad, vitamin-enriched with apple, oranges and, of course, dates, with a unique warm dressing. (I'll try it again with pork or beef.)

Savory Date Pilaf

- 2 T olive oil
 - 1 T butter or margarine
 - 1 1/2 cup uncooked long grain white rice
 - 2 1/2 uncooked broken vermicelli
 - 1 cup sliced mushrooms
 - 1 1/2 cup sliced onion
 - 1 1/2-ounce can chicken broth
 - 1/2 cup dry sherry
 - 1 tablespoon grated fresh ginger
 - 1 1/4 t ground allspice or cinnamon
 - 1 bay leaf
 - 1 cup chopped California dates
 - 1/2 cup toasted slivered almonds
- Salt to taste
Whole dates, optional
Shipped parsley

By Phylomena Corradino

Heat oil and butter in large skillet over medium heat. Stir in rice, vermicelli, mushrooms and onions, saute until lightly browned. Stir in chicken broth, sherry, ginger, allspice and bay leaf. Cover; cook over low heat until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed, about 15 minutes. Stir in chopped dates and almonds, season with salt. Remove and discard bay leaf. Spoon into serving dish, garnish with whole dates, if desired, and sprinkle with parsley. Makes six servings.

Warm Turkey and Date Salad

- 8 cups torn chloory, spinach, romaine and red lettuce leaves
- 1 cup cubed Granny Smith apple
- 1 cup toasted walnut pieces
- 4 navel oranges, peeled, cut in 1/4-inch slices and quartered

- 1 1/2 cup olive oil, divided
- 1 1/2 pounds turkey breast, skinned and cut into turkey-size pieces
- 1 1/2 cups whole pitted dates, cut in strips
- 1 1/2 cup cider vinegar
- 1 T brown sugar
- Salt and pepper to taste

Wash and dry greens. Arrange on serving platter. Top with apple, walnuts and oranges. Meanwhile, heat 1/4 cup olive oil in medium skillet. Add turkey and saute gently until lightly browned and firm to the touch. Remove from pan, heat remaining olive oil with dates, vinegar and brown sugar. Cook 2 minutes over high heat. Pour over salad. Add salt and pepper. Toss lightly and serve immediately. Makes four main-course or eight appetizer servings.

A Reminder: The toll-free consumer barbecue hotline is back in service and will be at your beck and call through Labor Day (Sept. 4). Tyler can't make it up her 'Ladder'

Ladder of Years
by Anne Tyler
Knapf 326 pages $24

"Ladder of Years," Anne Tyler's 13th novel, follows pretty closely the familiar style she has used in most of her work. "Ladder" starts out with an interesting premise, thus luring readers to settle back comfortably to enjoy the unfolding of her plot and the developing complexity of her characters. Also, somewhere along the way, the author's good intentions and the reader's attention-span seem to wane almost simultaneously.

It is not as if Tyler were a novice; in fact, she was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in 1988 for "Breathing Lessons." No question about it, she does write entertainingly, especially her dialogue which showcases her wry sense of humor. Therefore, for the most part, her people are very real, but with some inexplicable flaws of character.

Delia Grinstead is a Baltimore housewife, just turned 40, who is growing increasingly frustrated in an unsatisfying marriage to Sam Grinstead, a doctor 15 years her senior. Their three children are mostly grown, each with their own agendas and quirky personalities. Delia feels continually thwarted in her vain efforts to create a solid cohesion of the family relationships; instead, it becomes a tiresome confrontation between Delia, Sam and their children.

Because Delia considers herself neglected and unappreciated, she is helpless to overcome the lack of meaningful communication among the family members.

Tyler describes Delia as "a sad, tired, anxious 40-year-old woman who hadn't had a champagne brunch in decades. And her husband was even older, by a good 14 years, and just this past February he had suffered a bout of severe chest pain. Angina, they said in the emergency room. And now she was terrified any time he went anywhere alone, and she hated to let him drive, and she kept finding excuses not to make love for fear it would kill him, and at night while he slept she lay awake, tensing every muscle between each of his long, slow breaths."

In spite of Delia's obvious concern, there is a serious gap within the family. Delia struggles alone to overcome this block to family togetherness. Their "children past infancy, were huge. They were great galumphing, unmannerly, supercilious creatures — Susie a Goucher junior consumed by a baffling enthusiasm for various outdoor sports; Ramsey a Hopkine freshman on the brink of flunking out. And Delia's baby, her sweet, wondrous Cal, had been replaced by this rude adolescent, flinching from his mother's hug and criticizing her clothes and rolling his eyes disgustedly at every word she uttered."

During one summer at their cottage on the Atlantic Coast, things quickly come to a head. Despondent, Delia walks away from the beach, fed up with her situation. Clad only in beach togs, she heads toward town where she is picked up by a sympathetic young man in a van.

During this period of disenchantment with her home life, Delia finds herself tantalizingly involved in two surprising encounters with different men, both of whom are flatteringly attracted to her. This attraction, of course, bolsters her lagging self-esteem as a vital personality in her own right.

At her request, the van driver lets her off in a small village where she begins looking for a boarding house and a job. Because she has no friends, and her family has not made attempts yet to locate her, she finally visits the local library for books to read at night by a small lamp in her cramped bedroom.

Eventually, Delia's children, one by one, find her whereabouts. They write and visit her, all very perplexed by her decision. Sam remains, inexplicably remote and unaring, which upsets Delia. She is torn by conflicting emotions — should she return to the marital nest and family responsibilities or should she proceed on making a new life of her own?

Tyler does a fine job of delineating character so we can understand most of the reasons motivating the dysfunctional Grinstead family. Delia comes across as a soft, sympathetic person driven by her own needs. Forever the unfeeling husband, Sam fails to perceive the forces that have pushed his wife beyond the limits of the family circle. However, the children, in varying degrees, come to understand their mother's rebellion, but they insist that she return.

The ending of this novel is contrived and disappointing. It appears as though the author, nearing the end of her story, rushed to complete it. If that was actually the case, she destroyed the credibility of her characters and the plot.

Cars are theme of zero-proof contest

Across the United States, the 100th anniversary of the American Automobile Centennial is being celebrated. The U.S. auto industry.

AAA Michigan invites state residents to help celebrate the centennial and possibly win $500, a weekend getaway for two or other prizes. Simply turn the theme "Salute to the Automobile" into a festive non-alcoholic drink for the Auto Club's 15th annual "Zero-Proof Mix-Off" contest.

The contest is part of AAA Michigan's "First A Friend, Then A Host" alcohol awareness program to focus attention on the problem of drinking and driving during the holidays and throughout the year.

To enter, contestants should send a recipe for a favorite non-alcoholic drink to AAA Michigan, giving it a clever name reflecting an automotive theme.

Fifteen finalists will be chosen to mix their drinks in person at one of three regional contests — five finalists per contest.

Regional contests will be Oct.

Oct. 14 in Dearborn, Mich.; Oct. 21 in Farmington Hills, Mich.; Oct. 28 in Troy, Mich. The contest is open to all Michigan residents who are 21 years of age or older. Prizes include a weekend getaway for two, a $500 cash prize, and a $100 gift certificate to a local restaurant. The contest is open to all Michigan residents who are 21 years of age or older. Prizes include a weekend getaway for two, a $500 cash prize, and a $100 gift certificate to a local restaurant.

Winning recipes will be featured in Michigan Living and in the 1995 AAA Michigan Party Guide, distributed free statewide. The guide offers non-alcoholic drink recipes and ideas for the holidays and seasons throughout the year.

The contest deadline is Monday, Sept. 18. Non-alcohol or flavor extract with alcohol allowed. Entrants must be 16 years and older. AAA Michigan employees are not eligible.

Name, address, daytime telephone number, drink name, ingredients and mixing instructions should be included with entry. Neatly type or print entries and mail to "Zero-Proof Mix-Off," AAA Michigan Public Relations, 1 Auto Club Drive, Dearborn, MI 48126.

Defever, Starrs win South's Thursby award

Amanda Defever and Bill Starrs are this year's winners of Grosse Pointe South's prestigious John Thursby award.

The award is presented annually to a senior male and a female athlete at South who participated in three sports and displayed several qualities of sportsmanship, including self-confidence, teamwork, dedication, coachability, unselfishness and a well-rounded personality. Defever played softball, basketball and volleyball during all four years at South and was co-captain of the varsity volleyball squad the last two seasons. She was active in AAU volleyball and basketball.

Defever was a key member of the Blue Devils' softball and volleyball teams that advanced to the state quarterfinals twice each. She also played on district champion basketball teams at South in 1992 and 1993.

She was voted "Most Athletic" for the class of 1995, was an all-league honorable mention selection in volleyball and was the Most Valuable Player at the Michigan State University volleyball camp in 1993.

Defever has been a Macomb Area Conference all-academic team selection for four years, is a National Honor Society member and received the Cottage Hospital-Henry Ford Senior Scholastic award.

She plans a career in the medical field.

Starrs has played football, hockey and baseball at South, while compiling a 3.785 grade-point average.

He was captain of the football team as a senior and was named to the All-State academic team in football and hockey.

Starrs was also captain of South's hockey team as a senior and was a first-team All-State selection. He won the Blue Devils' Coaches Award for hockey in 1994 and in 1995 he was the team's Most Valuable Player.

Starrs has also been involved in many school and community activities.

John Thursby, who played end for Purdue's football team before a spinal injury ended his career, came to Grosse Pointe High School in 1955 as a social studies teacher and varsity basketball coach. When the school became Grosse Pointe South, he was appointed counselor and was later named assistant principal. Thursby retired in 1976.

South also honored two other senior student-athletes with Boosters' Club scholarships in awarded the Prychitko Scholarship, carried a 3.8 GPA, was a member of the National Honor Society, a F.O.C.U.S. leader and lettered in basketball, volleyball and softball.

She was elected to the MAC all-academic team in all three sports and was an all-district and all-region selection in softball. She holds the school softball records for most extra-base hits and runs batted in.

Halpin plans to study engineering in college.

Nate Kuhl, the winner of the Hollosy Scholarship, was an outstanding student-athlete at South. While maintaining a 3.4 GPA, he was involved with the student council and was class treasurer as a freshman and class vice-president his junior year. He was a student council senator and a member of the National Honor Society. He was also involved in the school orchestra and church and community service.

Kuhl played football and baseball for four years and basketball for three seasons. He plans to attend Michigan State's Lyman Briggs College, where he'll major in genetics with the hope of a medical career.

South also announced the winners of the spring sports awards for most valuable and most improved players.

Following are those winners:

Boys tennis— A.J. Robde, most valuable; Ryan Parahall and David DeGutis, most improved.

Girls track— Katy Lupo and Amy Zanglin, most valuable; Kate Crowley and Maggie Lucas, most improved.

Boys track— Mike Lahey, most valuable; Chris Clay, most improved.

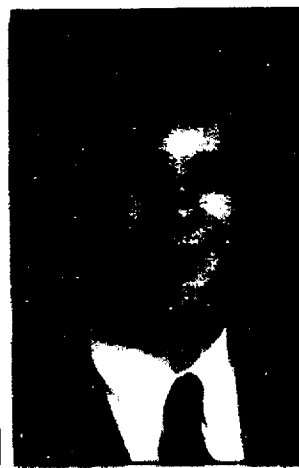

Girls soccer— Molly McKenzie, most valuable; Abbey Fox, most improved.

Softball— Maureen Ryan, most valuable; Deanna Raab, most improved.

Baseball— Kevin Schroeder, most valuable; Chris Nelson, most improved.

South runners tune up for fifth straight league title

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's boys cross country team faced a tough test in its first competition of the season and it came from a group of former Blue Devils' runners.

"All of the alumni who ran are running in college, so it's a pretty good group," said South coach Tom Wise, who finished 11th himself.

"I was really happy with this year's team. They all ran pretty well, considering it was terrible running weather — 94 degrees and muggy."

Three former South runners were the first across the line, helping the Alumni post a 24-31 victory.

Matt Debaki, the lead on last year's team, took first place overall with a time of 16:44. Debaki will compete at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this fall.

Bowling Green's Dan Quinn was second in 17:05 and Pat Butler, now at Ohio Wesleyan, was third in 17:23.

Ben Butler led the current South runners across the finish line with a time of 17:24. He was followed by teammates Nat Spurr (17:26), Laing Way Chu (17:38) and Jeff Pilley (17:47).

Adam Rhodes was eighth in 18:16 and Rob Lloyd finished 10th in 18:28 to complete the alumni scoring.

Jon Van Hoek's ninth place finish in 18:20 rounded out South's top five.

The Blue Devils will start their bid for a fifth straight league championship and fifth consecutive state meet berth when they open the regular season on Saturday, Sept. 9, at the Muskrat Invitational in Algonac.

"We're returning four starters in Jon Van Hoek, Ben Butler, Tim Nicholson and Nat Spurr and we're looking for strong support from our younger runners, like Jeff Pilley, David DeGutis and Parker Roth," Wise said. "Roth ran 1,100 miles this summer, which is the most ever by a South runner. And we think veterans like Gabe Slimko and Laing Way Chu will help us, too."

Wise is also encouraged by the return of John Nicholson, a junior who missed the 1994 cross country season with a broken leg, but made a good showing in the mile during track last spring.

Wise expects the Blue Devils' toughest competition in the Macomb Area Conference White Division to come from East Detroit.

"I understand they have a real good team this year," South's coach said. "It's the best group they've had since they were in the top 10 in the state about seven or eight years ago."

Yankees win playoffs

The Yankees beat the Tigers 7-5 to win the playoffs in the Grosse Pointe Farms-City Park 15-year-old Babe Ruth League. Jeff Mehr pitched a complete game and Chris McGroarty hit a sixth-inning homer to lead the Yankees. In the front row, from left, are official scorer Jan Orr,

Highlights

The Neighborhood Club offered an inline skating league for youngsters in kindergarten through grade five.

Following are some game results from that league.

CO-REC K & GRADE 1

Brains 2, Canadians 2

The Brains got tough defense from Beau Williams and Stephen Cotichio, while Charlie Johnston and Erich Meurer were strong in goal. Hank Peyer set up several plays at forward.

The Canadians had only four players, so the Brains let Philip Czekowski play for them and he scored a goal against his own team. The other Canadians played well, too.

Jets 2, Kings 1

Matt Burton and Drew Piggott played well in goal. Max McDonald and Michael Lucchese scored for the Jets. Roy Rainone, Jeff Stein and Mike Wertung played well both ways in helping the Jets finish the season with a 4-1 record. The Kings played well against the aggressive Jets and have improved throughout the season.

North Stars 1, Devils 1

The defensive game was highlighted by the goaltending of Dean Iganski, who didn't allow a goal this season, and Kevin Kelly. The North Stars' Andrew Phibbrick scored his first goal of the season in the second period. Jay Hales and Jimmy Colombo each had several shots on goal for the North Stars, who finished 4-1. The Devils played well together and executed some fine plays.

Kashoraki, Rosayne & Fleksa Mighty Ducks 4, Capitals 4

Adam Rock and Taylor Fleksa led the Mighty Ducks' offense, while Karl and Lee Baumgarten each played a steady game. Doug Robinson and Peter Manci also contributed, while Shami Estowman showed her versatility by playing forward, defense and goalie. The Capitals played a hard and fast game and made several excellent plays.

CO-REC GRADE 2 & 3

Real McCoy's 4, Red Wings 2

Patrick Lalliviere scored twice in the first period for the McCoy's, while David McCoy tallied the other two goals. Kirk Gibson made six saves in the first period, while Katie Andreowich torped away nine Red Wings shots in the second period. Lalliviere stopped eight shots in the third period and Lydie Roussin, Peter Spina, Danielle Maronette and Ryan McCoy also played well. The McCoy's were coached by Tim Lalliviere.

The Red Wings were led this season by the offense of Trevor Carr and Joe Stabesen, while Drew Winter was steady in goal. Amanda Carroll and Al-croetra Huntley executed the trap defense. Brad Daverman was strong in the corners and Alex Hubbard and John Okonowski played well at both ends to help the Red Wings finish with a 4-2 overall record.

CO-REC GRADE 4 & 5

Metro Comics 2, Penguins 1

Metro Comics had a fine offensive game from all of its players. Bobby Housman had two goals and two assists, while Colby Stamp scored three times. Joe North had two goals and an assist and Seth Yezzer had a goal and an assist. Matthew O'Laughlin scored a goal from Nicholas Dunn. Brandon Kropka has played well all season for Metro.

The Penguins demonstrated good passing and playmaking but were overpowered by their opponents' offensive force.

Inline skating

Fall leagues for inline skating will soon be forming at the Neighborhood Club.

Youngsters in kindergarten through grade six can sign up until Wednesday, Sept. 6.

Games will be played on weekends beginning Saturday, Sept. 16. All games will be played on a portable hockey rink in the club's parking lot. Players must provide their own equipment, including skates, stick, helmet, gloves and elbow and knee pads.

The league fee is $56 and each child must have a 1996-96 club membership.

You may register in person or by mail to the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe, 48230. For more information, call 855-4600.

Tough racing luck plagues Buhl

In any other season, Robbie Buhl would be in the thick of a race for the Firestone Indy Lights Series championship with 110 points, a victory and two pole positions in the first nine races.

But this isn't any other season and with the series championship already decided, Buhl is focusing his attention on winning the last three races for his Dorricott Racing team.

With a mid-June win at the Detroit Grand Prix, the Grosse Pointe native was solidly in second place and within hailing distance of first. After six races, Buhl was ahead of the pace he set during his Indy Lights championship season in 1992.

But the next three races knocked Buhl out of contention.

In all three, he started in the front row. But a strong second-place finish in Toronto was sandwiched between races in Portland and Cleveland in which "racing incidents" spelled disaster.

Buhl was running second in Portland with six laps to go when he was hit from behind and spun by rookie Bertrand Godin, the teammate of eventual Indy Lights series champion Greg Moore. After the restart incident, Buhl finished a disappointing 12th.

In Toronto, Buhl was quickest in the intermittent rain and the tight corners of the Exhibition Place course, but the cars of Moore and Godin were faster on the straightaways and Buhl finished a close second.

At Cleveland, Buhl was again a strong second when he had contact with a charging Buzz Calkins that sent him spinning in turn one. Buhl kept his car running, but engine problems sent him to the pits for good.

"Burke Harrison and the Dorricott Racing crew have given me a good car every race," Buhl said. "In any other season we'd be in the thick of the hunt. We're going to keep after it for the final three races."

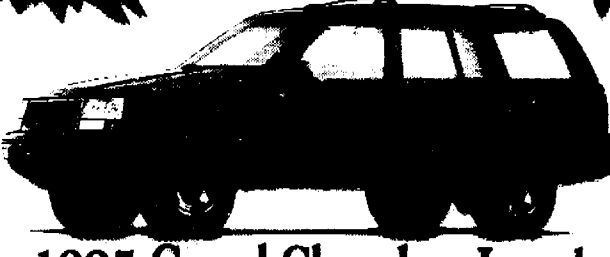

Class AAA champs

The Athletics beat the Dodgers to win the Grosse Pointe Park Little League Class AAA World Series. Both teams turned in excellent performances in the World Series. Members of the Athletics are Andrew Werthman, Pat Dantzer, James Adamo, Tommy Goodall, Leah Dantzer, Ruth Murawski, Ryan Sanborn, Jason Kline, Kustrum Shaqiri, Rob Porter, Andrew Amato, Andrew Shafterly and Jeff Stiller. The Athletics are managed by Nancy Kline. Members of the Dodgers are Kevin Cotter, Dave Minnick, Brendan Butler, Brandon Crawford, Dave Wenzel, Brian King, Ryan Thomas, Sean Hogan, Miles Talbot, Joey Somes, Kyle Herrington, Ben Neeme and Jermaine Holland. The Dodgers are managed by John Wenzel.

Park couple does well in World Veteran event

Grosse Pointe Park residents Jeanne and Jerry Bocci made a strong showing in the recent World Veterans Games in Buffalo, N.Y.

Jeanne finished ninth in the world and first among United States competitors in the women's 10,000-meter road walk championships. She was also a member of the U.S. team that won a bronze medal for finishing behind first-place Australia and runner-up Germany. Jeanne's time was 63 minutes, 13 seconds.

She also finished 10th in the world and second among U.S. athletes in the five-kilometer track championships.

Jerry Bocci competed in the 20,000-meter road walk and finished with a time of two hours, seven minutes and 12 seconds. He was the 21st U.S. athlete to hit the finish line.

Earlier this summer, the Boccis competed in the National Masters Track and Field Championships in Lansing and also did well.

Jeanne, who teaches health education at Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South, won the women's 50 and older 10K race walk.

Jerry was third in the men's 55 and over 20K race walk.

The Boccis also hosted a spaghetti dinner for the Australian National team, which stopped in Lansing on its way to the World Games.

Grosse Pointe Park residents Jerry and Jeanne Bocci are shown at the World Veterans Track and Field Championships, which were held in Buffalo, N.Y. The competition was open to female athletes 35 and over and male athletes 40 and older. The Boccis made a good showing in race-walking events.

Woods-Shores Babe Ruth results, highlights

Marlins 13, Giants 6
The Marlins scored three runs in the first and third innings to complete a successful season by winning the Prep (13-year-old) Division championship. Alex Lentz picked up the win with relief help from Jason Sargeous. Pete Patryk had two hits and scored four runs for the Marlins, while Matt DeFour had two key hits. Rich Rzycki led the Giants with three hits and scored twice.

Reds 4, Pirates 3
The Reds won the game with two runs in the bottom of the seventh. Dave Legwand drove in three runs with three hits and Chad Cooper scored twice for the Reds. Kevin Dietrich picked up the win in relief. Armand Bove had two hits, including a home run, and Jess Thibodeau hit a triple for the Pirates.

Reds 9, Pirates 5
Chad Cooper hit two home runs for the Reds, while Matt Burns and Gary Bordato also contributed key hits. Max Martin had two hits for the Pirates and teammate Jess Thibodeau had a triple and scored twice.

Reds 11, Yankees 4
The Reds scored four runs in the first and third innings. Matt Donnellon and Chad Cooper each had two hits and scored two runs for the Reds. Ryan Zangrilli pitched five innings to post the win.

Marlins 12, Rockies 11
John Kosmas' two-run triple in the bottom of the seventh — his fifth hit of the game — drove in the winning runs. Kosmas also scored four runs. Alex Lentz was the winning pitcher. Jeff Salinas had three hits and three runs for the Rockies.

Marlins 5, Rockies 3
Pitchers Mike Janis and Jason Sargeous held the Rockies to two hits. Alex Lentz and John Kosmas each had two hits for the Marlins. Jeff Hiller pitched well for the Rockies.

Reds 14, Athletics 5
Mike Spoth and Craig Ziolkowski

paced the Reds' attack with three hits apiece. The Reds scored six runs in the first inning and four in the fourth.

Marlins 5, Giants 3
Alex Lentz picked up the win with four innings of relief. Sean Hendrick and John Kosmas each had two hits for the Marlins. Brian Vanderberghe had two hits for the Giants.

Reds 1, Angels 0
Matt Burns drove in the game's only run in the second inning. Kevin Dietrich and Burns combined for the shut-out.

Meg Guillamin, left, and Lindsay Hawkins were the two Grosse Pointers on the St. Clair Shores Sharks softball team that finished first in the Macomb County Fastpitch League 16-and-under division. The Sharks, who are a 14-and-under team, won the league's regular-season and playoff titles on the way to a 36-8-1 overall record. The team was 19-0-1 in league play.

Pointe pair helps Sharks win league

Grosse Pointers Meg Guillamin and Lindsay Hawkins were members of the St. Clair Shores Sharks 14-and-under fastpitch softball team that won its division in the regular season and playoffs in the Macomb County Fastpitch League.

The Sharks also took first place at the Waterford Founder's Day tournament, was fifth in the 22-team Blaze tournament in Grand Rapids and finished second in the state NSA tournament. The Sharks had an overall record of 36-8-1.

The Sharks played in the 16-and-under division in the Macomb Fastpitch League and posted a 19-0-1 record, outscoring their opponents 238-32. In the playoffs, the Sharks beat Grosse Pointe North 18-0 and downed Fraser 13-1 and 9-1.

Guillamin played catcher and shortstop and batted .362 with 21 RBI. Hawkins played outfield and first base and finished with a .340 batting average and 11 RBI.

Guillamin and Hawkins will be freshmen at Grosse Pointe North this fall.

Earns black belt

Van Martin of Grosse Pointe Woods has earned a first degree black belt in taekwon do from the World Federated Taekwon do Association. Martin studied for three years with Master Tim McHugh at the Woods Community Center and earned trophies at the 1993 and 1994 taekwon do Tri-State Tournament. The requirements for promotion to black belt include a successful demonstration of self-defense techniques, tournament sparring, breaking a one-inch board with a hand and mastery of nine taekwon do forms. The two hours of testing also required confident answers to questions about taekwon do philosophy, history and reflection on the personal significance of attaining that level of discipline. Martin, 13, is a student at Parcels Middle School.

Ruth team takes third

The Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park 15-year-old All-Star Babe Ruth baseball team finished third in the recent state tournament in Niles.

The Grosse Pointe squad eliminated Port Huron, Alpena and Niles.

Team members were Mike D'Hondt, Eric Neveux, Brad Etheridge, Jeff Mehr, Jon Bayko, Andy Beaupre, Andy Kotsis, Nate Kaczmarek, Steve Dely, Chris McGratty, Joe Choma, Joe Bokano, Joe Gehrke, Pat Reynolds, Andy Steiger and Jon Kalmink.

Mark Orr was the manager and Pat DeLaere and Bill Adlloch were the coaches. Jan Orr was official scorer.

People and insects have helped shape our gardens

While you are working in your garden (we hope you are doing it in the very early morning on these hot days), you might be encouraged by remembering that on Aug. 23, 1786, Thomas Jefferson wrote in his journal, "The cultivators of the earth are the most valuable citizens."

It would seem that there are a great many cultivators of the earth in Grosse Pointe, judging by the lovely gardens we see on every side.

The Detroit Recreation Department's forestry and landscape division must also subscribe to this thought. Some rather staggering statistics are available about its efforts. Did you know that this division maintains 94 city flower beds, 22 greenhouses, three large gardens (of several acres each), more than 185 parks and playgrounds, six golf courses and numerous playfields, marinas, athletic fields, and tennis courts?

The department annually plants and tends more than 190,000 plants and flowers, including chrysanthemums, poinsettia, tulips, narcissi, hyacinths and thousands of seasonal plants. It is responsible for events such as the annual Builders and Garden Show at Cobo Hall. It works with the Metropolitan Detroit Flower Growers Association to hold two Eastern Market Flower Days annually. It also maintains the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle.

Garden Shed

By Ellen Probert

It isn't only in our own area of Michigan that the cultivators of the earth are valuable citizens. Did you know that Michigan ranks first in the nation in the growing of beans? And corn is Michigan's leading crop in terms of total acreage and value. Michigan produces the world's largest blueberry crop which is valued at more than $31 million annually.

When you stop to really think about it, the cultivators of the earth, namely you and me, have quite a lot of help from the insects which we tend not to appreciate but to think of as pesky critters.

Even though this is the season of the year when sales of insect repellent and fly swatters and bug lights, and potions and lotions to relieve mosquito bites and other insect stings abound, we really should give some credit to the insect population.

The wasp, for instance, and its distant relative, the bee, really do much more good than harm. For example, the bee produces honey and pollinates fruits, vegetables and other plants. The wasp, on the other hand, eats other insects.

Members of the wasp family include hornets, yellow jackets, polistes, mud daubers and cicada killers. They all munch on caterpillars, house flies, blowflies and mosquitoes. Foraging wasps, hornets and yellow jackets hunt and kill a great variety of destructive insects and should be appreciated as allies of the gardener.

We are much more welcoming to some other small winged creatures, the butterflies and moths, and the tiny, jewel-like humming birds, which love tubular-shaped flowers which they can go right into in their quest for nectar. Hummingbirds expend vast amounts of energy as they dart from place to place with their tiny wings fluttering so fast that they are almost invisible and creating the humming sound which names them.

Hummingbird feeders placed in the garden and containing a solution of one part sugar to four parts of water can be a marvelous source of bird-watching delights as these little creatures hover and dart about them.

Butterflies, preferring flat-topped blossoms that they can rest on while they sip nectar in comfort, are a decorative asset to our gardens and there are many varieties of them. Butterflies, which are really insects, too, are very useful in the pollinating of plants. They especially like purple flowers. If you would like to attract butterflies to your garden you might plant a butterfly bush, Buddleia davidii, a semi-hardy shrub with little purple and pink flowers which invariably attracts these little "flying flowers."

It is worthy of note that Christopher Columbus started out on his famous voyage in quest of new worlds in early August of the year 1492. What he found, and brought back, changed the gardens and the diets of most of Europe — beans, potatoes, tomatoes, vanilla, strawberries, pineapples, chocolate and corn. What would summer be without corn on the cob and sliced tomatoes?

And what would your gardens be in August without ageratum, dahlias, marigolds, petunias and zinnias, which are the official flower of the city of Detroit.

IF YOU LIKE THE LOOKS OF THE EXTERIOR . . .

then you will be even more pleased to view the inside of this wonderful center hall colonial located on Washington Road. Spacious three bedroom two and one-half bath home with third floor opportunity to expand, which features heat, air and plumbing access. EXTENSIVE new decorating throughout. Just move in and place your furniture.

DECEIVING FROM THE CURB . . .

is this wonderful four bedroom home in the Farms. Look for the home with beautiful landscaping and evidence of loving care. Nearly 1750 square feet featuring newer kitchen, large 24 foot family room, three full baths, hardwood floors and more. Owner transferred and has priced to sell in the One Thirties.

Economic concerns dampen second-quarter home sales

Consumer concern with job security and economic soundness have continued to dampen sales of existing homes, as only one state reported an increase in sales during the second quarter of 1995 compared to a year ago, the National Association of Realtors reported recently.

According to the association's latest quarterly survey of sales of previously owned homes, Delaware, which posted a 3.9 percent increase, was the only state to record a rise in home sales during the second quarter, compared to the same period a year ago.

While figures for Alaska, Georgia and Maine were unavailable, a total of 44 states and the District of Columbia reported home sales down in the second quarter. Of those states, 25 and the District of Columbia experienced double-digit drops compared to the second quarter of 1994. Arkansas was the only state to remain unchanged in sales of existing homes during the second quarter of 1995 compared to the same period a year ago.

Nationwide, the NAR survey showed the seasonally adjusted annual resale rate of existing single-family detached homes, town houses, apartment condominiums and co-operatives totaled 3.98 million units for the second quarter of 1995, a drop of 11.9 percent from the 4.52 million units sold during 1994's second quarter.

NAR president Edmund G. Woods Jr. said the figures accurately reflect the fears of consumers in today's marketplace caused by a slowdown in economic growth across much of the nation and concern over job security, as many employers continue to scale back operations.

"The first six months of this year were dampened by slow growth throughout the nation, and that has really impacted home sales through the second quarter — even falling mortgage rates in the second quarter were slow to revive the market's pace," Woods noted.

According to NAR executive vice president Almon R. "Bud" Smith, the association anticipates existing home sales to total 3.65 million units in 1995 — down 7.5 percent from 3.94 percent in 1994. NAR also expects consumer confidence to rise over the remainder of the year, which could boost sales above the anticipated rate, Smith notes.

"The housing market will continue to revitalize throughout the rest of the year as low mortgage rates and a reinvigorated labor market help settle economic fears," Smith added.

The NAR survey showed home sales declined in the second quarter of 1995 compared to a year ago, in every region of the nation.

The Northeast region of the nation experienced a 9.9 percent drop in resales during the second quarter of 1995 compared to a year ago, posting the only single-digit drop of any region. States in the region hardest hit by slow markets in the second quarter included Vermont, which posted a 24.6 percent drop in sales, and Massachusetts, which experienced a 18.8 percent fall from the second quarter a year ago. New York and Rhode Island were also down by 12 percent and 10.8 percent, respectively.

Sales of existing homes fell 10.2 percent in the South in the second quarter of 1995, compared to the same time last year. States hardest hit in that region included Maryland, down 25 percent, and Kentucky and West Virginia, both down 15.8 percent. The District of Columbia fell 13.1 percent compared to a year ago.

In the Midwest, which posted a 10.5 percent drop in resales for the second quarter, Minnesota proved to be the hardest hit state with resales down 14.2 percent from a year ago. Nebraska posted a drop in sales of 13.3 percent, followed by Missouri, down 12.5 percent and Michigan and Illinois both down 12.4 percent.

In the West, which experienced a 17.0 percent drop in resales in the second quarter, sales were dragged down by slowdowns in Hawaii, which posted a 31.3 percent drop; California, which witnessed a 23.1 percent fall; and Washington, which recorded a decline of 18.6 percent.

The National Association of Realtors, "The Voice for Real Estate," is the nation's largest professional association, representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Buy a quality home from a quality builder

The quality of a new home will in large measure be determined by the skill of the builder who constructs it. That's why you should shop for a builder as carefully as you shop for the features of a home. By doing so, you will be able to shop with a sense of confidence and knowledge that will help you to make the correct decision.

When you buy a new home, you are not just buying a structure. Along with the structure comes a package of services, and the quality of those services will have an important effect on your enjoyment of the house. Most homes come with a one-year warranty on workmanship and materials. Since virtually every home is going to need at least minor adjustments and repairs during the first year, you should look for a builder who will provide quality service after the sale.

Where do you find a skilled builder? A good place to start is the local builders' association in your area. Most builders' associations can provide a list of their builder members. The real estate section in the local newspaper is another good source of information about builders who are active in your area, the types of homes they are building, and the prices you can expect to pay. Also ask friends and relatives for recommendations.

The best way to find out what kind of service a builder offers is to ask previous customers. If you are buying a detached home in a subdivision, a townhome, or a multifamily condominium, find out what the builder has recently built in the area near where you are buying. Then visit one or two of the previous projects and ask the residents about their experiences with their home and their builder. The best time to visit usually is a Saturday morning when people are out doing yard work or chores.

When shopping for a new home from a particular builder, you should try to talk to people who have gone through the same experience that you are contemplating. Don't be shy about approaching people. Even knock on some doors if you have to. The worst that usually happens is that someone will refuse to talk to you. However, in most cases, a builder's previous customers will be quite open with you. If they are unhappy with their homes, they will let you know. And if they are happy, they will want to give the builder more business. Try to talk to at least three or four homeowners per neighborhood. You should not rely on the views of only one person.

Try not to rush through the process of choosing a builder. Set a reasonable timetable for your search, and do not make your decision until you feel comfortable about what you are doing. After you have happily settled into your new home, you will realize that the homework you did was well worth the effort.

The Michigan Association of Home Builders is comprised of more than 10,000 member companies providing service to over 370,000 people in the home building/construction industry. MAHB also represents 36 local home builder associations throughout the state.

Wake up to a view of Lake St. Clair! This stunning townhouse condominium has a lake view from several rooms, including the master bedroom which also has a fireplace (as does the bathroom). Sound luxurious? It is! Impeccable from top to bottom.

New listing on Merriweather in the Farms. This happy house sparkles with charm and color. Don't wait too long because in this location and priced at $186,900 it will be snapped up in a trice!

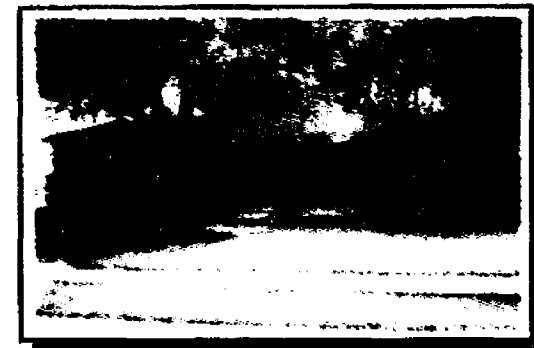

Lakeshore Drive in Grosse Pointe Shores is the location of this completely restored authentic clapboard Cape Cod style colonial. Spacious rooms, new kitchen with washed maple cabinets, skylights and lovely neutral decor.

Architecturally distinctive four bedroom home with that hard-to-find first floor bedroom and full bath. Lovely formal living room and dining room, updated kitchen with eating space and a family room too! Popular Farms area. $192,500.

Escape the ordinary! This English in the Park has all the fine detailing, extraordinary workmanship and incredible charm one hopes to find behind every front door. In addition, the entire house has been renovated to the highest standards of the nineties! $449,000.

If you love the water this canal home on an extra large quiet, secluded lot with two decks and steel seawall, will set your heart racing! Open, contemporary floor plan, new kitchen and family room and many more exciting features you need to know about.

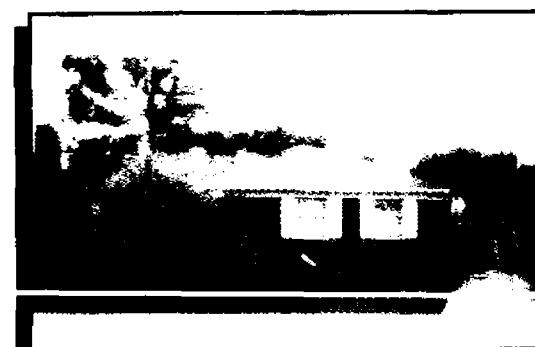

Windwood Pointe at its best! This second floor unit has been customized and decorated to the highest standards. A small lake view is an added treat as you catch the summer breezes from the screened terrace. Beautifully priced too at $182,500.

The newly adjusted price on this three bedroom ranch makes it even more attractive! Tucked away in a desirable St. Clair Shores location, the rooms are open and filled with light. A two car attached garage and beautifully landscaped garden with patio. Now $134,900.

Hard to find three bedroom Colonial with both a family room and a den on the first floor. Charmingly decorated throughout, this home is located on Overlake in St. Clair Shores right on the border of Grosse Pointe Woods. $129,900.

See it fast — it won't last. You'll love this three bedroom ranch with newer custom kitchen and you'll love the secluded Grosse Pointe Woods location even more. Updated bathroom, refinished hardwood floors, deck and more! $154,900.

For sale on Mack Avenue. This business only gas station is being offered at $185,000. Three bay garage, snack shop. Call for financial information.
