

Protect your head while bicycling, skating

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park's first triathlon, sponsored by Bikes, Blades and Boards, was a great success, said Park deputy director of public safety William Furtaw. One of the reasons it was so successful was because the participants thought about safety.

"We had no accidents or injuries that I was aware of," said Chris Powell of the Park public safety department. "All participants were equipped with helmets. The level of expertise ran the gamut from amateur to expert. But they all knew the importance of a helmet."

Furtaw said that these days many people are participating in a variety of aerobic sports, from bicycling to in-line skating, which he thinks is great, but people have to think in terms of safety.

"I remember many years ago, our department reported a report of a car-bicycle collision," said Furtaw. "When we arrived on the scene we learned that a car was going through the intersection, and didn't quite stop when a bicyclist was crossing the street. The driver slammed on his brakes, but the bicyclist swerved to avoid the car, and his pedal hit the curb."

While the car never actually hit the bicyclist, he still fell off the pavement, said Furtaw. While talking to the bicyclist, Furtaw noticed that one of his eyes appeared to be swelling, so they took the bicyclist to the hospital. He died a couple of hours later.

It seems the bicyclist suffered a rupture of a blood vessel in his head which caused internal bleeding, which is what killed him. It was something that probably would have been avoided if he was wearing a helmet, Furtaw said.

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on.

Woods debates calendar policy

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Is the annual calendar printed and distributed by the Grosse Pointe Woods government worth $14,000 a year? That was the question debated by the Woods council Monday night when the council voted to spend about $40,000 over the next three years to put out the calendar. The cost of that contract would be $3,136 a year, Councilmember Eric Steiner, of the city's public relations committee, told the council he

Grosse Pointe Woods council ponders traffic flow on Brys

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

It's a classic problem of modern suburbia — what a city does when faced with a growing traffic volume along a limited number of streets.

Tom Kosowski has come before the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council twice in the past few months to complain about the volume of traffic on Brys, which runs into old Eight Mile and I-94.

At the Sept. 9 council meeting Kosowski said that he and his family had moved to Brys in June, and he did not realize that the street experienced the amount of traffic that it does.

"I know it's a convenient street to use to get to Mack from westbound I-94 at the Eight Mile exit," said Kosowski. "I used to drive it all the time before I moved there. But now that I live on the street, I have to ask the council if there is something that can be done about the traffic flow."

Woods public safety director Jack Patterson said that over the years the city has made a number of efforts to try to solve the traffic problem, but a solution that pleased everyone proved elusive.

Changing traffic ordinances, in the past, resulted in shifting the traffic problems to other streets rather than in the elimination of the problem itself, said Patterson.

Woods mayor Robert Novitke told Kosowski that as a result of his family's previous visit to the council earlier in the summer, there was some discussion as to what could be done about the Brys traffic problem.

One thing the Woods council has to be aware of, Novitke said, is the fact that Brys is where the borders of the Woods, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores converge.

"If there is any way to improve traffic along Brys, the Woods can't act alone," said Novitke. "If we do, we could end up shifting our traffic problems to another community, and they, in response, could pass traffic ordinances that could shift the problem back to the Woods."

Novitke told Kosowski that Woods officials had talked with officials from Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores about this problem. Harper Woods officials asked that before actions were taken, a traffic study of the area be done.

Harper Woods city manager Jim Leidlein said that a car wash is in the process of being built on Harper, between Vernier and old Eight Mile.

"The car wash should be in operation in the next couple of months," said Leidlein. "We anticipate that once it's up and running, it will create more traffic in the area, so we asked that nothing be done by any of the cities until we had the chance to study the new traffic patterns."

Leidlein said that a multi-city solution was the best way to go. In the 1980s, the Harper Woods city council considered a plan to control traffic in the area.

The proposed ordinances would have been only in effect in Harper Woods, and the council decided not to go through with the plan after public hearings on the proposals showed that residents had little enthusiasm for the idea, Leidlein said.

Teachers, schools still bargaining

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Teams for the Grosse Pointe Public School System and the Grosse Pointe Education Association were still at the bargaining table earlier this week and had not reached a tentative agreement.

"Cost containment is the issue," said Rosalie Bryk, president of the GPEA, which represents 510 teachers in the school district. "We are working through the same issues — wages and benefits. We have resolved most of the non-economic issues."

The teachers' two-year contract, which featured a 2-percent pay increase for each year of the agreement, expired on Aug. 31.

"We remain optimistic," said Eugene Washchuk, personnel director for the school district. "But the board doesn't have the financial resources it had before Proposal A, which knocked out local taxes. The board made a commitment to be fiscally responsible and the settlement will not exceed revenue from the state."

Washchuk pointed out that the school district is currently bargaining with four employee unions: the teachers, the administrators, the classroom assistants and the clerical staff.

In 1993, talks between both sides stalled after an agreement could not be reached by deadline. A state-appointed fact finder came to the district to make a recommendation. In early 1994, the teachers agreed to a one-year contract with a 2.75-percent pay increase, retroactive to September 1993.

Once both sides reach a tentative agreement, the union takes the agreement to its bargaining agent, which is the Michigan Education Association/National Education Association Local One. The union's unified bargaining committee then would analyze the agreement and make recommendations, if necessary, to GPEA members.

The GPEA then holds a membership meeting to provide them with details. Five days after the informational meeting, the GPEA would hold a ratification meeting, in which a simply majority vote would ratify the contract.

Next, the Grosse Pointe school board votes at a public meeting to approve the agreement.

At press time on Tuesday, Bryk said while there is always the possibility of seeking mediation or fact finding, it has not been discussed and both sides remain hopeful the agreement will be reached without outside help.

Lunar eclipse visible over Michigan Sept. 26

Michigan sky-watchers will have a beautiful view of a total eclipse of the harvest moon on Thursday, Sept. 26, said University of Michigan astronomer Richard Teske.

The moon will be high in the east when the eclipse starts and the entire event will be visible. An extra bonus is the presence of the ringed planet Saturn which will appear just below the eclipsed moon.

"Lunar eclipses occur when the sun, Earth and moon all line up with the moon hidden in the shadow cast behind the Earth," Teske said.

During September's eclipse, the moon — traveling at a speed of 2,300 miles per hour — will enter the Earth's shadow starting at 9:12 p.m. By 10:54 p.m., the Earth's round shadow will completely cover the moon. The moon will be fully illuminated again by 12:36 a.m.

"As the moon darkens, faint stars and constellations around it become visible," Teske said. "Observers will see brilliant Saturn below the moon and a bit to its right. Careful watchers will notice the moon and Saturn changing their positions as the moon moves through Earth's shadow."

Saturn's brightness will not change, Teske said, because it is 880 million miles beyond the moon and unaffected by our planet's shadow.

"We are usually unaware of the shadow because there is nothing in empty space for it to be cast upon," Teske said. "If a huge movie screen were placed opposite the sun, we would see the screen brilliantly illuminated by sunlight with a dark circle — Earth's shadow — about three times the moon's width. The moon acts like a roving section of movie screen. It spends most of its time in bright sunlight, but sometimes orbits into the shadow's darkness."

Lunar eclipses no longer have important scientific value and are not intensively observed by astronomers, Teske said.

August precipitation below average in Great Lakes basin

During the month of August, precipitation was below average on the entire Great Lakes basin. For the year-to-date, precipitation is 9 percent above average for the entire basin. The net supply of water to the Lake Superior was above average, while the net supply of water to lakes Michigan, Huron, Erie and Ontario were below average.

Lake St. Clair at the end of August was at elevation 575.59 feet (175.44 meters) above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or about 39 inches (104 cm.) above the long-term average for August.

The lake was about 17 inches (42 cm.) below the all-time high August monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986.

The forecast shows that September's monthly mean level of Lake St. Clair will be about five inches (12 cm) below what it was at mid-August.

The lake is expected to continue its seasonal decline into November. The water level in mid-February 1997 is expected to be about 18 inches (46 cm.) above the long term average for that month, or about 9 inches (22 cm.) above what it was at the same time in 1996.

Park physician leads worldwide study of women's health issues

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

In the 1980s, the focus on heart disease was so much on men that often when a woman complained of chest pains, she was told she was having an anxiety attack, rather than that she may be suffering from angina or a myocardial infarction.

When one particular breast cancer study was conducted nearly 20 years ago, men were used because they have breasts too, and quite frankly, the research would not have to deal with the variables of women's hormonal cycles.

But issues regarding women's health are not going to go away, and most people in the medical profession around the country were as frustrated as their women patients were by the lack of answers.

Now, Michigan women have the opportunity to help the medical profession secure the causes and solutions of illness and death in women.

A Grosse Pointe Park woman is leading the medical team for the state. Susan L. Hendrix, a doctor of osteopathic medicine specializing in obstetrics and gynecology, particularly women's aging issues, was selected to be the Michigan leader by the Washington D.C.-based National Institutes of Health (NIH).

"The medical news 10 years from now will showcase hundreds and hundreds of articles and media reports on what we will find out from these medical studies. It will be like fireworks. This is so exciting," Hendrix said.

The study — whose $9.2 million funding was secured by a Congressional Act, and provided to NIH in September 1994 for administering — is now truly beginning.

Hendrix and her team are currently seeking women to participate in the study, entiled the Women's Health Initiative. It is the largest medical study ever undertaken in the history of men and women's health issues.

The Women's Health Initiative is being conducted out of 40 cities around the country. Only 14 of the 40 "principal investigators," of which Hendrix is one, are women. Together, 160,000 women will be studied over the next 10 years.

The major categories the Women's Health Initiative will study include:

- cardiovascular diseases in women such as heart attacks and strokes — the number one cause of death in women;
- osteoporosis;
- all cancers, particularly breast, colon and rectal cancers — the types of cancers causing the highest numbers of women's deaths;
- cholesterol levels, and their impact on women's health;
- estrogen hormone replacement therapy — does it do what it is suppose to do, and what are the side effects?

- bone loss
- cataracts and macular degeneration, and,
- memory and memory loss.

The discovery for gene markers for such things as Alzheimer's Disease or arthritis will also be pursued.

The study is comprised of several arms — some will isolate an issue, others will look at several issues, and the methods of observation will differ.

Women will be observed over the course of 10 years. Some women will be asked to keep a journal, others will only have to fill out a yearly questionnaire. All will receive some free medical treatment.

POINTER OF INTEREST

Dr. Susan L. Hendrix administers a basic physical exam to a woman who volunteered to be a part of the world's largest medical study of women's health issues.

Wayne State University, has until February 1998 to sign up 4,000 women. Currently, Hendrix and her team has signed up 1,000 women, guided them through orientation as to what they can expect, and given them their first physical exam. The women are from Michigan, Canada and Ohio.

Women must be between 50 and 79 years old. To sign up for the study, or learn more about it, call 1-800-54-WOMEN, or (313) 966-8000.

Hendrix admits that the thought of encouraging and securing 3,000 more volunteers is a little daunting only because most people have the erroneous idea that participating in a study means becoming a guinea pig and giving up all control as to decisions about one's own body.

"Not so in this study. It is very flexible, and there's nothing dangerous," Hendrix said.

"You could have had a hysterectomy, currently be on hormone replacement, not want to take hormones, and so on.

There are places for all types of women in the different arms of the study."

Best of all, said Hendrix, is that the women who participate "earn a place in history. They gain the satisfaction that they helped contribute information to improve not only their own health, but that of their daughters, granddaughters, and future generations of women."

Still not convinced? Well, how about a lot of free medical care over the next 10 years, including: mammography, pap smears, pelvic and breast exams; EKG tests, blood work; hip X-rays, bone mass density measurements, and exams for cataracts and macular degeneration of the eyes. Also, some women in the hormone replacement section of the study will receive free estrogen therapy.

In addition, in the event any woman participating in the study has a health problem not yet diagnosed, Hendrix said it is likely to be discovered, and treatment suggested and/or provided. This streamlines the process all people have to go through when they suffer a health problem — visit their primary care physician, get a recommendation for a specialist, and so on.

Despite the challenge ahead for Hendrix, she has a track record of proceeding confidently forward in new experiences, even in her personal life.

One different personal experience on which she reflects positively is her wedding four years ago. It was held in Scotland, and her husband — Gene McNeeley, also an obstetrician and gynecologist — was dressed in full Scottish dress, including a kilt.

In addition to mixing married life with her new and important medical position, she spends time on one of her favorite hobbies — reading John Grisham novels. She enjoys spending time with her son, Kyle Peterson, who turned 15 Monday, and for whom she planned a family birthday celebration. How did Hendrix get chosen for the honor of leading the medical research out of Michigan?

"I spend one month of my life writing a proposal that is several hundred pages long." She said she is pleased to have that task behind her, adding that it beat out a proposal from University of Michigan.

In addition, Hendrix is the only osteopathic doctor selected among the 40 lead investigators. Hendrix graduated from Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine in 1983. Prior to that she attended Rutgers and Villanova universities for undergraduate work. Hendrix did a one-year internship, rotating through departments at Lansing General, and a four-year residency at Sparrow Hospital, also in Lansing.

Hendrix joined the MSU College of Osteopathic faculty in 1988 and continued until 1992, when she moved to Grosse Pointe.

Does secession make sense?

It's being discussed seriously in the western and southern parts of Wayne County, but more or less informally in the eastside communities of the Pointes and Harper Woods: secession from Wayne County.

"We are not in a heated discussion yet, but we have talked about it," Grosse Pointe Shores President John Huetteman III said of the Pointes and Harper Woods mayor's meetings. "We're keeping our eyes and ears tuned to what's going on in western Wayne County."

Last week, several municipalities in the western part of the county, met in Redford Township to discuss the idea of secession.

Many residents of Wayne County communities outside the city of Detroit say they are frustrated with amount of taxes paid compared with county services returned.

"The basic issue is taxation without representation," said Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan. "It's unfair that the county has to support Detroit. Detroit has just 20 percent of the tax base and 50 percent of the population. Wayne County's tax rate is 8.2 mills, Oakland County's is 5.2 mills and Macomb County is 4.75 mills. It's making our community less desirable in which to live or do business."

Heenan thinks a Grosse Pointes/Harper Woods county could function efficiently for less than 4 mills.

However, creating an eastside county is not a simple task.

"The eastside seceding from Wayne County would be an enormously complicated process and very, very expensive for residents. Any such exercise would involve litigation and many years of effort," said Gail Kaess, a Grosse Pointe Farms council member and director of intergovernmental relations for Wayne County. "In fact, a suburban county of 70,000 people cannot afford to pay for the mandated services of a county government."

First District Wayne County commissioner Andrew Richner said that although some of these services could be done locally or farmed out to other counties, creating a new county would still be a complicated and expensive proposition.

"The Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods seceding from Wayne County has a zero chance of happening," he said. "The state Constitution requires a county-wide vote, and who, outside of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, wants these communities to secede from the county?"

Heenan feels that secession for the east side is a possibility, if the other suburbs decide to create western Wayne and downriver counties as well. He also says there are Detroit residents who would prefer their own county executive rather than an out-county one, as there is now.

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor Robert Novitke finds the idea of secession intriguing, but would like more information before deciding whether it's the right thing to do.

"Conceptually, there's a lot of merit to the idea," he said, "but we need to look at what our obligations would be, as far which departments we would have to provide. We also need to examine what liabilities we might be taking on."

The Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods send about $18 million to Wayne County each year — about 7 percent of the $240 million the county receives in property taxes — but make up just 3 percent of the county's population.

In August, county voters approved a 1/4-mill parks tax, which will cost the Pointes and Harper Woods $3 million over five years, none of which will be spent here. Although the suburbs did not vote for the additional county tax, voters in Detroit helped pass it.

"I think the drive to break up county government is symptomatic of the way people feel about government, in general, being too big and unresponsive to their needs," Richner said. "I think we can make county government more responsible and more responsive to our needs."

Richner mentioned areas, such as the Workforce Development Board and the Wayne County Transit Authority, which have local representation rather than appointments by the county executive.

Secession, in our view, appears to have merit. It also needs, and will have, the mayors say, more examination during the next few months. But a lot of questions need to be addressed — by current county, municipal and state officials — before the issue is put before the voters.

A view from the sidelines

While Grosse Pointe News editorial writer Bill Elston is recuperating from surgery, we will reprint some of his past columns which have relevance today. The following piece was published Feb. 7, 1991, during the Persian Gulf War.

For many of us senior citizens, the outbreak of war in the Persian Gulf that marks the start of the fifth major United States war in our lifetime prompts recollections about the effects of the other four.

Each major war has left its impact on the United States. In addition to the terrible human losses, there are economic, social, political, cultural and other effects that are felt for years afterward.

The war in the Persian Gulf is no different. Losses of loved ones are already being reported in Michigan and elsewhere. With a ground war about to begin in earnest, there will be many more casualties.

But the Gulf war is already having other effects. Just last week Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, warned that the nation could face a long and deep recession if the war lasts more than three months.

As for World War I, the first we seniors knew, it cost 53,500 battle dead and 320,700 total casualties. That war presumably had ended the nation's isolation from world affairs but it took a second World War to make us a world power.

World War I also laid the seeds of the great depression. It began with American agriculture. When wartime demands for food stimulated the farm economy and the federal government urged farmers to "plow to the fence for defense," farmers put 40 million new acres into production.

In 1920, the bubble burst. Farm prices skidded and American agriculture dipped into a major depression that foreshadowed the national economic debacle of 1929.

Between the two world wars, the myth that the munition makers were responsible for war took root. At the University of Minnesota, a hotbed of isolationism when I was a student there in the early 1930s, one rally even approved an amended Oxford pledge saying students would fight only in defense of their country.

In 1941, as editor of the Worthington Daily Globe, I helped produce an "extra" to report the news of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, the "day of infamy" that took us into World War II.

Isolationism died that day and even Oxford pledgers volunteered. But reports soon began to roll in of the deaths of relatives and friends. Shortages, rationing, travel restrictions and other wartime limitations plagued the home front.

World War II cost this country more than 292,000 battle deaths and more than a million casualties all told, but afterward the nation proved it had ended its isolation by stationing troops in Germany and Japan. Some are still there.

The war's end set off a huge burst of economic activity in the United States. As the troops returned, manufacturers of civilian products pushed output to fill the pent-up demand and fueled an era of prosperity.

The war also began the liberation of American women, who not only had served in the armed forces but as production line Rosie the Riveter replacements for the men who had gone to fight. After the war, they stepped up their fight for equality and independence — and 27,000 of them are serving in the Gulf.

A new war in Korea briefly delayed my departure for a new assignment in Washington in 1950, but when I arrived in late July, nobody knew how extensive the United Nations action would become. Many feared, in fact, that it might be the start of World War III.

It wasn't, of course. It did threaten to become one when the UN command found itself facing not only the North Koreans but the Communist Chinese who feared their borders were threatened.

Cease-fire talks began in 1951 but the fighting dragged on until July 1953. That undeclared war cost the United States 33,600 battle deaths and 157,500 casualties — and we still have forces stationed in South Korea.

As a Detroit News editorial writer, I supported the Vietnam War after President Kennedy began sending military advisers to Saigon in 1962. I had interviewed President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Vietnam in Saigon in 1956 and had been impressed with his efforts to obtain U.S. investment to bolster his flagging economy.

But Diem turned out to be a weak reed. Eventually, after U.S. president after U.S. president failed to win the war, I came to agree with most Americans that we were unlikely to win without the support of a majority of the South Vietnamese.

With the war intensifying, college students and other war protesters staged violent demonstrations as the number of U.S. troops in the front lines rose and casualties mounted.

Withdrawal of U.S. forces began in 1969 after they had peaked at 543,000, but the last U.S. combat troops did not leave until August 1972. U.S. forces reported 47,000 battle deaths and 211,000 casualties. The anti-war sentiments expressed in those Vietnam years are being revived today. Once again, Americans are divided. Most people have rallied behind the president, but others oppose the use of force, the ground war or any U.S. participation.

Even some supporters of the war complain that the U.S. is carrying the heaviest load under the UN banner, both in fighting forces and financial burdens, despite allied pledges of support.

Those who raise this issue question neither the purpose of the war effort nor the contributions of Americans whose blood is draining away in the desert sands. But in my view, it is fair to question the substance of the support from some allies, notably Germany and Japan, our World War II enemies.

In fact, if a "new world order" is to be successful, some of the foot-dragging nations will have to guarantee more support in the field and at the bank for any collective security action. Otherwise, they will risk seeing a U.S. retreat into a new isolationism.

Safety concerns To the Editor:

As a handicapped parent, I moved to Grosse Pointe believing it to be a "children first" community.

Now, with my son entering third grade, imagine my horror at the handling of traffic at Chalfonte and Cook. This intersection is flanked by two schools, yet traffic is not regulated.

Suspensions led to parking my mobility scooter at the sidewalk there, better enabling me to guide my son. Motor vehicle drivers barely look. The yield signs in this school area are as treated as optional.

My son needs to walk/bike to school. I now know why so many kids are driven there. The Grosse Pointe Woods police department indicates "no reported incidents," though parents say otherwise.

Please call this department (313) 343-2400 and register your opinion. This location seems to require a traffic light in order to coach drivers as well as pedestrians safely.

Another candidate To the Editor:

I congratulate the Richners on their new baby (FYI, Sept. 12), however, the Grosse Pointe News errs in declaring a victory for Mr. Richner.

There will be an election on Nov. 5 and, as far as I know, as another candidate for the same office, he hasn't been elected.

There will be a choice.

Mutual respect? To the Editor:

A few weeks ago, a group of parents called other parents to write letters of support for Ralph Miller. During that process, many citizens of this community shared their concerns about a wide range of ideas that were important to this school community.

A list was made of these concerns and Dr. Klein, the acting superintendent, met with these parents to learn about these concerns.

However, when this group was asked to meet with

More letters on page 13A

Timothy Howlett, president of the school board, Mr. Howlett said he would meet with Dr. Klein and learn of these concerns from her. He would not meet with his constituents.

I need clarification. Does the school board get its direction from the school administration? Is the board separate from the administration or a branch of the administration?

Fortunately, this community has some school board members who are willing to hear from its citizens and we trust they will ably review the information and follow any paths needed to answer the concerns its citizens took the time to share.

Personally, I think that a community works best when its citizens and the board are responsive to one another. It is this teamwork and mutual respect that helps school systems to function successfully.

Mr. Howlett did little to encourage this mutual sense of respect.

Get it right, please To the Editor:

This letter is to correct school board member Cindy Pangborn's closing remarks at the Board of Education meeting on Sept. 9, in which she wanted to "clarify some misinformation given to the public that evening."

Since the "misinformation," in her words, was the information I presented that evening, I feel compelled to respond to your remarks publicly.

Regarding her point Number One: I said that the Grosse Pointe high schools do not have a marching band. Period. She referenced that I accused Mr. Ralph Miller of causing the demise of that institution. I did no such thing.

Regarding Point Number Two: I mentioned that the Grosse Pointe Bands and Orchestras do not attend the Band and Orchestra Festivals sponsored by the MSBOA.

I am well aware of the Solo and Ensemble Festival in which the students volunteer to participate. I also participated in these festivals for my per-

Wayne County starts child advocate program

Nearly two million children in this country are missing at some time every year. Eighty percent of them return home shortly after their disappearance. The rest never do. And many of those who don't are runaways and throwaways.

Thrown away by whom? Their parents. Running away from what? Frequently it's an impossible home life gone undetected or uncorrected. Just as often, it's foster care. Foster care can be an excellent temporary refuge. But for those who spend their young lives shuffled from place to place, with no sense of love and belonging, it's the front door to despair.

Whether these children are forced out or make their own decisions to leave, they are victims. And most of them remain victims. They flee the intolerable only to find it.

I once knew two who did. They were classmates, albeit briefly, of one of my daughters. Remembering them is painful because helping them was impossible. However much I wanted to, I lacked the knowledge, the resources and the authority to make a difference in their lives.

At age 12, Tracy was a tall, slender girl, more frail than gangling, a nervous little creature, but affectionate and outgoing nonetheless.

Glasses — their frames long out of style — kept her right eye from straying. They also prompted jokes from her peers. But she shrugged them off, much as she did other slights at school, saving her energies and her tears for home and the cuffs and cursings of a single, alcoholic mother.

Besides, being a good sport might lead to being accepted, a need in her that was almost an obsession.

By age 18, Tracy had been through three foster homes in as many years. She had run away from the last one before completing high school, couldn't find a job and couldn't figure out how to get on welfare.

She was living with her second "boyfriend." The first had tried to shoot her. She needed money.

I wrapped some in advice and gave it to her, knowing that both the packaging and its contents were inadequate. That was in 1982. I don't know where — or if — she is anymore.

Tim could have been the model for Rockwell's "Gone Fishin." Sandy-haired, freckle-faced and easygoing, he was as appealing as ice cream in July.

Like most boys his age, he liked to eat. Unlike most boys his age, he liked to read. And if he found roast beef and classics acceptable, he considered Twinkies and Time essential.

At age 13, he was already talking about college, on a scholarship he was sure would come in spite of his math grades and because of records he would set in track. But his dreams ignored a host of realities.

With considerable regularity, Tim was either ordered or thrown out of his house. When that happened, he would sleep in somebody's bushes, an open garage — wherever — until discovered, turned over to the police and taken to a juvenile home. Then, because he had committed no crime, he would be transferred to a youth shelter. And, ultimately, he would be returned to his frustrated mother and her fractious boyfriend.

One he was placed in foster care. But given the chance less than a year later, he opted for home and the long-familiar circle of reunion and rejection. Not long after that, he hanged himself.

Tracy and Tim's stories are not as brutal as some of those that make the evening news. But they are equally sad and equally senseless. And, while

Right now, the Wayne County CASA program is in the process of screening prospective volunteers who will then be trained and assigned to a single child's case. Any individual or organization interested in participating should call Sylestine Thorton at (313) 833-3092.

The CASAs program's objective is to return children to their natural parents within a reasonable length of time — so long as whatever made them wards of the court to begin with has been unquestionably remedied — or, that failing, make them eligible for adoption.

Finally, ordinary people can make a difference. If enough of us respond, CASA will work here in Wayne County just as it does elsewhere in this and other states. It will give mistreated children the kind of protection they need and the kind of permanency they deserve. And, in the process, it will stem an unconscionable waste.

WHO NEEDS VOTERS?

Let's account for all the MIAs

Take a moment to think about someone you dearly love.

Imagine the special moments you've shared. Reflect on how this person's encouragement instilled hope during a dark moment. Consider the countless times this person imbued your life with a sense of purpose.

Now, imagine how you would feel if your special person was gone, without so much as an explanation. You have no word on whether your loved one is dead or alive.

The first natural impulse is to seek help in finding the missing person. Authorities, families and communities come together to find missing Americans every day in the United States.

The American Legion wants the U.S. government to be at least as vigilant as missing-persons authorities when it comes to investigating the status of those listed as either prisoners of war or missing in action.

We must not forget either their sacrifices or the sacrifices of their families for their country.

We pause on National POW/MIA Recognition Day, Sept. 20, to remember those brave servicemembers and their families in our prayers. We also reflect on America's obligation to them.

The men and women of The American Legion demand the fullest possible POW/MIA accounting. Every case must be resolved either by turning over live prisoners, repatriating the remains of those who were killed in action or died in captivity, or providing a valid, conclusive report when neither is possible.

American servicemembers and their families are entitled to the truth. When we imagine life without a special person, we feel a fraction of the frustration that POW/MIA families face every day — an emptiness intensified by years of uncertainty.

From the servicemember's perspective, every one of them deserves a homecoming.

Decades after combat ended, the following approximate number of American servicemembers are still unaccounted for: World War II, 78,000; Korean War, 8,000; Cold War, 130; Vietnam War, 2,200.

Congressional hearings, media articles and research by activists have revealed that the U.S. government has been largely ineffective in fulfilling its responsibilities to POW/MIA and their families.

Part of the problem has been foreign regimes giving America the appearance of cooperation in order to sustain economic ties to our great nation.

The American Legion in April called for a congressional investigation into disclosures that the Vietnamese government overcharged the United States for POW/MIA accounting.

A report also said the Hanoi government was profiting from U.S. funds that were earmarked for laborers who carried out the accounting process.

The U.S. and North Korea agreed in June to work together to recover American remains.

The American Legion is monitoring the progress of that joint effort, demanding our government not tolerate deception. Claims that American POWs in North Korea were smuggled to Russia for intelligence purposes must be probed.

The American Legion believes there are two additional actions the U.S. government must take:

- Seek full POW protections under the Geneva Conventions or other binding international agreements for Americans captured in humanitarian or peacekeeping operations.

- Establish a National POW/MIA Commission, which would include representatives of veterans' service organizations, to protect the rights of future POW/MIAs and their families.

The American Legion supported the Missing Persons Act that was signed into law in February. It provides for standard and timely review of cases, full disclosure to family and designated people, and judicial review. It applies retroactively to Korean War cases.

Nothing less than a full POW/MIA accounting will sufficiently "end" the war for lost servicemembers and for their loved ones in the U.S. whose lives have been changed forever.

Joseph J. Frank is national commander of The American Legion, the nation's largest veterans organization.

War? What war?

Sunday was Family Fun Day at the War Memorial and out back on the lawn was a table full of senior citizens having a good time while trying to get across a serious message.

They were Pointe war veterans autographing copies of the recently-published book, "Call to Arms: Grosse Pointers in World War II," and hoping to interest some of the folks around in picking one up.

Still available at the War Memorial, the book is a sober reminder of the trials of war, it's packed with the history of a lot of local people, and it's an enjoyable read.

Signing their stories were just a few of those mentioned inside: Paul Dykstra, Dan Borodin, David White, Harold Heffner, Jim Fielding, Harold Battjes, Sheldon Flynn, Donn Kipka, Noel VanAssche, Lorraine Dieterle and Joe Trowern.

"Lots of kids coming by don't know anything about World War II," said Joe, "and some of their parents don't know much more."

How soon they forget. I had a feeling Joe would have scratched his head in puzzlement at it all, but for the fact that he was wearing his old combat helmet at the time.

The one with a couple of bullet holes in it.

Fine volunteer, fine tribute

An honor bestowed on the late James E. Brophy has brought a little bit of the Pointes to Sault Ste. Marie: It's his name, now on the Welcome Center at the International Bridge at the Soo, where a number of Brophy family members recently attended a special dedication ceremony.

On Sept. 6 the center was named after longtime Pointer Brophy in recognition of his many years as chairman of the International Bridge Authority, a post he held almost continuously, from 1959 (when he was appointed by then-Gov. G. Mennen Williams) until Mr. Brophy's sudden death April 10.

Bojarczyk, of the Woods.

"We're all honored to have the Welcome Center bear the (James E.) Brophy name," says Brophy's wife, Hope, also of the Woods.

Primary booboo

FYI has to admit there's a pretty good snag in what last week's column described as the "1st District State Rep-elect" status of Republican primary winner Andrew Richner: "I'm running against him," says Democratic primary winner Elaine Hartmann, "and he hasn't been elected yet."

The longtime Farms resident, owner of an antique shop on Kercheval (and active in Farms planning and historic preservation in the Pointes) hopes for a strong base of support on issues of pro-choice; job training and affordable child care, and opposing school vouchers. "I'm looking for a lot of crossover votes from women and parents of school-age children," she says.

"We'll see what happens November 5."

My goodness!

A few Sundays ago when FYI was admiring the cookbooks in the Undercroft kitchen of Christ Church Grosse Pointe and came across "Grandma Rose's Book of Sinfully Delicious Cakes, Cookies, Pies, Cheese Cakes, Cake Rolls and Pastries," he immediately brought it to the attention of the clergy.

"Aha," said rector Ted Cobden.

"Might be some kind of theological treatise," associate priest Bry Dennison cautiously offered.

Finally, Ted's wife and sometimes-rectorina Evie Cobden gave an answer you could sink your teeth into. "Sounds awfully yummy to me," said Evie.

When Lynn Kylie's deaf Persian cat got out and disappeared a few weeks back, she couldn't believe the response from well-wishers. "We put up some posters and it was like the whole neighborhood pitched in," says Lynn.

"All the joggers started looking for her and it seemed like every kid for blocks around was involved — we would get calls like, 'We saw your cat over on Harvard, but she got away,'" Lynn says.

"All that day we were getting 10-minute updates on her whereabouts. We must have had 15 calls."

One of the neighborhood boys found the cat the next night and brought her back.

What was this highly sought-after kitty's name?

"Kismet," says Lynn. "It was her fate to be found."

City of angles

Angle parking on Kerchval between Cadieux and Neff has been in effect for many years. Lately, there has been much argument both for and against the system. The police, Wayne County Road Commission and most of the drivers who use these blocks have been for abolition of angle parking and the establishment of parallel parking to ease the traffic situation. ■ The City of Grosse Pointe Council passed a resolution to establish parallel parking on the south side of Kercheval in the Village. The Wayne County Road Commission had been asking the City get rid of angle parking because of traffic problems, but the City felt more cars could fit in the allotted parking areas with angle parking.

This is another installment in an ongoing feature commemorating the 75th anniversary of the Grosse Pointe Public School System. If you have a story, an old photograph, yearbook or anything else to share that would be of interest to Grosse Pointe News readers, call (313) 343-5591 or stop by the office at 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Accolades

Scott Vago of the City of Grosse Pointe recently was named North American Invitational Champion for drum set at its 95th Annual National Music Contest held this year in Toledo, Ohio. The national contest is the final step for musicians who qualify by winning regional competitions across the country.

Vago, a junior at Notre Dame High School and son of Marcia and David Vago, qualified for the national contest by placing first in the 16-year-old age division at the Guild's Great Lakes Regional Competition held in Southfield in April. The Great Lakes Region is the Guild's largest, so competition was intense.

By winning at the Regional Age Competition, Vago also qualified to compete in the Guild's prestigious North American Invitational Competition. The American Guild of Music describes the invitational as its "most prestigious contest."

Competition is by instrument and consists of winners from all age divisions from across the United States and Canada. Drummers are required to compose their own 10-minute solos for competition. They are judged on originality, techniques and dynamics; Vago scored a 99 out of a possible 100.

At Notre Dame, Vago is the lead drummer in the marching band, concert band and jazz band and also is a member of Notre Dame's drama club.

Grosse Pointe's 11th graders fared well on new proficiency exam

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

High school juniors in Grosse Pointe may have scored second highest in the state on the first-ever High School Proficiency Test, HSPT, but that doesn't mean the school district doesn't have work to do.

"We are very satisfied," said Marjorie Parsons, assistant superintendent for curriculum and evaluation in the Grosse Pointe Public School System. "It's very gratifying that all the advance work, the curriculum alignment and attention to what the state has wanted has paid off."

Statewide scores for the HSPT were released on Friday, Sept. 13. The HSPT replaces the Michigan Educational Assessment Program, MEAP, as a qualifier for high school diploma endorsements. The new exam serves as a measure of the school system's core curriculum and of a student's level of proficiency in math, science and communication arts.

Endorsements will be noted on diplomas and transcripts and are to be used by college admitting offices and employers as an additional evaluation of high school graduates.

Results for Grosse Pointe schools are:

- For the mathematics exam, 80.2 percent achieved proficient status; 16.2 percent reached novice status; and 3.6 percent are rated as not-yet-novice. Statewide, 47.7 percent achieved proficient; 38 percent reached novice; and 14.3 percent are rated as not-yet-novice.

- On the science exam, 55.2 percent achieved proficient; 39.4 percent reached novice status; and 5.4 percent are not-yet-novice. In Michigan, 32 percent are proficient; 52.2 percent are novice; and 15.8 percent are not-yet-novice.

- On the reading exam, 68.8 percent are proficient; 28.6 percent are novice; and 2.6 percent are not-yet-novice. In Michigan, 40.2 percent are proficient; 51.3 percent are novice; and 8.5 percent are not-yet-novice.

- On the writing test, 59.3 percent are proficient; 38.3 percent are novice; and 2.4 percent are not-yet-novice. Statewide, 34.4 percent are proficient; 53.1 percent are novice and 12.5 percent are not-yet-novice.

Now comes the challenging part. The district must interpret the scores, by building, by subject, by student. Then it must convey those findings to parents and to teachers. Amid all this, it must prepare for the next battery of tests, the first of which are set for Monday, Sept. 30.

"We look at the scores and ask ourselves, are they good enough? Where do we need to improve? It gets down to one child at a time," Parsons said. "Parents should check with their child's teacher on how these results fit in with their everyday work. It's like one piece of a puzzle. Use the results to work in the child's favor. Results are best interpreted by the person who knows the most about that child in a learning environment." The test scores provide a snapshot of learning, but not a whole picture, Parsons said.

The new tests were described as challenging and the most rigorous and difficult thing high school students have been given, she said. They differed substantially from state tests in the past in that they asked students to do more than multiple choice answers.

Parsons credited the high school administrators for their advance preparation of staff, students and parents. Tests were administered last March over a two-week period. In order to accommodate the students, high school buildings were closed to outsiders until 10:30 a.m. to minimize distractions.

While the staff overall felt the tests were challenging, Parsons said there were some areas of concern. The science teachers sent a letter to the state department of education in which they take issue with some of the test questions in which they felt more than one answer could be correct.

"It will be hard to put the numbers in perspective," Parsons said. "The state never announced what a passing score was before the test. They still haven't given us what are called 'scale scores.' But if other things are holding strong, like ACTs and SATs, then you're not losing ground. Test scores mean something in conjunction with other things. When you go to a doctor for a test, you don't make a life decision based on that one test. You'd want to get other information."

The next round of MEAPs, given to fourth and seventh graders in math and reading, and retests of the HSPT, begin on Sept. 30. Juniors will be given the new HSPT in January; statewide results are expected by next June.

The Grosse Pointe News will publish results and information next week about the new science MEAP test.

Definitions of test standards

A student who scores within the proficient range in the science test, for example, demonstrates the ability to use, construct and reflect on science knowledge, and:

- demonstrates knowledge of earth and space science, life science and physical science;

- develops solutions to problems by interpreting text, graphs, tables, formulas or other representations of scientific knowledge; and,

- is able to "step back" and analyze or reflect upon his or her own knowledge base using theoretical or empirically based arguments and describe the limitations of his or her own knowledge and scientific procedures in general.

Grosse Pointe high school students maintain high scores on college entrance examinations

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Graduating seniors from Grosse Pointe North and South high schools surpassed the state and national averages on both the Scholastic Assessment Test, SAT, and the American College Test, ACT.

Both standardized tests are voluntary and are administered by private testing agencies. Students may take either or both any time during their high school careers. ACT is customarily an in-state college admission exam; SAT is most often used by out-of-state colleges.

"(Last year) was a stellar year for the Grosse Pointe Public School System in terms of learning results demonstrated on three external measurements: the ACT, the SAT and the Advanced Placement Tests," said Marjorie Parsons, assistant superintendent for curriculum and evaluation for the Grosse Pointe schools, during a Sept. 9 presentation to the school board. "Results in all three test areas maintain the district's significant leadership position in education at the state and national levels."

Highlights of the presentation included:

- The SAT is a two-part exam (verbal and mathematics). Scores range from 200 to 800. Fifty four percent of the senior class last year took the exam; the state's average is 11 percent of the senior class. The mean score nationally was 1013. In Michigan, it was 1122. Grosse Pointe seniors had an SAT mean score of 1125.4.

- The ACT is scored on a range of 1 to 36 and divided into quartiles. The lowest quartile is a score of one to 18, then 19 to 21, then 22 to 26. The highest quartile is a score in the range of 27 to 36. Eighty four percent of North and South students took the ACT; students averaged a score of 22.9. Nationally, the average score was 20.9. In Michigan, students scored an average of 21.1.

"Most of our scores are in the higher quartiles," Parsons said. "Fifty eight percent are in the upper half of the range. This is just a tremendous thing on a college admission test. To put it in perspective, though, in the 27 to 36 range, we had 114 students, or 23 percent. This is an important test to us because so many kids take it and so many universities require it."

Thirty-six percent of Grosse Pointe public school students, or 498 students, placed in the second highest quartile.

Twenty five percent of North and South students placed in the third highest quartile, which according to Parsons, is still a respectable place to be and the national average.

Parsons said one reason colleges require a standardized test score is that high school transcripts are not standardized and grading systems among high schools are not parallel.

"An A at one school is not in all cases equal to an A at another school," she said. "In order to predict which freshmen are likely to succeed in college, students take either test."

Parsons also pointed out that ACT surveys students taking the test and has concluded that students who have completed the high school core curriculum — typically in the senior year — fared better on the exam. The core consists of four years of English, three years of math, three years of science and three years of social studies.

"The lowest score we had was by a sophomore who had an 11 and did not attempt to retake the test," she said.

Parsons, along with board members, credited, in part, the Advanced Placement program and teachers at North and South.

"This is a voluntary program and students have to be willing to work hard," she said. "They do college level work while still in high school."

Grosse Pointe has a passing rate of 84 percent in the rigorous AP program, she said. Students earn college credit upon successful completion of the program.

Don't make a fuss — there's a poet inside all of us

"Don't underestimate us, seniors."

These are not bare and lean years
We're better than we ever were Just call us 'Super Seniors.' It's not Whitman or James Whitcom Reilly or even Edgar Guest, but it is a poetic expression of one person's pride in being an older citizen.

This little verse came out of a course, creative expression, taught in Durham, N.D., and sponsored by the Durham Arts Council and Durham Technical Institute.

The class was made up of senior citizens who gathered under the leadership of Ellen Johnston-Hale twice a week. The members felt that the term "senior citizens" did not convey the vitality and energy they possessed, so they coined the designation "super seniors." Most of them, before joining the class, didn't know they could write poetry. They thought a poem had to rhyme or contain elegant phrases. They didn't know that some of the thoughts they expressed to the group were poetic.

They didn't realize that as they shared their thoughts, feelings, experiences and memories sincerely and honestly, they were expressing themselves in a poetic manner.

Patiently, Johnston-Hale broke down the barriers and overcame the "I'm not a poet!" syndrome.

To establish a sense of openness, she shared with them her own feelings about being a schoolteacher.

She read them poems she had written about schoolchildren, and how it felt to be 13, dumb in math or the hurt of being the fattest girl in the fifth grade.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Gradually the class opened up and began to see what a poem could do.

They found it could bring out thoughts and memories long forgotten and how it would help people to understand how it is with you, and how if you listen to or read poems how you could come to understand yourself and others better.

They discovered that writing poetry could give you a sense of accomplishment. It could make you more observant and appreciative of the world around you.

You "took time to smell the roses" because suddenly the whole world had something to contribute to your creative urge.

Students in her class wrote poems about the blessings of old age, how it felt to retire, how many people as they grow older, grow more graceful. They don't grow mean, they grow sweet and old with a need to love and be loved.

One student, miffed by having to give her age on a registration form, complained in a poem. "This paper wants too much of my person; things I want to keep to myself." An elderly gentleman wrote about being lost, "I stay lost, just hoping someone will find me." A student who was deaf wrote about a rose and what it meant to her: "I've been a loner. I've found beauty and happiness in things others do not see."

Discovery, delight, a sense of self-worth happened as they wrote. The sharing had a chain effect, one memory ignited another.

Johnston-Hale contends, "The poet is in all of us and I am convinced we are all poets just waiting to be given a chance."

These super seniors, 70- and 80-year-old people, showed me what it is like to grow old with grace.

They made me feel young and free again and encouraged us to let out the fun-loving child in us.

She tells how some hobbled down steps or were aided by a cane or a friend. Some could not see well. Some had trouble hearing.

But through their joy, their inner vitality, their strength, they made everyone try a little harder to accept and like themselves, share feelings and spread joy about being alive.

The arts, whether they be poetry, painting, dance or music, can be part of our daily life, for the best of art is life heightened, poignant and meaningful.

And who should know most about life and living than those who have experienced it in joys and sorrow, triumphs and failure, births and deaths?

Who has the time and judgment to sift through those experiences and present it in a verse freshened by their own views of what has been meaningful and important in their individual lives — Super-Seniors! They possess the wisdom of age and the arts provide an opportunity to pass it on.

Advice is often resented even when it is good but points can be driven home gracefully and subtly in an amusing verse or a painting that portrays an insight that couldn't be made clearer in a thousand words.

A super senior who will take the time to learn how to express those innermost dormant feelings will find that they rise to the surface with little encouragement.

They will not only find a certain relief in expressing them but will discover that time will never hang heavy on their hands.

The hours will fly as they seek to express in just the right words how it felt when their first child went to school or tried to put into painting the fun and excitement of a family picnic.

It's worth a try and could not only be rewarding emotionally, but also pleasurable.

sonal goals. This function, however, is entirely different from the Band and Orchestra function in which we do not participate. These items I mentioned were not "misinformation" as she stated. It is a fact that the Grosse Pointe High Schools do not have a marching band. It is a fact that the Grosse Pointe Bands and Orchestras do not attend the Band and Orchestra Festival in the Spring.

As an elected official, I would hope that she will get her facts straight before offering them to the general public. This is very poor policy.

It was clear to me from the events of the meeting that the Grosse Pointe Public School System is proud of their above average performance with their ACT scores, their Advanced Placement Program, Summer School enrollment, etc. Why then do they accept mediocrity in their high school music program?

Being a former music educator herself, Ms. Pangborn may wish to discuss my concerns with the program in greater detail. If that is the case, please feel free to call me.

Take that,
Republicans

To the Editor:
Recently the letters to the editor have had a definite Republican flavor. In keeping with that, I would like to cite a few quotes from Republican leaders as reported in the New York Times.

Bob Dole on Jack Kemp.

Jack Kemp on Bob Dole.
"Bob Dole never met a tax hike he didn't like. When Bob Dole talks about leadership for the future, he's the man who led the fight for five major tax increases in the past five years."

Hill improved

To The Editor:
I congratulate and thank everyone responsible for making "The Hill" the showplace it now is. The brick walks are wonderful and the flowers this summer were lovely — obviously well tended. Kudos to D.J. Kennedy for the beautiful transformation of the corner of Kercheval and Hall. Now, can the Village be next?

Tall tales

To the Editor:
In the Sept. 12 issue of the Grosse Pointe News, FYI columnist Ken Eatherly accurately explained the origin of the sea monster of Higgins Lake, better known as "Higgie."

In his account, Ken referred to the Wanateka Indian Tribe, which is indigenous to this northern sector of Michigan's Lower Peninsula. Before the tribe of Native Americans were decimated by disease, they were a strong and proud people. In both the 1700s and 1800s, the Wanatekas welcomed the new European settlers with both food and protection.

In recognition of their helpfulness, the settlers named a local landmark after their Native American friends. What is now known as Boyne Mountain was originally called Wanateka Peak.

Think of it as the pearl found in the oyster. St. Ambrose Catholic Church, in conjunction with several area businesses and restaurants is holding the seventh St. Ambrose Oyster Festival on Monday, Sept. 30, from 5-10 p.m. at 15215 Kercheval.

St. Ambrose's pastor, the Rev. Tim Pelc, said that the Oyster Festival has become an annual event to raise money for the St. Ambrose Academy.

"We teach preschool through eighth grade," said Pelc. "We also have classes for the dyslexic and learning disabled. Our student body comes from all over the eastside of Detroit and Grosse Pointe."

The cost of a ticket is $20, and for that modest sum, patrons can taste a variety of foods prepared by such local restaurants as the Blue Pointe Restaurant, Trattoria Andiamo's, Porter Street Station, Sindbad's, Jacobi's and the Roostertail, said Pelc.

Mulier's Market has also been heavily involved in putting on the festival, said Pelc, going so far as to provide the parking lot where it will be held.

"The festival was first sponsored by Tom Brandel, owner of Tom's Oyster Bar," Pelc said.

"He wanted to give something back to the community, and it used to be held on Mack. But finding the space on Mack needed to hold the festival was proving difficult. Moving it to Kercheval brings it closer to St. Ambrose and solves the problem of space."

In addition to enjoying good food, patrons will have the chance to enjoy the music of Janet Tenaj and the Sven Anderson Trio, said Pelc.

"We call this a festival about oysters for education," Pelc said. "Other churches have sponsored apple festivals and things like that. We thought we should do something different. This is for a good cause, and it will be held in the neighborhood that will benefit from the proceeds. We invite everyone to attend and have a good time."

Sprightly Hyundai Elantra sheds second-rate image

Korean cars used to look sort of like cheaper, more primitive imitations of Japanese cars.

But the new-for-1996 Hyundai Elantra doesn't. It looks like a slickly styled Japanese small car. And when you drive it you realize it has moved into the first rank of small car makers. It rides, handles and performs like a Japanese car. And it is roomier than most of its competition.

It isn't a cheap imitation any more. Its base price comes in low at $10,900, but when you add a little equipment that most Japanese cars bring as standard, Hyundai's old price advantage is gone.

As I approached the sleek little rounded, aerodynamic, very contemporary looking four-door sedan, I thought "this is all we need, another cheap small car." But in fact, the Elantra was a pleasant surprise.

Compared with its predecessor, the '96 Elantra is more sprightly in its performance, slicker in its styling, surprisingly roomy and comfortable and more expensive. The Hyundai is no longer a second-rate nameplate. Last year's Accent and Sonata hinted at that and the new Elantra confirms it.

When the first Hyundai Excel was sold in the United States in 1986, hardly any Americans had ever heard of the Korean auto maker. They weren't even sure how to pronounce it. (Rhymes with "Sunday," public relations reps said.) Now, after 10 years in the U.S. market, Hyundai is no longer the new kid on the block.

Hyundai Motor Co. is a publicly traded company affiliated with the Hyundai Group, which accounts for about 10 percent of the South Korean gross national product. Hyundai operates the world's largest integrated automobile manufacturing plant in Ulsan, on Korea's southeast coast.

Hyundai set a record in 1986 for first-year sales in the United States, by an importer, of 168,882. Hyundai Motor America has about 500 dealers in the country.

Advanced automotive research is conducted at the Hyundai America Technical Center in Ann Arbor, where the firm is currently working on electric-powered vehicles, low-emission gasoline engines, solar-powered vehicles and alternative fuel engines.

Sold in Korea as the Avante, the new Elantra is an important advance for Hyundai, which started selling the bottom-feeder entry-level Excel in 1986 in the United States.

The latest Elantra is also a big step up from last year's Elantra. It has a new body on a stretched version of the old Elantra platform. Inside is a larger rear seat and legroom has been increased significantly.

The '96 Elantra has no real price advantage over several similarly equipped American and Japanese small cars.

This is not to say the Elantra is not a good buy. It is very competitive. It is no longer a blue-light special, however. The Elantra is still a very solid value in the entry-level subcompact class. It costs more than it used to, but it is a better car.

In an attempt to broaden the Elantra's appeal, Hyundai added station wagons for the first time. The cars have dual airbags and an all-new Hyundai-designed "Beta" engine, which displaces 1.8 liters and puts out 130 hp and 122 ft.-lb. of torque, much of it at lower engine speeds, which is why it is so sprightly.

A five-speed manual transmission is standard and a four-speed automatic is an extra-cost option. The base Elantra has front disk and rear drum brakes, while the upscale GLS has four-wheel discs with optional ABS. Suspension is independent front strut and rear multilink.

Standard equipment includes power brakes, cloth trim, intermittent wipers, carpeting, remote hood, deck lid and fuel-filler door releases, center console, cup holders, rear-window defroster, dual remote mirrors, digital clock, tinted glass and wheel covers.

The upscale GLS includes air conditioning, an all-new speed-sensitive rack and pinion steering system which communicates improved road feel to the driver and front and rear stabilizer bars. GLS models can be ordered with four-channel anti-lock brakes, which read each wheel separately.

Base price for a five-speed manual sedan is $10,900. This includes rear window defroster, dual remote control mirrors, rear seat heat ducts, remote fuel and trunk releases, tilt steering, and speed-sensitive steering.

Another $2,250 upgrades to a GLS model, with an automatic, cassette stereo, power door locks, power side mirrors, six-way adjustable driver's seat, split fold rear seat, power windows, four-wheel disc brakes, and performance-oriented tires. Add Option Package 11 to the GLS, and you'll get air conditioning, cruise control, and anti-lock brakes, bringing the sticker price to $15,040, plus $405 destination.

A Civic LX sedan equipped with air conditioning, automatic, and anti-lock brakes runs $15,850. A similarly-equipped Dodge Neon Highline comes in under $15,000, including ABS. A well-equipped Mercury Tracer runs around $15,000 and a Pontiac Sunfire SE sedan with more powerful 2.4-liter engine stickers for $15,500 and includes traction control.

So the 1996 Hyundai Elantra is much improved over its predecessor. But once a few options are added, its price edge disappears. The Sunfire offers superior content for the price, the Neon superior performance and the Honda — well, it's a Honda, a long way in reputation from a Hyundai.

It is a surprisingly nice car. It lacks a compelling reason to buy it.

Forget diets! Listen to your body to lose weight and improve health

A study by the Food Marketing Institute in Washington indicates that 60 percent of shoppers have altered their food regimen in the last decade, driven by the desire to lose weight. Despite the craze to eat healthy, the number of overweight people has increased from 25 percent of the adult population in 1982, to 33 percent in 1993.

So, what's wrong with the way Americans are trying to lose weight? According to Marguerite Brown, a registered nurse with 30 years of experience, the solution is to stop dieting, throw out the fat calculators, scales, and diet pills, and start listening to your body.

Brown says "With all our academic knowledge about food, the importance of sensory information has been overlooked. Taste, smell, texture, sound, appearance, the way food satisfies hunger and how we think, feel, and learn about food is an integral part of developing healthy eating habits."

Each person's body delivers a different sensation of experience; all body metabolisms are not the same. That is why no diet book, menu plan, fitness program or weight loss consultant could know what an individual's body needs are at any given time.

Each individual, according to Brown, can learn how to recognize and respond to his or her own physical needs. In response to the body's pleasure-seeking instincts, humans are instinctively compelled to do what they should do to become and stay healthy and fit. The body possesses the tenacity and wisdom designed to preserve and sustain life and well-being automatically.

"The human body is the most efficient machine available to help maintain health and fitness."

Brown says that a perfect example of how our bodies regulate food intake is the phenomenon of craving. No matter how much other food a person eats, the craving for a specific food remains until the craved food is eaten. When nutrient stores are depleted, there is a desire to eat. The desire persists until the depleted nutrient stores are replenished. Then the craving stops, triggered by the feeling of satiation.

According to Brown, awareness of and response to feelings of hunger, craving and satiation teach people when to eat, what to eat and when to stop eating automatically and effortlessly. The key to health, happiness and fitness is understanding how the body works, and how to work with the body, and resist it.

Brown's book, "Born To Be Fit: Discover Your Natural Ability To Be Healthy, Happy & Fit" is an easy-to-follow guide to learn how the body's system of neuro-chemicals, hormones, organs, and thought processes are responsible for keeping track of and making us aware of the body's every need.

The book presents step-by-step helpful hints to meet these needs. Also included are tips on economical grocery shopping and on helping children avoid weight problems.

Cars vandalized in Woods

Grosse Pointe Woods police are investigating at least five reports of car vandalism, all of which occurred within three hours on Sunday, Sept. 15.

The first incident occurred at 8:55 p.m. when a resident of N. Oxford heard the sound of breaking glass.

He looked outside and saw a group of teenage boys get into a red Pontiac. The driver's side window of his car was shattered.

At 9:50 p.m., a resident on Torrey heard a loud noise, looked outside and saw that someone had shattered the windshield on his Chevrolet parked on the street.

He didn't see anyone, but told police he heard a car with a loud muffler driving away from his house at the time of the incident.

At 10:40 p.m., on Kings Court, a resident who had a Buick parked on the street, learned from police on patrol that his windshield was damaged.

There were no witnesses to this incident.

At 11:19 p.m. a resident on Lochmoor reported hearing a loud noise and found that someone had smashed the driver's side windshield of his BMW.

At 11:37 p.m. on W. Doyle, a resident reported seeing two teen-age boys in a burgundy colored Pontiac Grand Am fleeing the area immediately after he discovered damage to the windshield of his Dodge

A pair of civic-minded teens test cigarette law

Two Grosse Pointe North students working for the school newspaper reported to the Grosse Pointe Woods police department the names and addresses of gas stations and drugstores in the Woods that were selling cigarettes to minors.

The students provided the names of five businesses that sold cigarettes. They also mentioned the name of four businesses that refused to sell to School reports burglary

Someone broke into St. Paul Catholic School sometime on or around Sept. 9 and stole a CD player, a 14-inch color television, two VCRs and a closed-circuit TV box that provides educational programs to classrooms.

School employees told Grosse Pointe Farms police that the building was locked on Sept. 6 and was found unlocked on Sept. 9. Police are investigating.

Meters cut

The Grosse Pointe Park

parking enforcement officer reported that several double-headed parking meters were stolen on Monday, Sept. 9. Police believe a pipecutter was used to remove the meters from their posts.

The meters were taken from along the Mack business corridor, and Park officials have been informed that the City of Grosse Pointe has also recently suffered from a similar rash of meter thefts.

Double trouble

Park public safety officers received two reports of unsuccessful car thefts between 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 14 and 7:20 a.m., Sunday, Sept. 15. A 1992 Chevrolet Lumina parked in the 1200 block of Wayburn was found Sunday morning with the driver's door pried open and the steering column damaged.

A 1989 Buick Century parked in the 1300 block of Maryland was found with a punched ignition and its radio missing. Both incidents took place Saturday night or early Sunday morning. Police are continuing to investigate.

Back again

A suspect recently arrested for stealing two lawn mowers failed to appear in court for his hearing, resulting in the issuing of a warrant for his arrest. A department of public safety officer saw the suspect waking in the area of Mack and Balfour at about 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 11, and was able to make an arrest with the help of a passing motorist. — Jim Stickford

Rail splitter's trail

Abraham Lincoln said, "Success does not so much depend on external help as on self-reliance." These seven scouts, along with leader Stephen Kirk of Troop 96, far right, put the 18th president's words to the test this summer when they hiked the Lincoln Trail in Illinois. Participants were, from left, Cole Cahill, Stephen (Jamie) Kirk, James Van de Putte, Ryan Riddell, Evan Thomas, Mark Hindelang and Matt Hindelang.

Can you solve the case of the missing memoirs?

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Elizabeth Elie understands why a clothbound packet of papers hidden in her closet was enticing to the burglar who broke into her Grosse Pointe Woods home sometime around Sept. 9.

The papers, about the size of U.S. currency, were stacked in bundles and secured with rubber bands. The bundles were then wrapped in multi-colored tapestry cloth and stored in a box along with coins.

"(The burglar) naturally assumed it was money," Elie said. Her home, in the area of Ferry School, was broken into while she was out of town. She figures the break-in was done by a seasoned criminal, because the search of her house was neat and thorough.

But someone or something startled the intruder and forced him or her to abandon on her front porch a pillow case stuffed with jewelry and camera equipment. The only thing the burglar kept was the cloth-bound bundle of papers.

The papers actually are a collection of Elie's 88-year-old mother's memoirs.

"My mother has been writing her memoirs on little pieces of paper and stacking them together, bundling them and giving them to me," Elie said. "I've never read them, because she asked me not to. I don't know what they say. Everyone told me I should have put them in a safe deposit box."

Elie fears that once the burglar opened the packet and realized the papers were not legal tender, he or she tossed the whole bundle out the window, into the street.

She said she's hoping the bundle will turn up somewhere and that someone will read the newspaper and make the connection.

"I am willing to offer a reward for the return of these memoirs," she said. "This has so much value to me and none to anyone else."

Anyone with information about this incident or who finds the missing bundle of papers is asked to call the detective bureau of the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department at (313) 343-2410 or (313) 343-2412.

Awareness of foreign customs helps Americans fit in Flowers, arranged or potted, are common gifts in many countries. But international visitors, careful not to offend, need to be aware of cultural differences associated with giving flowers.

In Europe, for example, chrysanthemums are used only in funeral arrangements. Red roses are given only to lovers in France. And, in Japan, potted plants are never given to someone who is ill; a rooted plant suggests that the recipient may be next in the ground.

Cultural differences make vacationing abroad an interesting experience. But when it comes to moving internationally, cultural differences can become obstacles, challenging employees and their families in ways Americans rarely imagine.

So, when in Rome, Paris or Tokyo, Beverly Roman, a relocation expert, recommends understanding overseas business strategies, as well as customs and manners, to ensure personal and professional success.

Roman has moved domestically and internationally 16 times. As a seasoned globe-trotter, she recommends three keys to successful relocation overseas: evaluate personal and professional details, assess family personality traits and thoroughly prepare for the move.

The evaluation process, she says, uncovers any negative factors that would hinder an international relocation.

Roman suggests asking the question, "What will life be like in another country?"

Then, she says, carefully and critically evaluate information about a specific country: its social life, customs, education, work standards and housing, country conditions.

"People who are aware of a country's customs and manners tend to feel more at home in their new environment," says to Roman.

Sometimes a saying, gesture or body language, considered conventional in the states, offends others abroad.

In Germany, it is bad luck to congratulate anyone before an important event.

In Belgium, it is considered rude to slap someone on the back.

In Turkey, people are offended when foreigners cross their arms.

According to Roman, the assessment phase compares personality traits and attitudes to those of people who have adjusted successfully to foreign cultures.

Assessment and selection companies have developed a standard list of characteristics common among all candidates who have adapted well to another culture.

Roman says that cultural changes are mostly a question of attitude.

Preparation, the third phase, contributes to a smooth adjustment to the new area.

About 80 percent of failed relocations result, especially, from a spouse's inability to adjust.

Roman is the author of "When in Rome... Living and Working in a Foreign Country."

The book is intended to make international moving less stressful, covering such topics as dealing with the concerns of children, dual career issues, they were forced into that action by an American public which is no longer willing to tolerate their continued rejection of the concerns of the middle class.

In my mind the recent vote in the Michigan House, which is also controlled by Republicans, reflected the same process. How interesting

Democrats claim credit for statehouse passed minimum wage

The Michigan House of Representatives has passed legislation which, effective Oct. 1, would increase the state's minimum wage from the current $3.35 per hour to $4.35 per hour, and then in Oct. 1997, will increase it to $5.15 per hour. This vote was certainly significant for those whose wages fall under the state pay system.

However, in the political picture of both our state and nation, this vote means far more than that. Last month, President Clinton signed into law an increase in the federal minimum wage which was sent to him by the Republican-controlled Congress. Just in case you think that the Republicans felt a sudden rush of conscience and realized that yes, the working people deserve an increase in pay, be aware that that the legislation languished in the House Human Resources and Labor Committee for all this time, and then all of a sudden, the committee and the full House act on it in just a matter of hours. Could there be any connection here to the fact that there is an election in less than two months?

The middle income, working population has been cast off more than once too often by a government that is more interested in widening the gap between the rich and the poor. I expect the election result will reflect that concern.

— Curtis Hertel
Democratic leader of the House

Naval officer gives his wings to fledgling aviators

By D.M. Koontz
Special Writer

Unlike athletes, naval aviators aren't born, they're created.

While there are those who have a natural inclination for flying, becoming a Navy pilot today takes a lot more than just knowing how to work a stick and rudder.

Navy Lt. Eric S. Towe, the 30-year old son-in-law of Alan and Paula D'Augustine of Grosse Pointe Park, is a naval flight instructor with Training Squadron 28 (VT-28) at Naval Air Station Corpus Christi.

He is one of only a handful of Navy pilots with the job of turning young officers into the naval aviators of the 21st century.

"It's very rewarding to see your hard work pay off," said Towe, who is married to the D'Augustines' daughter Carmina. "Flight students have a difficult time comprehending and prioritizing all the information we give them in such a short period of time, but when they finally understand it all, it's a fulfilling moment for an instructor."

Towe and the other flight instructors from VT-28 give fledgling naval aviators their first taste of flying in the T-34C Turbine Mentor trainer aircraft.

The T-34C is a two-seat, turboprop aircraft used by the Navy's primary training squadrons in Corpus Christi, Texas, and Pensacola, Fla.

Versions of the T-34 have been used by the Navy since the 1950's.

The Turbine Mentor, which has flown more than a million flight hours, has one of the best safety records of any military aircraft.

And with hundreds of students passing through the squadron each year, safety is a top priority in flight training.

Because the students of today will be the aviation leaders of tomorrow, Towe not only teaches basic flight skills, he instills the importance of flying safe and flying smart.

"I try to never let young aviators get overconfident. We have a dangerous job to perform on a daily basis and complacency can result in serious injury," Towe said.

Once students have mastered the basic mechanics of flying, Towe then teaches basic instrument, acrobatics and formation flying in the T-34C.

Safely teaching anyone to fly not only takes a good instructor, it also requires an aircraft that can withstand the stress of a demanding training curriculum.

Over the years, improvements to the aircraft's flight and avionics systems, instrumentation and engines, as well as state-of-the-art simulators have helped make the Turbine Mentor one of the finest trainers in naval aviation history.

"The T-34C is a fairly forgiving aircraft and is an excellent plane for teaching young pilots how to handle the rigors of flying," Towe said.

VT-28 is only the first step on a flight student's path to becoming a naval aviator and earning the coveted "wings of gold."

Students who have successfully completed their primary training syllabus in Corpus Christi will go on to advanced training in Navy jets, multi-engine propeller aircraft or helicopters.

Towe and his fellow instructors ensure that not only the students' basic flying skills are ready to advance to the next level, but their mental skills are as equally developed to handle the difficult final stages of their flight training.

"I always try to keep the students aware of the dangers they can face during their training and careers. This advice helps deliver level-headed young pilots to the fleet," Towe said.

While teaching someone to fly can sometimes be as challenging as being taught, Navy flight instructors like Towe will ensure the fleet's newest aviators are the best.

Koontz is the director of the Navy Public Affairs Center at Naval Station San Diego.

U.S. Navy Lt. Eric S. Towe, is a naval flight instructor with Training Squadron 28 (VT-28) at Naval Air Station Corpus Christi. He is the son-in-law of Grosse Pointe Park residents Alan and Paula D'Augustine.

Foster grandparents have special reason to get up in the morning

By Anita Lindsay

Publishers News Service

More than 23,000 older Americans have a special reason to get up in the morning: they're helping handicapped and at-risk children as foster grandparents.

The Foster Grandparent Program funded by the federal government through the Corporation for National Service, recently celebrated its 30th anniversary.

This worthwhile program is limited to low-income seniors, 60 years or older, who cheerfully commit to spend 20 hours a week working with special children.

According to Rita Putnam, an experienced caregiver and public speaker, this program benefits the children by giving them individual attention and the seniors by giving them a meaningful activity and, according to many participants, "a reason to get up in the morning."

Putnam recommends the Foster Grandparent Program as just one of the resources listed in "As Your Parents Age," a 94-minute audio cassette and accompanying workbook.

The program simplifies the process of caring for aging parents with a unique four-step approach to caregiving that includes promoting an open, healthy relationship between aging parents and their caregiving children, shows how to assess specific needs of parents, provides resources, and explains how to use those resources effectively.

Putnam developed the hassle-free approach to caregiving after her own struggle to locate services for her aging parents.

She said that the hardest thing about being a caregiver is knowing where to turn for help.

Her book contains over 327 individual listings of resources available to caregivers, most with complete addresses and phone numbers.

Resources range from nursing home information and nutritional services, to sources for medical supplies and caregiver support systems.

Many people will soon find themselves thrown into the role of caregiver.

By the year 2020 one in three American workers will be responsible for providing care for aging parents.

The average caregiver is under 65 and some are sandwiched between caring for their own children and caring for their aging parents.

Putnam says, "Caregivers can enter this new experience completely prepared and aware of the resources available to assist them and their aging parents."

"As Your Parents Age" is $12.95 plus $3 shipping and is available from Dynamic Communications Inc. 1141 N. Indiana Street, Racine, Wis. 53405.

Sensible eating habits that work

A new nutrition education class, "Eat Right, Stay Well," is offered from 7 to 8 p.m. on Thursdays, Sept. 26 through Oct. 17, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Instructor Susanne Consiglio, a registered dietitian specializing in nutrition counseling for those seeking to improve their diet and health, will provide information for anyone interested in adopting a healthy lifestyle.

Consiglio has 16 years experience as a dietitian, having recently relocated to Michigan from Chicago where she was in private practice.

In addition, she also worked as a consultant for several major Chicago businesses and organizations, including the Chicago Cubs and Bears athletic teams.

Topics to be discussed each week include shopping smart, eating low fat, finding the hidden sources of fat, how to count fat grams, how to use less fat in cooking, understanding the new food pyramid, diet and vitamins and exercising options when dining out or at special events.

The course fee is $50 a person. Call (313) 881-7511 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily, except Sundays.

Dow Jones surges to 5,838, a record high — will 6,000 be next?

By Joseph Mengden
The Dow Jones Industrial Index (DJI) posted four gains vs. one loss last week, posting a 66.58 point sprint on Friday (the 13th) to a record high of 5838.52, easily passing its prior record of 5778 last May 22.

Composite volume of all NYSE listed stocks totaled 1.9 billion shares last week, up from 1.3 billion shares during recent weeks.

The "Nervous Nellie Bears," suffering from triskaidekaphobia prior to Friday's opening, were routed by a series of economic news which caught investors by surprise.

The report of August retail sales was weaker than expected, which points to an economy that might be slowing. Later, the Consumer Price Index (CPI) was released, showing only a slight rise in August. This indicates that inflation is in check.

Earlier in the week, many analysts were forecasting that the Fed would raise short-term interest rates at its Open Market Committee meeting on Sept. 24. Such rates are usually ratcheted up in 1/4 of 1 percent increments, but many seers were calling for a 1/2 of 1 percent boost.

Friday's news indicated that the Fed might not have to move next week, or maybe only up 1/4 of 1 percent. So last Friday, the bond market rallied, moving yields lower (prices and yields move inversely). The stock market took its cue from the bond market, with institutions jumping in with both feet.

Mutual funds panicked at the prospect of being light on equities (and heavy with cash equivalents) with the Sept. 30 quarter end nearby. (Mutual Funds publish their portfolio data each quarter end.)

Individual investors in August resumed shipping tons of cash to the equity mutual funds, to the tune of a net $19 billion inflow. The funds couldn't invest the cash fast enough. By last Friday, it looked like there wasn't enough supply of shares to meet the demand. Tune in next week for an update.

How to find a growth stock

Have you ever been at a cocktail party when the conversation drifted into investments and everyone started bragging about their latest "growth stock?"

Did you think that price appreciation was the only determinate of a growth stock?

Like RED DOG FIRE HYDRANT that shot up from 1 1/2 to 4 in 10 days (Don't look up that stock, it's just make-believe), only to collapse back to 1 in a two-day selloff.

What are the ingredients that make up the anatomy of a high quality, high growth stock?

It's back to basics, the fundamentals of investment analysis rather than technical analysis of charts of stock prices. We can't review the whole nine yards of fundamental analysis in a family newspaper, but LTS can give you a few clues of what to look for.

You can start with the company's "Annual Report to Shareholders." Most public corporations will mail you a copy if you ask for one. But where is the company located and how can I call or write? If you have a stockbroker, call him or her for the Annual Report, which he or she will get from the company's research department in about a week to 10 days.

If you prefer to do it yourself, go to the Grosse Pointe Public Library's central branch at Kercheval and Fisher Road in the Farms.

Ask for the Investments Reading Room. There you will find Moody's Investment Service manuals and Standard & Poor's "tear sheets." Both contain the company's address and phone number.

Contact the corporate secretary or shareholder relations department. Your annual report should arrive within a week.

The annual report is usually a glitzy "pat-me-on-the-back" magazine that contains a letter from the chairman and/or the chief executive officer, along with the detailed financial statements plus footnotes.

Be sure to read the chairman's letter and other material describing the company's products. The detailed financial statements are best left to the bank credit analysts, the charter financial analysts and CPAs.

What you should look for is the financial summary table. It shows at least five years of comparable data, sometimes 10 years. The most important items are sales (revenues) in dollars; net income after taxes in dollars; net income (earnings) per share; cash dividends per share; and market price range (high and low) for the common stock.

Sometimes the summary table is also presented graphically, by bar charts or pie charts. Since the data covers a period of years, it is possible to develop a "trend line."

Does the year-to-year chart line trend up, or sideways, or down, or does it jump up and down erratically?

A few simple calculations based on the above data will produce some interesting and important statistics. If net profits after taxes (in dollars) is divided by sales (in dollars), the result is the net profit margin after taxes.

When comparing the margin year-by-year, is it increasing, more-or-less even, or decreasing? Is that important? Yes!

The last statistic obtained from the above data is by some analysts considered the most important. The return on investment (ROI) shows how well management did with your investment (at book value). ROI is calculated when net income per share is divided by the beginning shareholder's equity (book value) per share. Note that the beginning shareholder's equity is also last year's ending shareholder's equity. To be fair, ROI is based on your investment when that year started.

If you look up your company's closing market price in the paper, we can together calculate two most important fundamental statistics: the price/earnings Ratio (P/E) and the dividend yield.

Most newspapers already give you this data daily, at least rounded to lesser numbers, in the P/E and yield columns, next to your stock prices.

In case you want to do it yourself, dividend yield is the cash dividend per share (current rate, annualized) divided by the closing price. The price earning ratio (P/E) is the closing price divided by the latest 12-month reported earnings per share (EPS), also called net income per share.

Another statistic recently in vogue is sales (revenues) per share. But for this you need the most recent shares outstanding.

Sales per share is sales (revenues) in dollars divided by shares outstanding.

You have now completed Investment Analysis, Course 101, successfully, and are prepared to review next week's growth stock presentation: "Can you name this stock?"

MRA to begin offering debit card processing

The Michigan Retailers Association (MRA) is making it possible for thousands of retailers across the state to begin accepting debit cards from shoppers.

MRA has teamed up with KeyBank and the Magic Line network to offer point-of-sale debit card processing. Retailers can begin signing up for the new service immediately.

"We're adding debit cards to our lineup of bankcard processing services to meet the changing needs of the retail community," said Larry Meyer, MRA vice chairman and CEO of the 4,400-member organization.

"Our members can now provide even better customer service by offering shoppers one more option for making a purchase."

MRA already processes more than $230 million annually in members' bankcard transactions (Visa, MasterCard, Discover and American Express credit cards) through KeyBank.

With a debit card, a customer's purchases are deducted directly from his or her checking account. The use of debit cards, while relatively small, is growing rapidly.

Industry analysts say use of debit cards in retail stores across the nation has shot up 600 percent since 1990, to 100 million transactions a year. They expect that number to rise to 450 million transactions by the year 2000.

Dan Neistadt, KeyBank vice president, said KeyBank is looking forward to providing the new debit card service to retailers through MRA.

"We're very excited about this new relationship and about MRA offering retailers debit card options," he said. "It's another example of how MRA is a forward-thinking association that has the best interests of its members at heart."

Both Meyer and Neistadt point to the benefits to retailers of accepting debit cards. They include:

- Increased customer service.

away shoppers who prefer debit cards to cash, checks or credit cards.

- Reduced risk.

The sale is guaranteed the moment the shopper enters his or her "personal identification number" and the retailer receives authorization via the bankcard terminal. That means worries over fraud and chargebacks are virtually eliminated.

- Smaller transaction fees.

Debit card transactions will cost MRA members a flat fee, regardless of the amount of the purchase. That represents a savings over credit card transactions, which cost the retailer a percentage of the sale.

- Increased "cash" sales.

Studies in the supermarket industry show that the average purchase with a debit card is above $40, or 2 1/2 times higher than the average cash purchase. Shoppers are not constrained by the amount of cash in their pockets.

Complete information about debit card processing is available from MRA by calling 1-800-366-3699.

The Michigan Retailers Association is the unified voice of retailing in Michigan and the nation's largest state trade association of general merchandise retailers.

Health Care Job Fair is more evidence of Detroit's comeback

Several Detroit area hospitals plan a busy recruiting session at the Health Care Job Fair Thursday, Sept. 26, in Cobo Center, another sign that the city's economy is on the rebound, said Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) director F. Robert Edwards.

"I'm excited by the prospects of continued movement in the local job market. The hospitals participating in the job fair include some of the area's largest employers. They are really micro communities requiring all types of occupations to run smoothly. They are not only care providers but job providers," he said.

Noting that no job fair can guarantee employment to anyone, Edwards said the participation of so many hospitals in search of labor is, nevertheless, a positive economic sign.

"When you tick off some of the projects planned and already in the works while looking at Detroit employment levels, it's an impressive picture," Edwards said.

Consider the newly inked $505-million, two-stadium deal and its possible spinoff economic benefits; General Motors consolidating many of its offices at the Renaissance Center; GM investing $250 million to expand its Detroit-Hamtramck assembly complex; Wayne State University spending $150 million for its own expansion; unemployment rates hovering around 17 percent in the city of Detroit in 1991 and 1992, down 8 points to 9.1 percent so far this year (as of July).

It all adds up to progress. "Jobs are available in Detroit," Edwards said. "There was a time when it wasn't so easy to say that. I think that perhaps in some other parts of the state, job fairs have become common enough that they're sometimes taken for granted."

"Obviously Detroit has further to go and unemployment levels are still above the state average, but progress is being made," he said.

Edwards pointed out that the number of workers in Detroit manufacturing (lumber, metals, auto, furniture, etc.), service producing industries (utilities, communications, transportation, etc.), retail trade and services (health care, teaching, social services, etc.) rose from 1994 to 1995 and again this year. The only exception was a slight dip in manufacturing jobs in the first six months of this year over all of 1995, he said.

Like employment levels, average hourly wages also rose in several job sectors in Detroit, Edwards said, citing statistics compiled by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Wages went from $13.29 an hour for workers in Detroit health services (does not include physicians) in 1993 to $16.53 an hour through June of 1996, he said.

Detroit manufacturing wages rose from $16.52 an hour to $18.33 an hour in that period, he said.

"These strides are part of a general renaissance in Michigan's economy," Edwards said. "Unemployment recently hit a record low of 4.5 percent and has been at or below the national average for more than two years. We're working hard on our end to keep the momentum up as long as possible. Some of the things making contributions are our job fairs, labor market information for employers, the successful summer jobs campaign and on-line job and talent banks on our home page on the World Wide Web (<http://www.mesc.com/>).

The Health Care Job Fair — MESC's first headlining Detroit hospitals — runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 26, in the second-floor Ambassador Dining Room of Cobo Center.

It is the fourth of six events jointly sponsored by the MESC and BRIDGES (Building Relationships Increases Detroit's Growing Economic Stability) project of Michigan Neighborhood Partnership.

The City of Detroit Employment and Training Department is also a co-sponsor.

The Fair's employers include Detroit Medical Center, Henry Ford Health System, Michigan

Health Care Corp., St. John Health System, Sinai Hospital and Veterans Medical Center. Local nursing homes and health-care providers also plan to participate.

Full and part-time jobs — ranging from entry level to skilled to professional — are available and some employers have immediate openings.

Employers are seeking workers for direct patient care, maintenance, housekeeping and food preparation, among other things.

Training is provided in some cases.

Several workshops designed to help job-seekers improve employability skills will be held during the fair.

The sessions and fair are free.

For more information about the fair, call BRIDGES' hotline any time at (313) 872-0195.

Make sure your executor knows how to execute his or her duties

Would you accept a new job for which you have no prior experience? That's exactly what many people find themselves doing as the executor of a friend's or family member's estate.

The Michigan Association of CPAs explains that the executor of an estate — the person responsible for carrying out the terms of a will — has numerous financial, legal, and tax responsibilities and must possess good organizational and interpersonal skills as well as some financial know-how. The best way to prepare for such a job is by finding out in advance what is expected of you.

Probating the will

One of the executor's primary jobs is "probating the will." This process entails filing the will at a local surrogate court so it becomes part of the public records. There's no deadline for probating the will, but it cannot be done earlier than 10 days after the testator's death.

Marshaling the assets

The next step is the "marshaling" of assets. This task involves an accounting or inventory of the assets of the deceased and can require quite a bit of sleuthing. In addition to looking at prior income tax returns and other sources for assets, the executor may end up searching through closets, dresser drawers and shoe boxes to locate bank books, savings bonds, and even stock certificates, unless the deceased previously indicated where such documents are located.

The duties of the executor during this phase of the probate process can range from listing one or two bank accounts to compiling portfolios and contacting brokers and agencies all over the country in order to locate assets. It also involves the collection of outstanding income or money owed, including amounts owed from employers, Social Security, and insurance companies.

If the search for assets is too difficult or time consuming, help is available. Financial services companies, brokerages and some financial planning agencies can, for a fee, locate the decedent's assets. Costs incurred for these and other expenses associated with probating the will or marshaling assets are typically reimbursed by the estate.

Once the assets are located, the executor may need to liquidate some of them to pay off the deceased's debts and to make distributions to heirs. Liquidating the property can involve selling stocks, bonds, or real estate, as well as exercising options on securities. When it comes to collectibles like jewelry, artwork and real estate, appraisals need to be obtained to be sure the property is valued accurately.

Paying off creditors

One of the most tedious of the executor's responsibilities is identifying and paying off creditors. It involves notifying potential creditors who may have a bona fide claim against the estate of the deceased. While some creditors may barage executors with bills, others may be difficult to locate.

If the executor is unsure of all the people to be contacted, the executor can satisfy the obligation to notify creditors by publishing a notice in a local newspaper regarding the claims against the estate.

To pay off creditors and liquidate assets in accordance with the terms of the will, you'll need a checking account for the estate. All money should be funneled through the account so that bills and beneficiaries can be paid.

Filing tax returns

The Michigan Association of CPAs points out that the executor will need to file a final income tax return for the deceased. What's more, if the estate is valued at more than $600,000, the executor must also file a federal estate tax return, generally within nine months of death and pay any estate taxes that are due.

In addition, a state inheritance or estate tax return also may need to be filed.

Giving heirs theirs

Finally, the executor is responsible for distributing property to the beneficiaries named in the will. All disbursements to beneficiaries, as well as those to the probate court, must be carefully documented. As an executor you can be called on to submit reports and accounting of your actions to the probate court.

Executors of complex or large estates may want to obtain assistance from CPAs or attorneys when handling the tax, financial and legal matters associated with managing the estate.

News from Ameritech - Robert "Bob" Cooper was recently named president of Ameritech Michigan. He replaces Jim Wilkes, who was named chief finance and administrative officer of Ameritech S.A., Belgium's national telecommunications company.

Cooper's personal and business roots run deep in Michigan. He began his career as a technician with Michigan Bell in 1973 and has had several positions in the network and installation organizations. Prior to his appointment as Ameritech Michigan president, Cooper was vice president of human resources for Ameritech Cellular Services.

Cooper has degrees from Oakland University and Michigan State University. He is an Air Force veteran.

As for his primary goal as president, Cooper said he plans to make the company the best full-service provider of communication technology — including cable TV and long-distance service — in Michigan.

"Ameritech welcomes competition because we know we have competitive prices, top-level service and technological sophistication," Cooper said. "With all that, we can easily meet our customers' needs."

Henry Ford Cottage Hospital will be sponsoring a WomanWise Symposium '96 program with guest speaker Marcia Wallace on Wednesday, Oct. 2, at Assumption Cultural Center, 21800 Marter Road in St. Clair Shores.

Marcia was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1985 and since that time and her subsequent recovery, she has become a nationally prominent leader of women who are refusing to wait passively for a cure.

She's best known for her role as the irreverent, wisecracking receptionist on "The Bob Newhart Show."

Today, however, comedic actress Marcia Wallace plays the real-life role of a courageous and inspiring fighter against the breast cancer epidemic.

DO YOUR PART

For more than a decade, the auto industry has been doing its part to better assure the safety of drivers and passengers. Though cars are generally smaller than those produced many years ago, they are also safer. Today's automobiles are designed with "crumple zones" at their front and rear that are engineered to absorb and redirect crash forces by allowing the vehicle's frame and components to fold into itself in a crash. Passenger compartments are also reinforced with "safety cage" structures, once only found in race cars, that offer cocoon-like protection. Added padding and energy-absorbing materials also help to reduce injuries. In addition to airbags, seatbelts and antilock brakes make driving safer; however, despite their proven safety effectiveness, some people still resist buckling up and/or not knowing how to make the best use of their antilock brakes. For these safety features to work, they must be used, and correctly.

Nothing improves your safety on the road like alertness, however, if you are tired, pull over for a stretch, a cup of coffee, or just a walk around the car to help you stay awake on long drives. Safety — Calendar

"That accident was years ago in the days before people wore helmets when bicycling," Furtaw said. "One thing I noticed in Grosse Pointe is that I see a lot of kids wearing helmets when riding their bikes and in-line skating, which is a good thing. I also think wearing knee and elbow pads is a good idea when skating, if only to avoid skinning them when you fall."

When in-line skating, bicycling or jogging, people have to be aware of their environment. That includes weather, traffic, available light and time of day. One thing people do is wear headphones when jogging, skating or biking, which is dangerous.

"How can you be tuned into your environment, when you tune out using headphones," said Furtaw. "People should always wear reflective clothing in bad weather or when it's dark. Just because you can see a car, doesn't mean the driver can see you. If you're on the street and obeying the law 100 percent, what does it matter that you're right when you collide with a car? Guess who's going to be hurt."

Often bikers or in-line skaters expect all cars to stop at lights and stop signs, and they aren't prepared when the cars don't.

"We hand out tickets all the time to people who run lights and stop signs," said Furtaw. "Bikers and skaters have to be aware. Often drivers are looking for cars, and they don't see someone skating or on a bike."

Furtaw said that Windmill Pointe Park has areas set aside for in-line skating, and recommends that Park residents use it. It's a safe way to enjoy a fast-growing sport.

Traffic

tenant Barry Oleksyk said that St. Clair Shores is always willing to work with its neighbors, but he is not too worried that a change in Grosse Pointe Woods or Harper Woods traffic ordinances would send additional traffic over to his city.

"If you're trying to get to Mack from I-94, going down from old Eight Mile, taking our Brys Drive won't help," said Oleksyk. "But we are willing to meet with the other two cities to talk about this."

The real problem, said Leidlein, is that I-94 exit and entrance ramps are too small for the number of vehicles that use them.

"When I-94 was first built about 35 years ago, St. John Hospital was a small local hospital," said Leidlein. "Now it is a major eastside medical center. When shifts change, a lot of traffic goes down Moross to the I-94 entrance ramp. That area was not designed to handle that amount of traffic. The problem is the same for the Vernier and old Eight Mile ramps."

Leidlein said that he has contacted the South East Michigan Council Of Governments (SEMCOG) and asked for the organization's advice on possible solutions to the problem.

"There's not a solution to every traffic problem," said Leidlein. "Certainly not one that will appease everyone. On the positive side, we will bring in experts to look at the problem and see if there's something that can be done. If there's a workable solution, we're certainly willing to try it."

year for three years. In addition to those costs, the council was asked to approve spending $1,000 a year for distribution, $1,000 for editorial work and $350 for photographic services, said Steiner.

Mayor Robert Novitke said that while this $14,386 might seem like a lot of money, the amount budgeted for the calendar project for 1997 was $16,700, so the project is actually coming in under budget.

Councilmember Thomas Fahrner was not pleased with that news.

"It seems that when Jean Rice was in charge of the project, we were getting it done for $2,000 or $3,000 a year," said Fahrner. "Why is it costing so much?"

Novitke said that those figures might have been accurate in 1978, but the costs projected by Steiner were in line with what the city had been paying for the past few years.

"This calendar is an important tool for communication with the public," said Novitke.

"We used to have a welcome package that we would give to every new resident of the Woods, but we no longer do that. Instead we give all households our calendar. I think it provides a service."

The calendar contains the dates of all city meetings, including council meetings, planning commission meetings, beautification commission meetings and the like. It also lists the telephone numbers of city departments, and trash pickup days, said Novitke.

City clerk Louise Warnke said that ads were sold in 1989, but were dropped because of the difficulty of obtaining loyal advertisers. It was also dropped because city officials felt it was important that the calendar represent city services only, and not any private interests.

The council unanimously voted to approve the contracts recommended by the public relations committee. The contracts are for three years, said Steiner, and means the city now has a guaranteed price for producing the city calendar for the next three years.

Grosse Pointe Questers host state convention

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

More than 300 Questers from around Michigan will convene Oct. 3-4 in Grosse Pointe. They will visit various historical sites, including the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House and the Provencal-Weir House. They'll tour several private homes in the Pointes to study and discuss antiques and collections of historical memora-

There are six chapters in the Pointes, which makes up the East Area Chapters. The Questers is an international study organization, formed in 1944 by Jessie Elizabeth Bardens of Fort Washington, Pa., to stimulate appreciation of antiques through study and to encourage the preservation of historic landmarks. The first chapter had 14 members.

Membership is open to anyone interested, although most Questers are women, Pacitto said.

The Pointe chapters — Fox Creek No. 216, Grand Marais No. 215, Grosse Pointe No. 147, Pear Tree No. 193, Petipointe No. 243 and Windmill Pointe No. 385 — have Pointe residents as well as Detroiters and members from other suburbs. The Pointe area Questers important to let the public know what Questers are about, what they're going to do during the convention and how Grosse Pointe will be portrayed to the visitors.

"We're always looking for new members — anyone who's interested in historic preservation or antiques or both — is welcome to join," Pacitto said. "You don't have to be an antiques dealer. Most of the members are private collectors. Grosse Pointe is saturated with collectors. It's lots of fun and you learn so much."

Historic preservation is important, she said, because buildings and sites continually are replaced with new development. The most recent example is the lakefront Morrison Estate on Jefferson and Bishop in Grosse Pointe Park, one of the last mansions which will soon be razed and subdivided for new homes.

"The young people moving in to Grosse Pointe may not realize the history of the area, that it was settled by the French and became a resort area for the auto barons," she said. "There are treasures that shouldn't be forgotten even if they have to be torn down. It's the same reason for collecting — you do it for the knowledge. If we don't save our past we may not remember what brought us to where we are today."

On the agenda for the convention:

- Questers will begin with a breakfast at the Blossom Heath Inn in St. Clair Shores. The building was placed on the Michigan Register of Historic Sites in 1979. In the 1920s and '30s, it was a luxurious roadhouse with a rich and colorful Prohibition-era history.
- Questers will tour seven private homes and gardens throughout the Pointes to look at antique collections as well as the historic architecture. They will stop by many of the local antique shops as well as visit local churches and the Provencal-Weir House, which is being restored by the Grosse Pointe Historical Society (and Quester restoration project). The day will be topped off with a tour and dinner at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

Business meetings and socializing will be conducted at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Fifteen private collections of antiques, including pottery, jewelry and collectibles, will be on display. A guest speaker will discuss, "The American Country Home."

"The convention is a way to collect new friends who enjoy the same things — an appreciation of the past, a sense of history and a love of antiques," Pacitto said. "We will serve as ambassadors of Grosse Pointe and will showcase and highlight the area."

Pacitto said wherever Questers are needed, they are ready to step in. "We are not just an organization that shows off antiques. We are involved in charitable causes as well."

The Questers conduct an annual open meeting each spring to which prospective members are invited. Anyone interested in joining the organization should call Georgie LeDuc, East Area coordinator, at (313) 343-0893.

Antiques are a part of work closely with the Grosse Pointe Historical Society. In 1987, Chapter No. 147 published "Pointe to Pointe," a history of Grosse Pointe, and since 1988, the East Area chapters have bestowed more than $13,000 on historical preservation efforts.

Although the convention activities on Thursday, Oct. 3, and Friday, Oct. 4, are not open to the public, Pacitto said it's They'll enjoy each other's company by sharing meals and ideas while learning about the rich history of the Pointes. But, who are the Questers? What do they do? Where did they come from and how did they get started? "Most people have never heard of the Questers," said Nancy Pacitto, chairman of the convention steering committee.

Those who attend the Questers state convention will get a chance to see Grosse Pointers' collections, including an assortment of stitched samplers, below, and a collection of match saves, at the right.

AIA tour features five homes in Grosse Pointe

The American Institute of Architects will hold its annual home tour in Grosse Pointe from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 29. Five local homes will be featured and a motor coach will take visitors from home to home.

Proceeds will benefit AIA Detroit academic scholarship and public awareness programs, including high school career days, design competitions and public tours of architecturally significant buildings.

The tour includes a 4,000 square-foot home in Grosse Pointe Farms designed in 1937 by the father-son team of Eliel and Eero Saarinen, one of only two homes they designed together. It is similar to the well-known Saarinen House at Cranbrook in its roof line, its proportions and its first floor layout.

The first floor entrance hall opens into a spacious living/dining room and a library with a parquet floor. The library has built-in bookcases, a banquet seating 12 and one of the home's three fireplaces. The dining area is defined by a curved wall with fluted mahogany paneling and has two circular recesses in the ceiling. Upstairs, original decorative stenciling can be found on the doors, and the original built-in dressers, desks and bookcases remain in four of the bedrooms.

Another Grosse Pointe Farms home included in the tour was built in 1931 for F. Caldwell Walker, son of Hiram Walker. Robert O. Derrick was the architect of the 28,000 square-foot home, thought to be one of the largest in the five Grosse Pointes.

Motor coaches will depart from the Neighborhood Club from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Tickets for the tour may be purchased in advance by sending a self-addressed envelope and a check for $13 to AIA Detroit, 553 E. Jefferson, Detroit, 48226. Ticket information is also available by calling (313) 965-4104. A limited supply of tickets will be available on the day of the tour for $15 each.

Baby bumpers: A first-ever display of cars — classic, exotic, historic and muscle cars — will be held in the parking area of Hutzel Hospital on Saturday, Sept. 28. The benefit has been dubbed "Bumpers for Babies."

The Detroit Medical Center's Hutzel Hospital has an international reputation for its Center for Fetal Diagnosis and Therapy, which treats unborn babies who have genetic abnormalities, medical and surgical problems.

"Bumpers for Babies: An Antique Classic Car Show" will benefit the center's Wings for Kids program, which provides transportation, housing and medical care for expectant parents who come to Hutzel for help.

Dr. Mark Johnson of Grosse Pointe Park and Dr. Mark I. Evans, geneticists who work with fetal therapy and surgery, are co-developers of the Wings for Kids program.

Car buffs can show off their classic cars free of charge. The show will begin at 10 a.m. and the day will include food, hourly door prizes, promotional giveaways and more. Tickets are $3 for adults; $2 for children under 16; free for children under 4. Secured parking is $2. To enter a car in the show or to get more information, call (313) 745-7225.

Pet-a-Pet: Volunteers and their pets are needed by a non-profit organization, the Pet-a-Pet program, which visits Georgian East Nursing Home on the second Wednesday and fourth Friday each month.

"Many residents in nursing homes have short attention spans or do not respond to any other stimuli except those of animals," said Ruth Curry, vice president of the organization. "Even those most difficult to motivate are responsive to dogs and cats."

Pets must have up-to-date inoculations and friendly dispositions. Volunteers contribute $5 a year to help cover expenses and most spend about an hour a month visiting nursing homes. For more information, call (810) 771-6821 or (313) 422-8416.

Hospice benefit: Hospice of Southeastern Michigan will hold a family-oriented benefit from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 22, at Upland Hills Farm in Oxford.

The benefit will include a barbecue, pony rides, carnival games, clowns, face painting, a Velcro wall, sumo wrestling and other entertainment as well as 50s and 60s-style music by Moose and Da Sharks and silent and live auctions.

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan has a specialized pediatric team of nurses and social workers who provide care for terminally ill children and their families. The team also sponsors support programs for children who have experienced the death of loved ones.

Tickets for the fundraiser are $35 for adults; $20 for kids; $200 for patron families; $400 for benefactor families. For more information or to order tickets, call Hospice at (810) 443-7633.

The walk has two sites in the Detroit area this year: the General Motors Tech Center in Warren and Gallup Park in Ann Arbor. Last year, the local walk raised more than $140,000. Nationally, the event brought in more than $15 million.

This year's walk is 10 kilometers, beginning at 9 a.m. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Participants are asked to recruit sponsors to donate money as they walk, run, bike or skate along the course. Refreshments will be available. Individuals and teams will be honored for their accomplishments.

The Pastor's Corner

Kol Nidre

By Roger M. Skully

Grosse Pointe Jewish Council

The Days of Awe conclude with Yom Kippur, the Day of Repentance. This holiday is somber and replete with introspection and self-examination.

The evening service begins with an Aramaic prayer (Aramaic was the language that Jesus spoke) called Kol Nidre (all vows). The history of this prayer, or formula for the nullification of vows, dates to the eighth century and there are various versions, depending upon the community. The haunting melody, so well known today, dates from a German folksong of the 16th century.

The translation according to the "Union Prayerbook" is as follows: "Let all our vows and oaths, all the promises we make and the obligations we incur to You, O God, between this Yom Kippur and the next, be null and void should we, after honest effort, find ourselves unable to fulfill them. Then may we be absolved of them."

The Rabbis recognized the inevitability that not all vows would be completed. They understood that human beings are far from perfect. Some purposefully renege on their vows, other inadvertently forget, or extenuating circumstances arise. Still others will make rash and careless vows that they cannot possibly fulfill.

Vows are serious things, then and now. Especially serious when invoking the Deity.

Our sages understood that something had to be done to save people from themselves and divine punishment. The rabbis devised a legal fiction whereby vows could be annulled after the fact.

The Kol Nidre is one formula for the retroactive nullification of vows, whose purpose was to spare people the dire consequences that would otherwise ensue from having failed to follow through.

It is important to note that this formula only applies to vows between man and God. Sins against our fellow human beings will not be forgiven unless we obtain our neighbor's pardon. We are bidden to seek him or her out again and again to make restitution for damages we have inflicted.

At the same time, we must be forgiving of others when they come to us. Sins against another human being carry double weight, as they are transgressions against God and our fellow man. After our fellow man has pardoned us, then we may seek God's pardon on Yom Kippur.

"On Rosh Hashanah it is written, On Yom Kippur it is sealed." We pray for all peoples that there will be a year of prosperity and peace, health and happiness.

Those who wish to worship and celebrate the holidays with us can get more information about services and about the Grosse Pointe Jewish Council by calling (313) 821-5410.

May God bless all his creatures with peace. Amen and amen.

'Prayer and Children' to be offered at Christ Church

Marlene Halpin, a Dominican sister and a teacher of prayer, will show parents and teachers how to introduce and foster prayer among children and within their families in a two-part series Friday and Saturday, Sept. 27-28 at Christ Church and St. Paul Catholic Church.

The focus on Friday will be "Praying with My Family," for parents and children. It will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms. Child care will be available for younger children and pizza and dessert will be served at 6:30 and 7:45 p.m. The cost is $5 a person; $15 a family.

Saturday's workshop, "Helping children to Pray," will be from 8:45 to 11:45 a.m. and is especially for teachers. It will be held in the Canfield Educational Center in the St. Paul School building, 170 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms. Registration fee is $8 before Sept. 20; $12 thereafter.

The series is sponsored by the Lay Theological Academy, a consortium of local churches that have organized to provide continuing education in the community. For more information, call Janet Schaeffler at (313) 885-7022.

Kamke leaves St. Paul Ev. Lutheran after 7 years

Associate Pastor Colleen Kamke has taken a call to serve as Senior Pastor at St. Thomas Evangelical Lutheran Church in Sterling Heights. Pastor Kamke has served at St. Paul since August of 1989. In accepting her new position, Kamke also has had to resign as President of the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association.

Highlights of Kamke's stay at St. Paul includes developing and improving a shut-in program. She also presided as the main Pastor for 6 months after Bishop Wahl left. With the growing membership of St. Paul during her stay, she went from part-time to full-time associate pastor. She also played a significant role in enlarging the worship service and improving the stewardship program within St. Paul.

Pastor Kamke also served as a working mom. She was blessed with two children during her stay. Her sermons were relevant to real life and appreciated.

Jewish Council member will speak to Methodists

Grosse Pointe United Methodist Women will present Mrs. Pearlina Bodvin, of the Grosse Pointe Jewish Council, as their speaker for the Sept. 24 meeting.

Bodvin will talk about all of the Jewish holidays throughout the year. She is a recipient of the United Foundation "Heart of Gold" award. Dessert and coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m., followed by Bodvin's presentation at 8 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the presentation, which is being held at 211 Moross in Grosse Pointe Farms.

St. Paul Ev. Lutheran continues celebration of 125th year

St. Paul Evangelical Church continues to celebrate its 125th anniversary. To commemorate this event, pastors who have served St. Paul will be visiting throughout this year. On September 29th, at the 9 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. services, Pastor Paul Christ will be the fifth 125th Anniversary guest minister. Along with Paul Christ, the St. Andrew's Pipe Band will be musical guests the 11:15 a.m. service.

Pastor Paul Christ served at St. Paul from August 1977 until December 1980. During his stay at St. Paul, he was particularly involved with the youth program. Highlights of his youth ministry included coordinated retreats with the youth to Yellowstone, the Bahamas, and National Youth Gathering at Indiana University. Pastor Christ also worked with the young couples of the church with special monthly meetings under the theme "Edge of Adventure."

In a recent letter recalling his time with St. Paul, Pastor Christ wrote: "I recall that involvement with Christ Episcopal and St. Paul on the Lake (Roman Catholic) were experiences of ecumenicity and common love for Christ and his church that I shall never forget. Preaching in their churches and sharing together with lay folks from other denominations was terrific."

Pastor Christ is now serving at Living Lord Evangelical Lutheran Church in Vero Beach, Fla.

Along with Pastor Christ, there will be a special bagpipe service. Bagpipers have played at St. Paul for several years. Hearing them play Amazing Grace during the service along with other Scottish hymns can be quite moving. After the 11:15 service, a special Scottish meal will be served. Reservations are recommended in advance for the banquet.

Missionaries to speak at First English Lutheran Church in September

On Sunday, September 22, 1996, Rev. Carl and Faith Lindell will finally come to Grosse Pointe to meet and greet and teach their area supporting congregation, First English Ev. Lutheran Church.

The couple will be involved in both services, the Sunday School opening, the Catechism class, and Adult Study. First English, 800 Vernier at Wedgewood in Grosse Pointe Woods, and is served by Senior Pastor Walter A. Schmidt and Associate Pastor Barton Beebe.

The community is welcome to meet the Lindells, learn about Lutheran ministries abroad, particularly Africa and Tanzania, and take part in a reception after each service for the Lindells.

Pastor Carl will preach the sermon at 8:30 and 11 a.m. services, and address the Catechism class at 10 a.m.; and Faith Lindell will address the children at Sunday School opening at 9:45 and conduct the Adult Study at 10 a.m. For more information, call the church office at (313) 884-5040. Handouts will be available.

The Lindells' home state is Minnesota, where they met and married, and attended university. Both had other careers, Carl in engineering and Faith in education. Gradually they gravitated toward a mutual interest in Christian missions, and early in their marriage, after rigorous screening and interviews by Lutheran World Federation and National Lutheran Council officials, were assigned to the East African country of Tanzania.

They now work under the auspices of the Global Missions department of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, with headquarters in Chicago.

Training offered for those who deal with domestic violence

When domestic violence strikes, ministers, priests and rabbis are often the front line workers — the trusted people a victim turns to.

Many members of the clergy may never have had any training on dealing with victims or batterers. To resolve this dilemma, the Wayne County Coordinating Council to Prevent Domestic Violence will hold a half-day conference, "Til Death Do Us Part," on Wednesday, Sept. 25, to update area clergy on domestic violence issues.

The workshop will instruct clergy on how they can better work with domestic violence victims and the people who assist them. In addition, religious leaders will discover what role they play in the coordinated community response effort Wayne County has developed over the past four years.

The guest speaker will be Nancy Diehl, director of the Child and Family Abuse Bureau of the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

The free event will be held at the Burton Manor, 27777 Schoolcraft in Livonia. Registration is at 8 a.m. A continental breakfast will be served. All members of the clergy are urged to attend. To register, call (313) 224-6994.

Catholic Lawyers plan dinner

One year ago, the Catholic Lawyers' Society began what it hoped to be a long-term relationship with Dominican High School and Academy through its sponsorship of an annual dinner to provide additional funding for young women who wish to attend the school and are in need of financial assistance.

Dominican is the only remaining school for girls in the city of Detroit and it continues to be a special ministry of the Adrian Dominican Sisters who founded the school in 1940.

On Friday, Oct. 4, the Catholic Lawyers' Society will host the Second Annual Dinner which will again be held at the school.

Sister Tarianne DeYonker, alumna and newly named, president of Dominican, will be the guest of honor and will address the group and share her vision for the future of the school.

A cocktail reception is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. with dinner and musical entertainment to follow. Valet parking will be provided.

Will I be able to conceive?

By Dr. Carole Kowalczyk
Special Writer

It is not uncommon today for women to wait well into their 30s before they consider starting a family. In all age groups of couples trying to conceive, on average, five out of six couples will get pregnant within a year.

For women who are older, it may take longer. A woman is most fertile in her early to mid 20s. This ability declines as she ages. And once a woman passes age 35, her fertility potential starts to rapidly decline.

That is why some couples wishing to become pregnant should seek medical assistance 12 months after actively trying to become pregnant without success. Women age 35 or older may want to seek help earlier.

Dr. Carole Kowalczyk

When should I seek help?

The decision to begin medical therapy depends on the nature of the problem. A typical infertility work-up consists of a history and physical of the woman, an assessment of ovulation by blood tests to evaluate hormone levels and a temperature chart or urine kits to evaluate ovulation.

An X-ray dye test, called a hysterosalpingogram, is performed to examine the shape of the uterine cavity and to determine if the fallopian tubes are open. To evaluate the male partner's fertility, I record his complete medical history and request a semen sample to identify any abnormalities in his sperm that may affect his ability to get his partner pregnant.

A couple should see a fertility specialist together, if possible. Infertility is a very private issue for anyone, but it's important for a couple to work through the problem together and to understand that it may take time to find a solution.

Lifestyle changes

It is wise for couples to follow a basically healthy lifestyle while they are trying to conceive. If one or both of the partners smoke cigarettes, they should either quit or cut down, as smoking can alter ovulation and the ability of the tubes to transport the sperm and egg. Marijuana and other drugs can have adverse effects on sperm.

Both partners also should eat a well-balanced diet and try to keep their body weights to within 15 percent of the ideal range. Women who are too thin, or those who suffer from eating disorders like anorexia or bulimia, don't have the hormone stability of women whose body weight is within the normal range. Also, women who overexercise can disrupt their hormone balance, causing their menstrual cycles to stop (amenorrhea).

Many problems treatable

The good news is that today there are many treatment options to help the majority of couples who are concerned about their inability to conceive. The treatment course depends on the problem.

Sometimes, if there is a structural abnormality in the uterus or tubes, I can correct it with surgery. If ovulation is irregular or absent, drugs that help stimulate ovulation can be prescribed.

If there are significant problems with the sperm sample, then medical therapy or interventions such as intrauterine inseminations can be recommended. If conception still has not occurred, then I will discuss the many advanced procedures available such as in vitro fertilization, or even other more recently developed assisted reproductive technologies.

Dr. Carole Kowalczyk is a Bon Secours obstetrician/gynecologist who specializes in reproductive endocrinology and fertility as well as pediatric adolescent gynecology. She will join two other Bon Secours physicians to discuss issues that affect women of various ages at a special free program, "For Women," from 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 25, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore. For more information or to preregister, call Bon Secours Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900.

Women's health issues to be topic of panel of physicians

Marcia Wallace

WomanWise Symposium to be held at Assumption

She's best known for her roles as the irreverent, wise-cracking receptionist on "The Bob Newhart Show" and as the voice of Bart Simpson's beleaguered fourth-grade teacher, Ms. Krabapple. Today, however, comedic actress Marcia Wallace also plays the real-life role of a courageous and inspiring fighter against the breast cancer epidemic.

You're invited to meet and experience the humor, warmth and wisdom of Marcia Wallace at the WomanWise Symposium '96, Wednesday, Oct. 2, at Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores. Symposium '96 is co-sponsored by the WomanWise Network of Henry Ford Health System and its eastside hospitals — Henry Ford Cottage Hospital and Bi-County Community Hospital.

Wallace was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1985. Since that time and her subsequent recovery, she has become a nationally prominent leader of women who are refusing to wait passively for a cure.

In May 1994, she was featured with other celebrities including Jill Eikenberry, Shirley Temple Black and Linda Ellerbee on the cover of Life magazine for their stories about beating breast cancer.

Through her presentation, Wallace tells her own, personal story and hopes to prompt other women to become better informed about breast cancer detection and treatment options, and to take action to guard their own health.

WomanWise Symposium '96 also features Dr. Cheryl Wesen, a Henry Ford Cottage Hospital surgeon who specializes in diseases of the breast. Wesen will focus on taking charge of your health, including practicing monthly breast self-exams (BSEs), making regular mammograms and physician check-ups a priority, and following through with early treatment when breast cancer is most curable.

Using actual mammography films, Bi-County Community Hospital Radiologist, Victoria Chain, D.O., and Obstetrician/Gynecologist Becky Smith, D.O., will explain what the shadows and light areas on a mammogram tell the physician. Other health care professionals will teach individuals the proper method for doing monthly BSEs, using anatomical models with tiny lumps in them.

The evening program begins with an hors d'oeuvre reception from 5 to 6 p.m. and concludes at approximately 9 p.m. You'll enjoy dinner, the featured speakers, informative displays and useful gifts to take home.

Reservations are $25. For information, call the Henry Ford Cottage Hospital Community Education Hotline (313) 640-2425.

Wayne County Health Department sets up flu immunization clinics

Wayne County officials are urging people — especially senior citizens, individuals with certain chronic conditions and others who want to avoid influenza — to visit one of the fall flu shot clinics being offered through the County's Health Department.

A $2 charge for the influenza shot is requested, but indigent citizens may receive a waiver.

"Absolutely no one will be turned away due to inability to pay," said Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara. "The money collected will help us buy more vaccine for that many more people."

The typical influenza season runs from November through April, but the maximum protection provided by the vaccine occurs when it is given early, before the season starts.

Thousands of deaths occur every year among people considered susceptible to influenza and its complications, said Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, medical director for the Wayne County Health Department. "In fact, in recent years, the majority of deaths during flu season have been among people 65 years of age and older."

Lawrenchuk added that individuals with chronic underlying disorders of the cardiovascular, pulmonary and/or renal systems, as well as those with metabolic diseases such as diabetes mellitus, severe anemia and/or persons with impaired immune functions are also at increased risk when influenza strikes.

"We encourage individuals 65 and older, or anyone having chronic diseases, to talk with their physicians about obtaining this vaccine," he said.

The Wayne County Health Department will offer a trivalent (three virus) split virus vaccine for individuals with certain chronic conditions, to all citizens age 65 or older, and appropriate others who wish to protect themselves from the flu.

Shots will be available on Friday, Oct. 4, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m., at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside in Grosse Pointe Woods; and on Thursday, Nov. 7, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. at the Harper Woods Community Center, 19748 Harper in Harper Woods.

Appointments are required. Call (313) 882-9600.

For additional information, call the Wayne County Health Department Disease Control division office at (313) 467-3325.

A. Conceivably we have a lay-down grand slam, but first you must know much more about partner's opening bid. Two spades (jump shift) promises a monster and a self-sustained suit which you don't have. Three clubs in most partnerships is limit (9-11 HCP). One spade is the expert bid, totally forcing, and takes away no room.

B. This hand has great possibilities, but first suit fits must be found. Bid one spade, equal length higher ranking suit first.

C. Where this one ends up has much to do with partner's next bid. One diamond fills the bill for now.

A. Even though only 12 HCP opposite (15-17 HCP) your hand is a prime plus holding and slam is a possibility. Most play after Stayman or Jacoby transfer a new suit at the three level is totally forcing. Bid three diamonds. Two diamonds was conventional so three diamonds is either a new suit or a feature.

B. Not much, but the seven card suit has playing merit. Invite by bidding three hearts.

C. You've told your partner you like hearts. Now tell her you'd like to be in slam if she's on the top of her opening no trump. Bid four no trump.

DSO's new season opens with all-Beethoven program

As Neeme Jarvi and the DSO open a new season tonight, our music director is poised to continue his refreshing practice of keeping both the orchestra and his audience on their toes. We have come to look forward to his penchant for performances filled with energy and vitality and what are often unconventional and revealing interpretations of standard works.

They invariably amount to very pleasant surprises. Similarly, the musicians in the orchestra have learned to watch him like hawks because he may change the performance from night to night. Once, in deference to the budget, there was no encore because it would have taken the program into overtime.

Repeating the concert the next evening, the major work was three minutes shorter and there was an encore. Most interestingly, a fortunate few who heard both performances preferred the second.

The point is that as a genuinely inspired music director, Maestro Jarvi is always working to bring out more of what the music has to express and he does it with obvious enjoyment and dedication. On another occasion, an orchestra member scurrying past arriving patrons to greet a friend was heard to greet a friend with: "Watch him closely tonight. He's in rare form!" Some would observe that our Maestro is always in rare form. Certainly his expressed intent for the all-Beethoven program tonight will bear watching closely.

The program includes the "Consecration of the House" (for the new development that has broken ground), the Violin Concerto with Midori as soloist, and the 7th Symphony. The focus of the Maestro's attention is on tempi.

For many years, opinions have differed concerning the custom of conductors to take many of Beethoven's orchestral works at slower tempi than the composer's indications in the scores.

The metronome of the early 19th century, they argue, was not calibrated the same as ate to question these norms, and does so with his most discreet artistic judgment.

There is no question that contemporary orchestras, especially the DSO, are up to the task. Last summer at Meadow Brook, for example, his performance of the ever-popular 9th Symphony was agreeably enlivened with an up-tempo treatment.

Listening to what he does this time will add considerable interest to attending the concert tonight, tomorrow or Saturday night, or Sunday afternoon. For tickets and information, call (313) 833-3700.

Next time, State of the Arts will explore the esthetics of interpreting Mozart in an exclusive interview with piano soloist Peter Frankl. He will play the A Major, K 488 Concerto with Guest Conductor James DePriest. Debussy's Pelleas and Melisande Suite and Dvorak's Symphony No. 8 will complete the program.

today's, hence an adjustment is appropriate.

According to others, including Jarvi, a tradition of taking Beethoven's scores at a "more majestic" tempo came about in the early part of this century. Slowing down slightly was a practice of German conductors in order to accommodate technical limitations of their orchestras. As these performances became familiar to musicians and listeners, especially through the proliferation of recordings, they became accepted norms. Jarvi considers it appropri-

Norsemen hold off Huskies for second win

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

To say Grosse Pointe North's game with Port Huron Northern was important to the Norsemen would be an understatement.

"It was a big game for us. It was one we pointed to, because we haven't won up here for a while," said North coach Frank Sumbera after his team had held on for a 20-18 victory.

It was so important Sumbera put in a new defense to stop the Huskies' passing game.

"The last six or seven minutes we used a totally new defense we put in this week," he explained. "We call it the 47-Huskie. It's the first time we've ever used a seven-man coverage. We'd see what kind of formation they'd be in and our linebackers, Michael Turner or Chad Cooper, or (Steve) Champine would make the call whether we'd go three or four deep."

North fell behind early when Northern capitalized on an interception return to the Norsemen's eight-yard line and scored on a two-yard run by Anthony Malachi. The Huskies attempted a two-point conversion but quarterback Matt Schock was stopped short of the goal line.

North tied the game on its next possession, marching 58 yards in nine plays. The touchdown came on a 24-yard pass from Champine to Vince Meli. Champine rolled out and threaded a perfect pass through a couple of defenders into the waiting arms of Meli. Champine's extra-point kick was wide.

North went ahead to stay with 2:11 left in the first half. Nick Aubrey intercepted a pass and returned it 20 yards to the Northern 45.

Seven plays later, Chris Morkut went in from the one and Champine kicked the extra point to give the Norsemen a 13-6 lead.

Champine ended a Huskies threat in the final minute of the first half when he intercepted Schock's pass and brought it back 24 yards to the North 44.

The Norsemen quickly added to their lead in the second half. Meli returned the second-half kickoff 74 yards to the Northern 16 and it took only four plays for North to get into the end zone on a one-yard run by Leonard Harris.

Champine's extra point gave the Norsemen a 20-6 lead but they weren't home free.

Northern drove to the North five and had an apparent touchdown nullified by an offensive pass interference penalty. The Huskies finally turned the ball over on downs at the North 13.

Moments later, an interception gave Northern the ball at the Norsemen's 23, but two plays later Champine returned the favor when he picked off a pass at the goal line.

North was stopped on downs and Northern got good field position at the Norsemen's 31 with 8:42 left in the game. Two plays later, Schock passed 24 yards to Ryan Huestek for the touchdown. But again the North grad honors parents

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

John Matouk searched for years to find a way in which he could honor his late parents. Then he saw the light — literally.

The 1984 Grosse Pointe North graduate decided to make a substantial contribution to the permanent lights that have been erected on the school's football field and will be used for the first time Friday when the Norsemen host Henry Ford II.

"When my father (William Matouk) died eight years ago my mother and I wanted to do something for the community in his memory," John Matouk said. "He had been in business in the area since 1940 and knew a lot of people."

One of the first things that came to mind was a contribution to the Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores Little League.

John Matouk was a member of the Woods-Shores all-star team that went to the Little League World Series.

He wanted to build a storage shed-press box behind home plate at Ghesquiere Park with a plaque remembering his parents, but the request was turned down by the zoning board.

"I just wanted to have something so the kids could hear their names announced when they came up to bat," said Matouk, the chief executive officer of Remtech Companies.

"I made the request three times and was turned down each time. Finally I decided to just give a check for $10,000 to the Woods-Shores Little League to use as they saw fit."

But Matouk still wasn't satisfied. He wanted something that could be a memorial to his father.

"Then my mother (Louise) passed away, too, and I wanted something as a remembrance to both of my parents," he said.

"One day I was talking to Chuck Thomas (a member of the Lights Committee at North) and he suggested I make a contribution toward the lights."

Matouk thought that was an excellent idea.

He played football and baseball at North and in his senior season had 10 interceptions, 152 yards and a touchdown.

"I remember John as an excellent team player who was always hustling and willing to work hard," said coach Frank Sumbera.

Matouk still has ties to North because his niece, Michelle Romain, is a sophomore at the school.

Matouk remembers his parents attending his games. "I don't think they ever missed a game when I was playing. That was one of the things they enjoyed most," he said.

"They were committed to the community and the lights are a big commitment to the community. I'm sure they'd be happy to know about this."

Matouk wishes there had been lights on the field when he was playing.

"We had a couple of road games at night and it was awesome," he recalled.

"I think (the lights) are going to be super for the kids and the fans."

There will be a stone monument placed at the entrance of the football field as a memorial to William and Louise Matouk.

"I just wanted to do something that would be a memorial to my parents and would help the community at the same time," Matouk said. "I thank the lights committee, especially Chuck Thomas, Dave Bergman and Steve Mellos, for letting me do this."

Opposing cross country runners are seeing a lot of Jonnie Vasse's back these days.

The Grosse Pointe South junior won her second straight invitational last Saturday when she led the Blue Devils to the team championship in the 12-team De La Salle Invitational.

Vasse's winning time of 20:05 was the second fastest ever recorded on the tough Stony Creek Metropark course.

Other varsity medalists were Katy Kraft, Chris Littmann and Kristin Ritter.

The Blue Devils won their first two Macomb Area Conference Red Division dual meets, beating Warren-Mott

Emily Richard, Carrie Howe, Melissa Balok, Lauren Mardirosian and Dara O'Byrne have been running well for South.

The Blue Devils also dominated the junior varsity race at Stony Creek by taking 12 of the top 15 medal positions.

Other fine performances came from Emilia Kwiatkowski, Emily Neveux, Amanda McLellan and Erica Hill.

Jonnie Vasse has finished first in two straight invitational cross country meets to help her Grosse Pointe South squad to team championships in each.

ULS bows to Westland but leaves impression

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Lutheran Westland hadn't played University Liggett School in football for three years, so the Warriors got a rude awakening last Friday when they met the Knights.

"I don't think they expected us to hit like we did," ULS coach Gary Hills said after the Knights dropped a 32-12 decision to Lutheran Westland in the Metro Conference game.

"They're going to wind up as one of the top teams in the league and our hitting impressed them. A.J. Stachecki hit one of their captains — one of the most physical kids on their team — and one of our teachers heard the kid say 'I've never been hit that hard.' We want to be known as a physical team."

Stachecki, who made 13 tackles, received the "Bone Award" for the hardest hit but he had several rivals for the honor. Linebacker Renard Morey-Greer had 14 tackles, Brian Brunton played well on both sides of the football, Jeff Mehr had 10 stops and Jason Cooper played a strong game at nose guard for ULS.

Westland led 14-0 at halftime. The Warriors scored on drives of 70 and 50 yards, while ULS had trouble getting into the end zone.

"We moved the ball between the 30s, but couldn't finish because of one mistake or another," Hills said. "But because we were moving the ball, the kids came in at halftime convinced they could come back and win in the second half."

The Knights didn't even get discouraged when they were stopped at the Warriors' 10 early in the second half and moments later a Westland player raced 88 yards for a touchdown and a 20-0 lead.

"A lot of teams would have folded after that, but not these kids," Hills said.

Quarterback Justin Macksoud connected with freshman Wharf Hawasli on a 55-yard scoring strike. The speedy Hawasli caught the ball on the Westland 30 and raced past a couple of Warriors defenders on his way to the end zone.

Midway through the fourth quarter, Macksoud and Will Watson combined on a 75-yard touchdown pass. Once again, ULS tried for two points on the conversion and was stopped inches short of the goal line.

"Our defense did a good job of stopping them in the second half," Hills said.

With a little more than four minutes left in the game, ULS had cut Westland's lead to 20-12. But in its bid to tie the score the Knights had a couple of passes intercepted and returned for touchdowns.

"It was a lot closer game than the final score indicates," Hills said. "Westland knows it was in a ballgame. I thought our kids played well enough to win but maybe I was a little too conservative in some of my play-calling. That's not my style. I might have outsmarted myself."

ULS had 384 yards in total offense. Macksoud completed 10 of 20 passes for 258 yards. Kevin Espy led the ground attack with 132 yards in 14 carries.

The Knights' player of the game was defensive end-tight end Kyle Denham.

"Once again we had several players we considered," Hills said. "Kyle never left the field. He contained everything at defensive end and he made a great reception on a third down play to set up one of our touchdowns."

Brunton, Espy and Stachecki were among the others considered for the player of the game.

"And my assistant coaches have done a great job in preparing the kids. They spend a lot of time each week. And then I try not to mess it up," Hills said with a laugh.

ULS plays its first road game Saturday at Lutheran North at 1 p.m.

"They're 1-1 just like we are," Hills said. "They lost a close one to Lutheran East, which is probably the class of the league, and they had a fine defensive performance in beating Clarencville."

"They have a quarterback who throws the ball nicely. They're a Class B school so we'll have to come ready to play, but our kids believe they can beat them. And they can."

Sophomore QB shines in Blue Devils' loss

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Mike McLeod saw something missing when he talked to his Grosse Pointe South football team before last Friday's game with Sterling Heights.

"I don't know if we took them lightly or if we were still down from the Notre Dame game (a 14-12 loss in the opener) because that's such a neighborhood rivalry," McLeod said after the Stallions rolled to a 48-20 victory over the Blue Devils in the Macomb Area Conference crossover game.

"It's disappointing because we had a great week of practice, too."

Whatever the problem, Sterling Heights took advantage of it. The Stallions scored three first-quarter touchdowns to lead 21-0, then they added a couple more scores in the second quarter to build a 34-8 halftime advantage.

Once South got behind, it had to abandon its running game. "We never scrapped the game plan, but we had to throw the ball to get back into the game," McLeod said.

That put some pressure on sophomore quarterback Mike Kaselitz and he shouldered it well.

"Our offensive line did a great job of pass protection and Kaselitz threw the ball well," McLeod said. "I was happy with our passing game and Sterling Heights was coming with a lot of people."

Now he'd like to get the running game functioning as smoothly as the aerial attack.

"We have to run the ball better," McLeod said. "We have to get more balance. Josh Lorence ran a couple of nice draws for 30 or 40 yards, but that was about it."

South finally got on the scoreboard with a 71-yard pass from Kaselitz to Josh Nyenhuis in the second quarter. Kaselitz then passed to Kyle McCartney for the two-point conversion.

Kaselitz passed 30 yards to McCartney and 40 to Steve Gayman for the Blue Devils' other touchdowns.

"He completed 50 percent of his passes for more than 200 yards," McLeod said. "It was a good game for him."

Ryan Ermanni also caught five passes out of the backfield in another strong performance for the Blue Devils.

Sterling Heights hurt South with its passing game, completing five for touchdowns.

"They have a tight end who's a Division I player," McLeod said. "They didn't run anything we hadn't prepared for. We just couldn't stop them."

South's defensive standouts were inside linebackers Ben Reynolds and Jason Lorence.

The Blue Devils travel to Lake Shore Friday for a MAC crossover game with the Shorians, who are 1-1 after last week's 28-0 loss to South Lake.

The Grosse Pointe Red Barons ran into some tough competition against the Oak Park Trojans this week.

The freshman squad was the only one to win, beating Oak Park 13-6.

Grosse Pointe's varsity lost 33-0 in the East Suburban Football League game.

Quarterback K.C. Cleary hooked up with receiver Chandon Waller on several passes, including a 32-yarder. Running backs Ron Pearson, Mike O'Neil and Matt Jarboe had good games.

Matt Santoro, John Schubeck, Heath Schollenberger, Mark Peppler and Jack Tocco had solid performances defensively. O'Neil downed a punt at the eight-yard line. Oak Park won the junior varsity game 36-12. The Red Barons' Danny Keogh threw a 32-yard touchdown pass to Tim Kaselitz. Andrew Shanley scored the other TD on a one-yard run. He benefitted from a block by Todd Kozicki. Kyle Hacias set up the touchdown with a 30-yard halfback pass to Kaselitz.

Angelo Tocco and Matt Stemer recovered fumbles and Austin McClung fell on an inside kick. Ryan Rogers had a 40-yard interception return. Ian Milhouse, Jason Kline, Louie Hyde and John Miller each had good defensive games.

Zach Schmitt scored both touchdowns for the Red Barons freshmen. He had TD runs of five and eight yards, while Drew Bedan scored an extra point. Peter Furest and Jack Watson led the blocking in the offensive line.

Aric Minney, Justin Linne, Vinnie Panizzi, Scott Hobart and P.J. Jauntol each had solid defensive games.

The Red Barons visit the Northeast Detroit Shamrocks on Saturday at 1 p.m.

Smyly leads the way for North runners

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Tom Smyly has the potential to be one of the top cross country runners in Grosse Pointe North history. Now the rest is up to him.

"He could be as successful as Scott Collins and Bill Stevenson," said coach Pat Wilson after Smyly was the overall winner as the Norsemen split a pair of Macomb Area Conference White Division double-dual meets.

Collins and Stevenson were both All-State runners for the Norsemen.

North beat L'Anse Creuse 21-35 and lost 26-30 to Anchor Bay.

"Tom has the ability to be one of the top runners in the area without doing any special training," Wilson said. "But if he puts in the extra work, he can take it to the next level. It's up to him."

Smyly, a sophomore, was about 10 seconds ahead of the group of Anchor Bay runners who took second through fourth place. His winning time on the Tars' home course was 18:05.

"Tom showed a lot of strength," Wilson said. "He stayed with the Anchor Bay kids for most of the race and then took off in the last half mile."

Chris Hirt was second for North in 18:26, followed by Sachin Shah, Ted Huebner, Matt Mikula, Mike Novitke and Bob Kettel.

"Hirt hung with those three solid runners from Anchor Bay," Wilson said. "He's staying with the better runners in the area now. He's developing into one of those kids who makes the state meet."

North girls crush two league rivals

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North girls cross country coach Scott Cooper was looking forward to some close meets now that the Norsemen have moved up a division in the Macomb Area Conference.

Well, he's still looking forward to them.

North opened the MAC White season last week with a pair of easy victories — 16-42 over L'Anse Creuse North and 15-48 against Anchor Bay.

"I thought it might be a little closer against Anchor Bay because they were the team that knocked us out of the state meet at last year's regional," Cooper said. "We ran well as a team. We had a tight pack of runners up front."

One of the bright spots for North was the performance of senior Katie Daniels, who was first overall.

"It's the first time she's looked like she did last year," Cooper said. "She's back on track and that's going to help us."

Erin Lenahan was second, followed by Julie Mielke, Beth Ginger and Andrea Verryser. Betsy Huebner and Ellen Safran rounded out the Norsemen's top seven.

"Our first six runners all had their best times of the year and Safran was only one second off her best," Cooper said.

Cooper was also encouraged by the efforts of Christine Broderick and Vickie DeCarlo.

"Christine's a junior who never got into our varsity group before, but she's moving up nicely," Cooper said. "And this is the first time Vickie's been in our top 12."

North finished seventh at the Algonac Muskrat Invitational and junior varsity runners Tracy Secord and Betsy Stafford turned in excellent performances.

"Tracy was our first JV runner and she would have placed seventh in the varsity race," Cooper said. "They ran the JV girls about two hours after the varsity and the course was really in bad shape, so she did an outstanding job. So did Betsy."

Devils thrive in duals

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Tom Wise expected his Grosse Pointe South boys cross country team to do well in dual meets and so far the Blue Devils haven't let him down.

"We're a deep, strong team that should do well in dual meets," Wise said after South beat Macomb Area Conference Red Division foes Warren-Mott (18-43) and Ford II (23-36) in a double-dual meet hosted by the Marauders.

"I think we're a deeper dual team than invitational. We'll have to have few of the kids move up the list in invitationals."

One of the top performances in the Mott-Ford meets was turned in by Andrew Petersen, who finished second overall.

"Andrew changed his training schedule and he's improved a lot since doing it," said Wise.

Jeff Pilley was third and Parker Roth fourth in the Ford scoring. Mike Cronin and Brian Steele rounded out the Blue Devils' top five.

"And Chas Carrier and Garrett Heffner both finished ahead of (Ford's) fifth runner," Wise said.

Freshmen Fred Pope and Mike Alvin each improved their times by some 40 seconds, while Corey Johnson, Bill Crawford and Chris Goldsby ran strong races.

The Norsemen failed to get a first down on their next possession and Northern began a drive from midfield that was capped by Schock's 14-yard run with 4:12 remaining. Schock attempted to roll out for the two-point conversion but he was hit by Phillip Cataldo and Chad Cooper.

"The quarterback called an audible and Cooper picked it up," Sumner said. "Stopping all three of those extra-point attempts was real important. We stress that to our special teams people. Extra points can win or lose games. If they made all of theirs, they'd have a tie or a win.

Once again North failed to get a first down and Northern started its final drive at its own 23 with about 2 1/2 minutes remaining.

This time Northern couldn't get a first down and the Norsemen took over on the Huskies' 22 with 1:42 to go after Champine knocked down Schock's fourth-down pass near midfield.

A 15-yard run by Harris, who had 136 yards in 26 carries, gave North a key first down as it ran out the clock.

Harris earned all the yards he got.

"In the second half they had one guy whose assignment was to stay with 44 (Harris)," Sumner said. "But Leonard's like Barry Sanders. If you keep giving him the ball, he's going to break one sooner or later."

There were several defensive standouts for the Norsemen.

"The defense was much improved over last week," Sumner said. "Our front four of Cataldo, Troy Bergman, Nick Fuga and Mike Benedettini put a lot of pressure on their quarterback. Our linebackers played well and Steve Bernhardt on the outside made some big hits."

Benedettini led North with 13 tackles, including three solos and a pair of sacks. Cooper had 12 hits, two of them solos, and Turner and Bergman each had seven tackles.

It doesn't get any easier for the Norsemen this week when they host Ford II under the new lights at North.

"We'll have our hands full," Sumner said. "They were picked in the top 10 in the state before the season. Their only loss was 21-20 to Brighton, whose quarterback might be the best in the Midwest.

"Ford's quarterback (Pat Burns) has the strongest arm we've seen in the conference in quite a while. He can throw the ball 55 to 60 yards. They have some skilled receivers and a couple of fast running backs in the Abbate twins (Jeff and Jason)."

The Falcons are ranked fourth in the Metro East area, one notch ahead of the Norsemen, who are ninth in the state in Class A.

Champs again

The Tigers won their third straight Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Babe Ruth baseball regular-season championship. The Tigers and Angels tied for first place with 8-7 record, but the Tigers won the tie-breaker based on head-to-head results. The Tigers also won the playoff title with a 2-1 victory over the Yankees. The Tigers lost their first three games, but came back to win the next five behind the strong pitching of Dan Battjes, Bill Kennedy and Rich

Mustangs '85 off to a good start

The Pointe Girls Soccer Association Mustangs '85 bounced back from a 2-1 loss to the Troy Attack to win its next three games in under-12 travel league play.

Amanda Marinello scored three goals and Beth Sanders, Mandi Marsh and Suzanne McGoey added a goal apiece in the Mustangs' 6-0 win over the Northville Sting.

Molly Zeller and Stephanie McLroy played well defensively and Meghan Brennan recorded the shutout.

Marsh, Beth Mumaw and Laura Fisher each collected a goal and an assist in the Mustangs' 3-1 victory over the Brighton Eclipse.

Marinello was the winning goalie with help on defense from Hillary Miller and Stephanie Rose.

Sanders tallied twice, once on a penalty shot, and Marsh collected a goal and two assists to lead the Mustangs to a 5-1 win over the Livonia Meteors.

McGoey and Nina Carlisi each scored a goal for the Mustangs and Fisher had an assist.

Marinello was the winning goalie, while Jillian Karlick and McLroy were defensive standouts.

Fisher scored the Mustangs' only goal in the 2-1 loss to the Troy Attack. Marinello made a fine pass to record the assist.

Under-13
The PGSA Mustangs '84 were moved up an age level to under-14 for the Romeo Peach Festival tournament and the team tied twice and suffered one loss in its three games.

Nayla Kazzi and Meredith Farmer tallied for the Mustangs in a 2-2 tie with the Lobos. Sylvia Ridgeway and Farmer split the goaltending duties.

Ridgeway and Farmer were perfect in goal and Amy Socia and Jaime Keller played strong defensively in a scoreless tie with the Strikers.

The other game was a 2-0 loss to Canton.

Lauren Safran, Erica Muncy, Stephanie Ritok and Meggie Schmidt played well in the tournament.

Keller and Socia turned in strong defensive efforts in front of Ridgeway in a 1-0 loss to Northville in Little Caesars league play.

Farmer posted the shutout and Socia scored the game's only goal with an assist by Muncy in a 1-0 victory over Canton that featured excellent passing by the Mustangs.

Jennifer Swalec scored the Mustangs' lone goal and Schmidt assisted in a 3-1 loss to Saginaw. The Mustangs also dropped a 2-0 decision to Royal Oak.

Under-11
Lindsay Pothoff and Danica Day scored for the Mustangs '86 in a 2-2 tie with the USL Sting.

South wins only match

The weather was the biggest enemy for Grosse Pointe South's girls tennis team last week.

"We only got one match in," said coach Mark Sobieralski. "We even had to call off our tournament on Saturday."

The match the Blue Devils did get in was a winning one. South opened the Macomb Area Conference Red Division season with a 6-2 win over Eisenhower.

Sobieralski had to do some juggling with his singles lineup because of an injury to Meryl Pankhurst.

"I moved Esther Farkas to third singles and brought Alicia Siefert up from fourth doubles to play No. 4 singles," Eleanor Ford, Erin McLeod, Julie Howe, Jennifer Marsh, Jessica Marsh and Megan Switalski played well for the Mustangs.

A excellent game at stopper by Natalie Waelchli was a highlight for the Mustangs in a 1-0 loss to the Detroit Heat.

Pothoff played well in goal and Kristen Padilla and Catherine Shumaker also had strong performances.

Under-17
Carrie Howe scored both goals to lead the Mustangs '81 to a 2-1 victory over the Fraser Fury.

Allison Dold and Mieke Teitge collected the assists. Jennifer Dumm played a strong game in goal and Sarah Rahaim, Alezzia Razzeto and Courtney Schafer also turned in solid efforts.

Jessica Howlett and Howe scored in the Mustangs 2-1 victory over the Lansing Cyclone. Melissa Brown had the only assist.

Bakalis.

Liz Tymrak scored the Mustangs' only goal on a free kick in the PGSA team's 3-1 loss to Kalamazoo.

Andrea Muncy, Hannah Wenzel and Karine Polis played well in the midfield.

ULS wins comeback battle

It looks like no deficit is going to be too much for University Liggett School's girls basketball team to overcome this year.

The Knights erased an 11-point deficit late in the fourth quarter last week to beat Cranbrook Kingswood 38-35 in a Metro Conference game.

Clutch field goals and full-court pressure ignited the ULS comeback.

Junior point guard Karah Knope led the Knights with 11 points and four steals, while sophomore forward Keli Bonner sparked the comeback with six of her 10 points in the final quarter. Bonner also had nine rebounds.

The victory was a team effort for ULS.

Guards Allison Johnson, Casey Papa, Holly Morrison and Knope split time to maintain the fast pace of the game. Morrison also had two field goals down the stretch.

Erica Brammer led the Knights' defensive effort, while the offensive and defensive post play of Jasmine Beale, Victoria Hills and Raven Lewis was too much for the Cranes to handle.

ULS is 2-3 overall and 1-1 in the Metro Conference.

Brian and Diane Benz of Grosse Pointe Park were the individual winners at the first Bikes, Blades and Boards modified triathlon. Brian was the men's division winner, while Diane took the overall trophy in the women's division.

There are no bragging rights in the Grosse Pointe Park home of Brian and Diane Benz. That's because each of them were the overall winners at the first Bikes, Blades and Boards modified triathlon.

Brian Benz easily won the men's division of the rollerblading, bicycling and running event with a time of 44 minutes, 24 seconds. Larry Gjernes was second and Grosse Pointe Woods resident Mark Kossak was third.

Diane Benz nipped runner-up Amy Stock in the women's division with a time of 52:48.

A total of 190 athletes competed in the event with 97 individuals competing in all three legs while 93 raced one of the three disciplines as members of three-person relay teams.

Racers ranged in age from 9 to 62.

"We were extremely pleased with the number of racers who participated," said race director Mike Le Van.

There was also good weather after a day of rain on Saturday.

The race was headquartered at Windmill Pointe Park with the course winding through the surrounding neighborhoods. The course included three miles of inline skating, eight miles of biking and two miles of running.

"Planning the course was one of the most difficult tasks we faced," Le Van said. "We spent a lot of time working with assistant city manager Brian Murphy and Sgt. Christopher Powell of the public safety department."

"We wanted to make the course safe and fun for the racers and at the same time, minimize any potential inconvenience to the residents along the course. The majority of residents were extremely cooperative and lots of people set up chairs on their front lawns to watch the event. One family even set up a water station for the racers."

In addition to the overall winners awards were given to the following racers.

Individual division
Men's 17 and under — 1, Eric Prezbiorka; 2, Ryan Sanborn; 3, Andrew Sweeny.

North at night

Here are the schedule of fall athletic events that will be played under the new permanent lights at Grosse Pointe North.

Varsity football games will be played Sept. 20 against Ford II; Oct. 18 against Romeo; and Oct. 25 against Fraser.

There will be a varsity boys soccer game against Lake Shore on Sept. 25.

All varsity contests are scheduled to start at 7 p.m.

Junior varsity football games will be played against Cousino on Oct. 3 and against Warren-Mott on Oct. 10. Both games start at 6:45 p.m.

There will be freshman football games on Oct. 9 against Heritage and Oct. 30 against Dakota. Both games start at 6:45 p.m.

ULS wins first dual University Liggett School competed in its first dual cross country meet since 1992 and the layoff certainly didn't hurt the Knights.

ULS nipped South Lake 26-29 as Joel Parrott led the Knights with a second-place finish. Sonny Ford was right behind Parrott in third place.

The Cavaliers took the fourth and fifth spots but Kurt Niemi, Clark Durant and freshman Blair Foust grabbed sixth, seventh and eighth to secure the ULS win.

"Our first four runners are interchangeable," said coach Phil Langford. "Any one of them can be our No. 1 runner."

The other Knights running against South Lake were K.C. Crain, Peter Alle and Matt Lombardo.

It wasn't a good day for running last Saturday at the Algonac Muskrat Invitational, but the day wasn't a total loss for University Liggett School cross country coach Phil Langford, who snapped this picture of the Knights' Kurt Niemi plunging through the slop. "It was a great day for pictures," Langford said. "I wrapped my camera in a plastic bag and got some great shots." Niemi led the ULS contingent, followed by Joel Parrott, Sonny Ford and Blair Foust. The Knights were 15th in the B-C-D division.

South gives ranked team a battle

By Chuck Klion
Sports Editor

There shouldn't be any dull, boring basketball around Grosse Pointe South this fall.

"This team likes to play at a fast pace," said Blue Devils coach Peggy Van Eckoute after her team dropped a thrilling 62-55 non-league decision to Detroit Dominican. "It's a good group of kids. They want to do well and they practice hard."

"Our biggest problem is we're young and we've moved up to the Red (Macomb Area Conference Red Division)."

South trailed Dominican, which is ranked fifth in the state in Class C, by 20 points at halftime and by 16 points at the start of the fourth quarter, but the Blue Devils weren't about to give up.

"We were struggling with our shooting, like we've done all year, so in the second half I just said, 'let's go and pick up the tempo,'" Van Eckoute said. "That's the way this team seems to want to play."

Meghan McGahey led a balanced scoring attack with 13 points. Dinah Zebot had 12 and Caitlin Shapiro added 11. Deanna Raab played an excellent all-around game and scored eight points.

Knights netters nip Cranbrook

By Chuck Klion
Sports Editor

Count on plenty of excitement whenever University Liggett School and Cranbrook-Kingswood clash on a tennis court.

It was no exception last week when the two long-time rivals met.

The meet was tied 3-3 with two matches remaining and the Knights came through with victories in each to beat the Cranes 5-3.

Ann Clark clinched the win with a 7-6, 6-4 victory at No. 3 singles because ULS would have been awarded the win on a tie-breaker if each team had McGahey led the scoring with 12 points and Zebot pulled down 10 rebounds.

The Blue Devils jumped out to a 10-0 lead against Eisenhower, but then the Eagles woke up and rolled to a 55-36 victory.

Zebot played a strong game with 15 points and 10 rebounds. Shapiro had 14 rebounds and seven points.

The Knights had an easier time with Ann Arbor Greenhills, beating the Gryphons 8-0.

"It was especially nice to see Christina Oney and the doubles team of Rachael Tansuche and Alaina Powell win," Wright said. "They've been struggling lately and a victory was good for their confidence."

ULS' only loss of the week came against Birmingham Marian, one of the top Class A teams in the state.

Killen remained unbeaten at No. 1 singles with a 6-4, 6-2 victory and Stephanie Roehl and Allison Ricci recorded a 6-3, 6-1 win at No. 2 doubles.

Fall Remodeling Show Sept. 26-29 at Novi Expo Center

Remodeling has become a hot word for the homeowner of the '90s and the fourth annual Fall Remodeling Show, which runs from Sept. 26-29 at the Novi Expo Center, will give showgoers something to talk about.

"People are remodeling extensively and most of what's being done reflects the trends we will see in houses built during the next decade," said Gilbert "Buzz" Silverman, president of Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA) and president and chief executive officer of the Silverman Companies in Farmington Hills.

The nonprofit BIA is the sponsor of the event.

Special highlights include popular columnists and authors Katie and Gene Hamilton, creators of HOUSENET on America Online and on the World Wide Web, who bring close to 30 years of hands-on expertise to the show to answer the definitive remodeling question, "Should you do it yourself?"

As they have revealed on NBC's "Today Show" and Lifetime Channel's "Our Home," the answer is "not always."

Their daily seminars will teach homeowners what is best left to the pros and what to tackle themselves, how to cope with a "handyman special," finding good contractors and how to work with them.

There are currently 12.7 million full-time home-based businesses in the United States and 12.7 million part-time home businesses. In response to this growing trend, the Home Office Show is a "show within a show," featuring products, services and support for home offices.

Exhibitors include Sam's Club, Four Seasons Sunrooms, Staples-The Office Superstore, Billy Bobs Game Room Furnishings, Better Back Store and Brady Rooms.

Members of the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) will conduct clinics on solid surfacing for home and office by Bonnie Meyer, of Meyer Interiors, and what's new with color for fall by P.K. Fields, of P.K. Fields Interiors.

BIA's Remodelers Council will present seminars on moving to a new home or remodeling an existing home at the Home Remodelers Clinic. The second annual Showcase of Distinctive Homes features some of southeastern Michigan's finest homes. This scattered site open house of over 40 model homes will begin at the show and run through Oct. 13.

Homeowners can learn how the experts do it during demonstrations on decorating, home repair and remodeling given throughout the show.

Working artists in the arts and crafts area will be making baskets, stained glass windows, pencil drawings, ceramic tiles and dried flower arrangements and painting driftwood and signs.

More than 200 exhibitors will show their most interesting and up-to-date products and services for kitchens, baths, home offices, doors, windows, yard/gardens, remodeling, furniture, arts and crafts, decorative accessories, pet accessories, electronics, heating, cooling and appliances.

The Novi Expo Center is located at I-96 and Novi Road. Show hours are from 2 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 26, and Friday, Sept. 27; from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 28; and from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 29.

Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for seniors and $3 for children ages 6 to 12. Children under 6 are admitted free.

Free parking is also available. For more information, call (810) 737-4478.

Master composter course offered by MSU Extension

What is composting? Is it hard to get started? What if I have problems or questions about my compost pile? How will composting benefit my garden, my community and the environment?

Many people don't compost because they don't have the answers to these questions and don't know where to find the answers.

To help residents with this yard waste dilemma, the Macomb MSU Extension has developed a "Master Composter Course." This six-week course will cover the basics of composting, current legislation and local ordinances, compost systems and equipment, compost chemistry, application to soils, uses of finished compost and reducing yard waste prior to composting.

The evening course will be offered every Tuesday, beginning Oct. 8 through Nov. 12, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the Macomb MSU office Assembly Room in the VerKuilen Building, 21885 Dunham Rd., in Clinton Township.

The $30 tuition cost includes a resource notebook and 15 hours of instruction by regional Extension Agents, MSU specialists and other local experts.

For more information on the course or to register, call the Macomb Extension office at (810) 469-6196.

Registration deadline is Friday, Oct. 4.

Free shade trees available

Ten free shade trees will be given to each person who joins the National Arbor Day Foundation during September.

The 10 shade trees are sugar maple, red oak, pin oak, green ash, thornless honeylocust, weeping willow, river birch, tuliptree, silver maple and red maple.

The trees will be shipped post-paid at the right time for planting, between Oct. 1 and Dec. 10. To become a member of the foundation and receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution to Ten Free Shade Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, Neb. 68410.

Decorating to dress up the home for fall

After a season of sun, sand and activity, fall quietly ushers in an entirely new dress code for both body and home. Colors and styles so well-suited to summer sometimes seem garish for this more sophisticated season, so it's a good time to make seasonal changes to your home's decor.

This is the time of year people want to transform their homes into a warm, comfortable haven, according to Melanie Wood, corporate vice president of design for Mannington Mills and president-elect, 1997-98, for the Color Marketing Group, who says homeowners can take inspiration for decorating from nature and prevailing home-design trends.

"Just as you minimize clothes and lifestyle for the warmer seasons, in the fall and winter, you may want to bring richer colors and additional layers to your home decor," Wood says, pointing out that a Mediterranean-influenced palette of yellows, rich browns, reds and greens is popular for home fashions now and ideal for fall.

Design trends also can act as a compass for design preferences and instincts, according to Wood, who has identified the prevailing home design directions as Garden Tranquility, World Traveler, Past Tense and Casual Spirit.

FALL FLAIR

FOR THE LIVING ROOM

For the living room, Wood suggests changing draperies or adding a second top or bottom drape layer to add textural/color dimension and design interest. Draping a hand-woven afghan over an armchair or couch is a cozy, colorful touch, as is adding an area rug over wood or ceramic flooring to provide warm comfort underfoot during the cooler months. Toss cushions covered with a patchwork of tapestry and braided trim can offer colorful drama to upholstered pieces.

If your living-room decor follows a Garden Tranquility look — whether it's a formal garden or closer to a country lane in feeling — there are several "natural" ways to dress it for fall. Change simple summer tiebacks and rods for a more woody look with dried twigs or a more formal look with tasseled cords and gold-finished hardware. Substitute summer's fresh flowers on the coffee table for the romantic look of dried roses or hydrangeas, or a bowl full of earthy pine cones and dried chili peppers, or try the petite elegance of a topiary arrangement. Bring the outdoors in by using old garden gates or fencing sections as wall hangings and room screens.

KITCHEN AND DINING-AREA METAMORPHOSIS

In the kitchen and dining area, a new tablecloth, centerpiece or tabletop look with different china, ceramics and glassware can create a more dressed-up aura. Putting slipcovers or cushions on dining chairs can create a new, warmer look. If your home has a Casual Spirit look of stylish comfort with a touch of whimsy and fun, try changing plain kitchen-cabinetry hardware for pulls resembling faux twigs and flowers or for knobs that encase various colorful herbs and seeds.

Warmer-colored walls or a new flooring can alter a room's ambiance and appearance greatly. Mannington Resilient Floors' wide array of patterns, from faux stone and marble to sophisticated diamonds, leaf and floral motifs, will add a new dimension to any decor, from contemporary to the Past Tense looks of Art Deco or '50s revival. Today's resilient flooring also is offered in a range of colors reflecting nature's bounty, from Straw, Honey, Pine or Grand Canyon to Ice Blue, Oak Brown, Graphite and Southern Rose.

A BATHROOM FOR EVERY SEASON

Changing accessories is a simple, affordable way to dress the bathroom for fall. Replace shell-shaped or pastel-colored soaps with rounds or squares in olive green, sepia or golden yellow. A free-standing sink can be dolled up with a pleated skirt draped dramatically to the floor; add a wall sconce as a unique tissue holder or to display scented candles; refashion with richly hued towels or a fabric shower curtain in place of a plastic one. If World Traveler is your look, use wonderful finds from your travels, like artifacts, an ethnic mask or a leopard-print footstool, to warm up the bath.

How much you change your home's interior may depend upon how much your surroundings change seasonally. Decorate to best suit your personality and your home's unique environment.

Everyday Items offer a decorative alternative

In the past, the trend in home decorating was uniformity and formality. Today, when decorating the home, people are encouraged to use a mixture of styles and periods and to express their own personal style.

"American Country Details" (Clarkson Potter), by Mary Emmerling, provides home decorators with hundreds of country decorating ideas, as well as more than 550 photographs of these ideas.

This country decorating encyclopedia and handbook tells the secrets of good design by focusing on important elements. Complete with a directory of sources, this book helps do-it-yourself decorators turn plain objects and areas of the house into pretty ones.

The author suggests using everyday, all-purpose items that are affordable and easy to find for decorating the home. Bowls, baskets, jugs and jars often are used to hold and store items like mail, eggs, fruit, keys, etc. However, these containers offer a decorative alternative to drawers and bins and can enliven any area of the home.

Assorted bowls, crocks, baskets and buckets placed around the house not only keep things organized, but also enhance the decor of any home.

There are many ways to use baskets and bowls as efficient and unique decorating ideas.

• Cutting boards of all sizes and shapes can be fun to collect; however, they are difficult to store. Try putting these boards into a large wicker basket and leave on a counter top, solving storage problems and making for an interesting arrangement.

• Fill a large basket with pine cones, and set outside the front door to add a new twist to a welcoming entranceway.

• Place a photo inside a basket, hang it on the wall, and use it as a pretty picture frame.

• Wire bottle carriers easily can be converted into a service bar for mixers during parties and get-togethers.

• Place a basket in the bathroom, and fill it with bars of soap, toilet paper or even cotton balls. Filling the container with identical items creates a different effect than filling containers at random. It also lets people know when it is time to restock essential items.

Experiment with items to arrive at an arrangement that is pleasing, comfortable and spontaneous. Decorating is easier than people think, and successful results will be shared with everyone who visits.

As shown from "Mary Emmerling's New Country Collecting" (Clarkson Potter), placing a collection of books or magazines in wicker baskets and on tables makes an interesting arrangement. According to the book, tricks for effectively arranging collections include organizing by size, from the most dominant, or tallest, to the smallest. Varying textures within the same area, like the silver, wood and tin objects on the desk, definitely will catch the eye of all who enter the room.

A Simple Solution for bathroom renovation

In nearly any home-remodeling poll, when asked which room is of paramount importance, homeowners reply with unwavering single-mindedness: the bathroom. Like any other room in the house, the bathroom requires a face-lift now and then.

Yet, upscaling the look of your bathroom does not necessarily mean a major renovation. Replacing a deteriorated bathtub may be a simple solution that will make a big impact. Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath, the originator of the whirlpool bath, suggests the Venicia™ whirlpool bath.

Decorative yet practical, this whirlpool bath is ideal in bathroom remodeling. Measuring 72 inches long by 42 inches wide by 22 inches high, the self-contained and completely pre-plumbed unit offers ease of installation. Built to stand the test of time, the model is made of high-gloss, scratch-resistant acrylic and is reinforced with fiberglass.

Not only functional, the Venicia is also elegant. The bath displays a perfectly symmetrical, oval shape with accent lines. While its simplified design soothes the senses, soft curves, sculpted seating and contoured back-rests keep the bather awash in luxury.

This whirlpool bath features four body jets coupled with four neck jets for all-over hydrotherapy. These patented jets are strategically placed and directionally adjustable to massage hard-to-reach areas in need of special attention. Available in the wide range of colors, the Venicia is sure to enhance any bathroom decor.

For a dealer near you, call Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath toll free at (800) 678-6889.

Warnings Signs of Home-Remodeling Nightmares

There may be early warning signs that your home-improvement project will turn into a big, costly nightmare. "Knowing what questions to ask before you agree to repairs or extensive remodeling will save you from expensive cost overruns and keep you from financial disaster if things go wrong," says consumer advocate and author Bob Easter.

Doing your homework before any contractor is allowed on the site will save you thousands of dollars and keep misunderstandings from happening. The No. 1 mistake all homeowners make is that they enter into the project without a written plan of action or a checklist designed to keep them from making costly mistakes. Certain improvements and repairs actually can increase the value of your home and give you a greater return when you go to sell your property.

The second mistake is that homeowners place too much trust in the contractor. Remodeling can be a slow process, with construction schedules depending on the weather and every subcontractor showing up and finishing on time. Most projects will take twice as long as the best estimate and wind up costing more than the original bid. Being realistic can save a great deal of unnecessary worry and stress.

That's why it is crucial for all parties to take the necessary time to properly plan and agree to the work, materials and cost of the job. Here are some early signs that the project may be in trouble right from the start:

- When you ask for references, the contractor keeps stalling or promises to provide the list at a later date.

- References provided by the contractor seem to be hesitant to talk with you about their experiences. (Double-check the reference number and address in the local phone book.)

- The contractor applies pressure or tells you that the price is good for today only.

- You can't verify the contractor license, insurance or place of business.

- The final plans do not obtain an exact listing of materials to be used, including types and quality of lumber, as well as names and model numbers of appliances.

- The contract calls for funds to be paid in advance before work is completed.

- The contractor says that an independent inspector is not necessary, or the contractor is not willing to pull the proper permits with the local city or county authorities.

In his book, "Home Buying Power: Inside Tips, Tricks, and Trends for Buying the Home of Your Dreams," Easter quickly points out exactly what improvements and amenities buyers will be demanding in the future. Certain improvements will increase the value of the property greatly. Easter has been helping consumers understand home buying, selling and improvement since 1977.

Tips for a great kitchen

To create a functional kitchen with style that outlasts trendy approaches to decor, Paul Radoy, manager of Design Services at Merillat Industries, the nation's largest cabinet manufacturer, offers these suggestions.

- When reviewing your cabinet needs, think beyond the storage space that's behind closed doors to include some points of visual interest.

"Consider specialized storage, like a wine rack, if you like wine," he says. "Or, include some cabinets with glass doors to display kitchen treasures."

Look for storage options that complement your design theme — like open shelving and plate racks for country looks or small stacked drawers reminiscent of Shaker styling.

- Eliminate countertop clutter and keep your small appliances close at hand by installing cabinets with roll-out trays.

- Use cabinet molding and trim options to dress up your new cabinets, to create continuity or to define specific areas within the kitchen. Crown moldings installed at the ceiling and wall line add an elegant, finished look. A strip of molding applied to the bottom edge of a wall cabinet will conceal undercabinet lighting. Radoy also suggests using the same type of edge molding on both the front of the countertop and the top of the backsplash for a finished look.

- Don't forget to include a desk or a planning area near the phone. This doesn't need to be elaborate, Radoy says, but "most people like to have some place to hang keys, drop off the mail and make out the shopping list." If space is tight, consider installing a wall cabinet as the base for a desk. Because a wall cabinet is just 12 inches deep, it can be fitted with a countertop that's a full 24 inches deep. The overhang will allow enough space to tuck a stool underneath and create a compact desk.

- Group tall elements, like pantry and wall-oven cabinets and the refrigerator, in one or two areas to give a sense of visual continuity to the room.

- Speaking of the refrigerator, there's a way to get the look of a built-in refrigerator without the expense of buying one, Radoy points out. He suggests installing panels to match the cabinets on either side of the refrigerator so that it blends in with the rest of the cabinetry.

- Vary the height and placement of wall cabinets to increase storage space and add visual interest. For example, if you have high ceilings, select 30- or 36-inch-high cabinets and then stack 12-inch-high units on top of them to maximize storage possibilities. Installing one or more cabinets that are taller or shorter than the others can create a decorative focal point.

- Coordinate the colors and finishes used on countertops and floors. Radoy points out that they are the largest surfaces in the kitchen, besides the cabinets, and if they aren't compatible with one another or the cabinetry, the room will look cluttered or busy.

- Finally, be sure to plan for plenty of lighting. All kitchens have ambient lighting, the basic light you need to move around the room, but strategically placed additional light sources will enhance the appearance of the room and make it a pleasure in which to work.

Undercabinet lighting brightens work surfaces and cabinets, while accent lighting creates highlights on focal points. Use it inside glass-fronted cabinets to add sparkle to collectibles on the shelves.

For additional ideas on how to get a great kitchen, Merillat offers its Kitchen Ideas Kit, with video and guidebook, for $9.95, call 1-800-624-1250, Ext. 5635.

Wasting Space? Make more room for living

If you're like 60 percent of homeowners today, there's a room in your home that's wasted space. It's the guest room. And, it's ready and waiting to be converted into a room you'll actually use.

According to a recent survey conducted by Futon Association

Double Duty — Whether it's the family cabin retreat or a home office that needs to accommodate overnight guests, futons offer the most comfortable sitting/sleeping solution. (Photo courtesy of John Crum for Futon Association International)

International (FAI), more than 60 percent of homeowners put up overnight visitors in a guest room.

"Unless you're running a hotel, the guest room is open most of the time," explains Kevin J. Knudson, senior interior designer for The Wheeler Group and professional member of the American Society of Interior Designers. "As the prices of homes continue to rise, every square foot not put to good use equates to dollars down the drain. Arranging and designing the rooms in your home to serve double duty helps make the most of your money."

Converting a guest bedroom into useful new space is a great place to start. Here are options to consider:

- Create a home office. If you'd like to work out of your home and just didn't think you had enough space, think again. Modular shelving easily converts an entire wall into a customized work space and storage area. You even can get armoires that decoratively disguise your entire workstation — computer, printer, fax and modem — so you can simply shut the doors when the workday is done. Provide a comfortable, professional sitting area for visiting clients with futon chairs that easily convert to twin beds for overnight guests when needed.

- Create a cozy den. Consider an armoire-style entertainment center that houses a television, stereo and VCR, in addition to hiding the messy clutter of videotapes and CDs. An ottoman with inner storage capabilities is a great place to put your feet up at the end of the day and will hold magazines or your latest sewing project. For the sitting area, select a full-size futon frame. They're available in a variety of upscale styles to suit every decor, including the newest frames that feature upholstered arms. Decorate your new den with pillows, window dressings, tablecloths and other accessories that are customized and coordinated to match the futon mattress cover.

- Create a playroom for the kids. Futon furnishings are not only stylish, they're kid-friendly. If a little grape juice is spilled at snack time, a futon cover is quickly and easily removed for cleaning. A wooden or wicker trunk doubles as a coffee table that provides toy storage when playtime is over. When the kids outgrow the playroom, a funky new futon cover will give the room an updated look and create a comfortable place for teens to watch videos and "hang out" with friends.

See The Improvements First before the work begins

A new set of computer programs allows home owners to see what improvements will look like on their own home before any work begins.

The new programs, part of the Show Me! series, use digitized photographs of the homeowner's actual house in the computer and then overlay them with photographs of decks, siding, doors, trim, kitchen cabinets and shrubbery. The result is a composite photograph that looks exactly as the final home will look.

House before any improvements were done.

The Show Me! series is a smaller version of a popular professional program called VisualPhile from Visual Applications, Kansas City. Contractors and architects use VisualPhile to create genuine photo renderings of projects for their clients, according to John Hudson, product manager for VisualPhile. From the composite pictures, architects and contractors can export their images to a computer-aided design program to create wiring, plumbing and framing details.

The new series allows average homeowners to create their own composite photographs.

"People can create different pictures — one for each idea or possibility — to see what they like. Then, they can show them to contractors. They can use them to help secure bank loans or just dream," Hudson says.

There are five individual programs in the Show Me! series. They are Land-escape, Remodel Exterior, Remodel Interior, Decks, Pools and Hot Tubs, and Build Your Own Home. As their names imply, each one will help redesign a portion of a house.

Computer programs that draw cartoonish pictures of homes, decks and landscaping are not new. However, until now, none

Feeling Crabby? It might be something in the air

Susan always wondered why her husband, who was usually outgoing and friendly, got quiet and withdrawn when they visited her parents. It was getting to the point that holiday visits to her family weren't fun anymore.

When she finally asked him, it turned out there was nothing wrong between him and her parents; it was their cats. They made him so allergic that he didn't feel like his usual talkative self.

Few people recognize it, but poor indoor air quality can be an unsuspected cause of mood changes that put a strain on relationships, according to some allergists and family counselors.

"If you don't know you're allergic to something, or if you don't know there are particulates in the air that are creating some sort of bad feeling, then you can become depressed from allergies, and you may start taking it out on everyone around you," explains a Colorado Springs psychotherapist.

"You can become lethargic, tired, cranky and not even make the connection that it is the poor air quality that is causing the problem," she says.

Professionals who are concerned with the psychological effects of indoor air pollution say the problem is greater today, because people are spending more time in closed environments where pollutants can build up and the general level of stress in society is getting higher.

The best way to reduce the stress is to reduce the causes, according to such experts as the American Lung Association. Among the steps that are frequently recommended are:

- Don't allow smoking, or restrict smoking to a limited, well-ventilated area.

- Keep pets off of furniture where guests may sit, and never allow them in guest bedrooms. Pet dander can linger for as long as a year on furniture or bedding.

- Maintain adequate ventilation. One study found allergens were 200 percent higher in a tightly closed, superinsulated home than in a house with an adequate rate of ventilation. Many homes now have whole-house fresh-air exchangers that guarantee adequate fresh air at all times. A fresh-air exchanger also saves energy, because it warms the incoming air in the winter and cools it in the summer.

- Have a high-efficiency, whole-house air cleaner installed on your central heating and cooling system to remove irritating particulates from the air throughout the house.

Unlike ordinary furnace filters, high-efficiency air cleaners remove up to 98 percent of airborne irritants, including pollen and mold spores, as well as microscopic particles so small they go right through fiberglass or polyester panel-type filters. Space-Gard®, the leading brand of media air cleaner, has more than 73 square feet of high-technology fibers in its pleated media that are specially engineered to trap microscopic pollutants. That is the equivalent of 26 20-by-20 1-inch filters.

For free information about how high-efficiency, whole-house air cleaners and fresh-air exchangers can help you reduce indoor air pollution, call the Consumer Information Department at Research Products Corp., 1-800-545-2219. Ask for the free brochures "Air Cleaners for Allergy Relief" and "Facts About Fresh Air Exchangers."

Poor indoor air quality can cause mental stress in addition to allergies and other breathing problems, according to some allergists and family counselors. A whole-house, high-efficiency air cleaner, like Space-Gard®, helps remove even unseen microscopic irritants from the air throughout the home.

were able to do it with actual photographs. One of the biggest problems for homeowners faced with a building or remodeling project is visualizing what the final work will look like.

A couple can put their own house into the computer using a scanner, local photo stores, office service centers or directly through Visual Applications. Once in the library, they can modify any part of the house.

The programs come with a library of hundreds of photographs of houses, windows, stairs, roofs, porches, skylights, trees, driveways, etc. Using easy-to-use point-and-click tools, any part of the existing home image can be made over with a new image. It even allows you to take portions of one home and combine them with another.

The Build Your Own Home program comes with black-and-white drawings of homes that people see in home plan books. The program lets you bring the drawing to life by covering it with photos of real building materials and creating a composite photo. There is also a feature that keeps track of the cost of all your improvements.

Each Show Me! title sells for about $50. They're available at select Home Depot stores and other retailers. They also can be ordered by calling 1-800-829-3369 or through the Internet at <http://www.showoff.com>. A demonstration can be viewed on the Web site.
