The Vernier overpass on I-94, above, as well as the Cadieux and Conner overpasses are slated for replacement this year. Expect delays!

I-94 overpass hassle to continue in 2002

By Jason Sweeney
Staff Writer

Just when it seemed that people would be able to return to normal driving patterns through St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods and the Pointes, MDOT unveiled their list of projects to kick off 2002.

The Conner, Cadieux and Vernier overpass bridges will all be under construction by the second week of February.

"There are four major vehicular bridges left," said MDOT spokesman Rob Morosi of the road project ambitiously begun last spring to refurbish 33 overpasses.

"We're going to get those done this year."

That forward thinking, however, means major traffic disruption.

Vernier, the northernmost of the three targeted bridges, is already under construction.

The southern (east-bound) bridge is nearly shut down and left turns are no longer allowed to north-bound Harper or eastbound I-94.

Work will start on the Conner bridge Jan. 30. The northern bridge (traffic toward City airport) will be completely closed, diverting traffic to one lane in each direction.

The biggest challenge, Morosi said, will be at Cadieux.

The Cadieux overpass is already a traffic nightmare, said Morosi, pointing out the congestion during an average rush hour.

Now, Morosi said, "take the west half of the bridge and close it."

Travel on Cadieux will be limited to one lane in each direction and there will be no left-hand turn in either direction onto I-94.

Morosi's advice on handling the construction at Cadieux: "Avoid it altogether, because it already is a heavy traffic area."

"People will need to use Moross or Outer Drive to access the freeway," he said.

Morosi said that the winter showing signs of remaining mild played a part in the decision to proceed.

He also said it is a large part of the reason the $40 million bridge and resurfacing project is nearly on schedule.

The three bridges should be complete around the fourth of July, signaling the start of the last leg of the project, the Moross bridges.

While all the deadlines and completion dates are tentative, Morosi promised that workers will be at the three sites on a regular schedule.

"Why demolish (the bridges) if we aren't going to be working?" Morosi asked.

He explained that most the substructure, support and footings can be completed in cold weather so paving can begin in April or sooner if the weather breaks.

Of course, the bridge construction and diversion of traffic wouldn't be complete without freeway closures.

The next two closures are tentatively set for Friday, Feb. 1, at 10 p.m. to Monday, Feb. 4, at 5 a.m. and Feb. 8 to 11. The closures will be used for the demolition of the first half of the bridges.

113 days until opening day

In less than five months from now, the City of Grosse Pointe's Neff Park bath house is expected to look like this computer-enhanced drawing. The new bath house is constructed to reflect the style of the park's pavilion and front gatehouse. Last week, trusses were delivered and the city council approved brick, roofing and wood finishes. When finished, the new bath house will feature a family changing area.

Water main will be a pain in the Woods

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

The public has downed its first big gulp of a water main project that could be phased in over four years on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods.

City officials admit construction, which will stretch 2.1 miles on the southbound curb lane of Mack from Elys Drive to Allard, will disrupt traffic and commerce along the city's entire commercial strip.

Ignoring or delaying the work, however, "might be a disaster," said William Westrick, a consulting engineer retained by the Woods.

The water main, most of which was laid 75 years ago, has been patched 152 times.

"We would rather be preventive with planned replacement than emergency replacement," said Mayor Robert Novitske. "It's only going to get worse."

Westrick said construction strategies range from doing the job all at once over a one-year period, to breaking work into four phases over four years.

Each phase would focus on an individual stretch of Mack and last from four to six months.

Contrary to regular municipal bidding practices, the winning contractor will be chosen for reasons beyond submitting a low price.

Criteria will include who can "get in and out the fastest," Westrick said. "Our goal is to cut down the number of days we're in front of a business."

The old water main may be deteriorating, but replacement plans stuck in the craw of many business owners who attended an informal work session this week. The public hearing was the first of three to be held this year by the city's Mayor's Mack Avenue Study Committee.

"This (project) is not set in stone," said committee chair Eric Steiner, who is also a Woods council member. "This (meeting) is just an idea of how we're going to approach this."

City officials had hoped for a crowd and they got it. About 150 people jammed the Woods council chambers. Some sat on extra chairs lining the aisle.

Others stood against the walls. The crowd spilled into the hallway.

Nighttime construction would be "less disruptive," Westrick said, "but would take longer."

The idea appealed to many business owners concerned about maintaining a customer base.

Yet it worried resident Sean Cleland. He said the idea of noisy construction taking place all night was "unbelievable."

Westrick said limiting work to evening hours was impractical.

"You have to give the contractor eight hours to be efficient," he said.

Dr. Blake Hanrahan, owner of Joe's Pizzeria, thought work should be delayed for three years until small business owners recover from the economic downturn.

David Wagensommer of the Edwin Paul Spa asked who was going to pay for broken windows and cracked walls caused when heavy-duty construction equipment starts breaking ground.

Questions included:

• Why can't the water main be moved to the alley behind Mack? This would require building owners to redo their plumbing, Westrick said.

• Can the water main be located under the median? If so, all lanes of Mack could remain open during construction. No, said Steiner. According to Detroit Edison representatives, Steiner said, space under the median is taken by an electrical conduit enclosed in a concrete barrier 5 to 6-1/2 feet wide.

• Will the contractor face financial penalties for falling behind schedule?

Farms worries about high water

Park makes land offer for public library

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A new branch library is a small step closer to being built in Grosse Pointe Park.

City officials this week formalized their offer to the Grosse Pointe Library Board for the sale of property on which library officials have said they want to build a new branch. The property, on Lakepointe a hundred feet off Jefferson, is adjacent to the city hall complex.

Library board president John Bruce said news of the Park's $530,000 offer, which the board hadn't seen yet, "makes me feel positive" that a new library might be at hand.

"We've offered them a reasonable contract," said Mayor Palmer Heenan. "That property is widely available for multiple uses. We've had many inquiries for other uses, but a library facility near our municipal center is the best use for the whole community."

Bruce said, "For both the Park and library, the highest motivation ought to be what's best for the taxpayers."

If the board accepts the offer, Bruce added, "We could put a shovel in the ground next year or in 18 months."

For nearly 18 months, library officials have been looking for a place to build a replacement for the Park Branch, which since the 1930s has occupied a wing of Pierce Middle School on Kercheval.

A new library is expected to cost $4 million and contain at least 12,000 square feet. Library officials have said the community needs a new, modern branch containing more personal computers and other tools which are the hallmark of a modern facility.

The proposed branch would be built on the back half of land used formerly as a car dealership. Park officials bought the dealership property and buildings about two years ago. The library would occupy the rear portion of the dealership site, a former parking lot. The Park hopes to sell the showroom and garage for an unspecified project.

"We hope within the next year to have a better picture (of what to do with the remaining property)," said Councilman Samuel Nouhan. "It will be consistent with the city campus atmosphere."

Two years ago, concept drawings for the dealership site called for the city to build brick townhouses. The project has been scrapped.

"With the proposed sale of half the lot for library purposes, there's not enough land to make (townhouses) practical," said Dale Krajniak, the Park city manager.

According to the sale offer, Park officials will be able to buy back the property in 20 years if the library abandons the site.

"The property is next to the city campus," Nouhan said. "We want to make sure we exert control over its usage if it is no longer operated as a library."

"This is long-term, a significant investment," Bruce said. "We don't intend to leave."

No complaints after ice units wrapped

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A six-pack of compressors at a local skating rink have reportedly been put on ice.

The noisy units, which operate automatically to freeze the rink at Patterson Park in Grosse Pointe Park, have been wrapped with additional sound insulation, according to Dale Krajniak, the Park city manager.

In addition, he said a technician reconfigured the compressors to funnel exhaust straight up in the air instead of toward an adjacent storage building. The technician suspected exhaust noise had been magnified by echoing off the building's brick wall.

The compressors prompted complaints last year from neighbors who said the machinery made too much noise. A resident whose backyard abuts the park said the six compressors disrupted neighborhood peace and quiet when they activated late at night.

There have been no noise complaints since the work has been completed, Krajniak said. He said the compressors now operate at noise levels comparable to new units costing a total of $200,000.

Yes, said Westrick. The contractor will need a performance bond.

One southbound lane will remain open during construction except in rare instances when crews replace pipe that crosses to the median, according to Westrick. On those occasions, he said, the south side of the street would close for a day at a time.

He said the project will be less disruptive than the major sewer work taking place on Jefferson in St. Clair Shores. The latter project required digging a 27-foot-deep trench. On Mack, workers will dig nine feet.

Parking remained a concern for Woods merchants. Suggestions included blocking side streets near Mack to provide temporary parking lots.

No matter how smoothly construction may go, more disruption will follow. Westrick said Wayne County officials had planned to resurface Mack during 2004-05. Because of the water main replacement, they will delay work until 2007.

The study committee will meet June 10, and Sept. 23 at Woods city hall.

Engler's State of State gets high marks for style

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

LANSING — Republicans liked the governor's speech and the way he gave it.

Democrats liked the tone but said it lacked substance.

Reactions to Gov. John Engler's State of the State address last week had already settled along party lines before he stepped off the podium and left the packed chambers of the Michigan House of Representatives.

Engler's GOP allies rallied behind his optimistic forecast and stalwart determination to keep the state attractive for commercial investment. Democrats said the three-term governor, who must step down this year because of term limits, avoided tough subjects like the budget deficit that developed under his watch.

Yet, within minutes of the speech concluding, and as state lawmakers and high officials mingled on the House floor and in the spacious hallways of the Capitol building, one opinion held firm.

Engler's final major address of his more than 30 years in Lansing resonated through the Capitol as the finest State of the State speech in his 12 years as governor.

Reviews are in

"I thought it was terrific," said Rep. Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe Park.

"He laid out a bold vision and some challenges for future governors and legislators, particularly as regards the auto industry," said Secretary of State Candice Miller, a St. Clair Shores resident.

"He gave a very emotional farewell to his friends and the colleagues he's served with for 31 years," said Jennifer Granholm, attorney general and candidate for the Democratic nomination to succeed Engler. "It was a very nice ending, a very good swan song."

"It was very well done," said Maura Corrigan, chief justice of the Michigan Supreme Court. In the speech, Engler thanked Corrigan, a Park resident, for helping establish a statewide computer system dealing with court matters.

Gov. John Engler received high marks for his emotional State of the State address.

"Maura Corrigan was invaluable in making the new system a reality and in averting expensive federal penalties," Engler said.

Century of progress

The governor's reference to computers was among many regarding the importance of new technologies must play in Michigan's new century of progress.

"Michigan cannot sit back and assume that being home to the auto industry is our birthright," Engler said.

"That's true," said Miller, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress. "We think it will always be here. If we're not careful, we could have a situation here."

Engler said, "Our generation faces a new century with new challenges — but what an opportunity for our generation."

Corrigan said, "The governor set a mission of leadership for the future of Michigan that really is forward-looking."

Miller said the governor's focus on new technologies — such as the fuel cell, clean-burning diesel engine and an isotope accelerator (a tool for nuclear research that he wants federal officials to establish at Michigan State University) — were "high points of the speech."

If Miller wins her congressional bid, she pledged to help win the $1 billion accelerator.

"That would have such an impact on Michigan," she said.

"I love technology and the notion of Michigan being a leader in the technology realm," Granholm said. "All of that is phenomenal. I was a bit surprised, however, that he didn't address the budget deficit."

Budget deficit

State officials are predicting a $1.4 billion budget deficit. Engler will present his budget next month.

"We have to struggle with some budget decisions," Richner said. "But we're going to leave it a lot stronger than it was."

Rep. Andrew Richner, R — Grosse Pointe Park, said Gov. Gov. John Engler's final State of the State address was "terrific." Richner said the legislature this term will grapple with budget deficits, "but we're going to leave (Michigan) a lot stronger than it was."

Mark Brewer, head of the Michigan Democratic Party, said, "(The speech) was empty on substance. The state has serious problems of unemployment, deficits and the bonds are charged to the max. The state's in worst shape than when John Engler took it over. Tonight, he didn't tell anyone how he intends to fix it."

"We have a triple-A bond rating for the first time in years," Richner said. "Our economy is stronger today in a downturn that it has ever been in a downturn. Our unemployment is roughly at the national average. In the past it would be 3 percent higher at least."

He added, "You can't make this recession partisan. We don't control terrorist bombings in New York. We don't control business cycles. But our economy is a lot better than it would have been had we not made necessary changes — lowering our tax burden on working families, and creating an atmosphere for job providers to create jobs and put people back to work."

Moving forward

Engler said if Michigan doesn't attract new investment, "we risk becoming as irrelevant as the horse and buggy."

Richner said, "Our job in state government is to make sure we eliminate obstacles to our job providers and economy. We've been largely successful removing impediments to let job providers create jobs and keep our economy moving forward."

"We have jobs coming into the state. We're a high-tech state. That wasn't true a few years ago. Yes, we've hit a bump in the road, but we're going to overcome that because our economy is much stronger overall than it was when we took over state government."

Engler and the Republicans have been criticized for supporting tax cuts in the face of a deficit.

"The last resort should be raising taxes in a slow economy," Richner said. "It exacerbates the problem. It increases the cost to businesses who are already struggling. Businesses are laying people off, and we're going to hit them with a higher tax? I don't think so."

Regarding people who have lost their jobs, Richner said, "We need to help the people who are laid off. We're going to raise unemployment benefits. But we can't ignore people who are employed. We have to make sure they get tax cuts and reduce the burden on them."

Budget priorities

Dealing with a budget crunch, Granholm said, "is all about priorities: the economy, health care, education, and the environment. We have to create vibrant urban centers. That flows right into the economy message. I didn't hear any of that tonight."

Doug Howard, director of the state Family Independence Agency, said the recession began before the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

"We started to see Food Stamp caseloads inch up slightly at the end of 2000, which is a precursor to the slowing of the economy," Howard said.

Yet, like Richner, Howard said things could be worse.

"Our welfare caseload is two-thirds of where it was at its high in the 1980s," he said. "While the unemployment rate has gone up, it's still better than 10 percentage points from its high. That's a direct result of having a more diversified economy, better economic development policies and better jobs. Sure, the economy has gotten tough, but it would have been worse without the kind of policies we've had in place the last decade that have diversified the economy, strengthened the job market and helped employers keep people at work."

Richner said, "The best form of welfare is a job."

Water, sewerage rates may double

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

As in other Detroit metropolitan area communities, the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods are likely to see double-digit increases in their water and sewerage bills in September.

The Detroit Water and Sewerage Department's Board of Water Commissioners approved rate increases on Wednesday, Jan. 23.

If the rates are approved by the Detroit City Council on Thursday, Feb. 7, the Pointes and Harper Woods will see a 12 to 13 percent increase in water and an 11 to 16 percent increase in sewerage bills.

Water rate increases in the Pointes and Harper Woods range from $0.64 per 1,000 cubic feet in Grosse Pointe Woods to $1.33 per 1,000 cubic feet in Grosse Pointe Shores.

Sewerage rate increases range from $0.86 per 1,000 cubic feet in Grosse Pointe Park to $2.18 per 1,000 cubic feet in the City of Grosse Pointe.

The rate increase does not include additional administrative charges municipalities or consortiums pass along to individual customers.

The rate increase is the third of an anticipated five-to-six-year series of increases to fund a number of ongoing capital improvement projects in both the water supply and sewerage disposal systems. Major projects include a new $275 million water plant under construction at Water Works Park, implementation of a program management system at the waste water treatment plant estimated at $500 million and ongoing $1.3 billion combined sewer overflow project.

Heightened security measures since Sept. 11 will also be covered by the rate increases. "We're facing a nationwide problem," said Detroit Water and Sewerage Department Interim Deputy Director Gary Fujita. "In the early '70s and '80s, utilities replaced or expanded their infrastructure through the federal grant program. Up to 80 percent of these projects were paid for with federal dollars. Without the federal grant program, utilities are now faced with replacing infrastructure with local funds."

Most of the rate increases in the Pointes and Harper Woods fall below the average hikes in other communities. Detroit will see an increase of 13.5 percent and the suburbs will see an average increase of 15.2 percent.

Local administrators say they don't like passing the costs along, but they're necessary.

"I can't say anything over 10 percent surprises anyone," said City of Grosse Pointe Assistant City Manager Brian Vick.

"They say this is going to go on for a couple more years to pay for upgrades," said Grosse Pointe Shores Village Superintendent Mike Kenyon. "Unfortunately, it's going to be the suburbs paying for the upgrades."

Shores' ongoing war over water

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Shores has been unsuccessfully battling its water rates with the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department for the past 10 years and the problem has grown exponentially with recent double-digit rate increases.

"This goes back to the formula developed for setting rates 16 years ago," said Shores Village Superintendent Mike Kenyon. "Our peaking factors, which they base our rates on, are twice as high as the Woods and the Park."

This coming summer, the Shores may be paying as much as $10.99 per 1,000 cubic foot of water from the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department. The rate is $3.55 more per 1,000 cubic feet of water than will be charged to Grosse Pointe Park and more than double than will be charged to Grosse Pointe Woods, which will be charged $5.03 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Local fifth-grader publishes weekly newspaper

By Margie Reins Smith
Assistant Editor

The January 23 issue of The Star Press covered international, national and local news: "Volcano in the Congo" was the lead story (with appropriate volcanic-looking headline font), followed by "Is Bin Laden dead?" and "Jacobson's is bankrupt."

A couple of front-page teasers referred readers to stories about a helicopter crash in northern Afghanistan and the Red Cross's assessment of the treatment of Taliban prisoners.

Sports and entertainment pages covered news of the upcoming Super Bowl and Detroit's annual Auto Show. The publication also included a questionnaire, an excerpt from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s "I have a dream" speech, a joke and a masthead with the names of The Star Press's writers and managers — as well as a word-count: 1,732.

The CEO of the weekly publication is John Sullivan, 10, a student at Maire Elementary School. With the exception of a two-week Christmas break, Sullivan hasn't missed a week since he began publishing on April 13, 2001. The paper comes out on Wednesdays.

"I just write about stuff that sounds interesting on the news," he said. He condenses and rewrites most stories, takes pictures with a digital camera or downloads photos from the Web. He writes articles about neighborhood news — the opossum issue, for example, the fire at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club and information about a block party. He has created word search puzzles, using the names of family members; he makes up his own mazes and crossword puzzles; he retells jokes.

"He goes on-line for news, listens to CNN and reads the Grosse Pointe News and the Detroit newspapers," said his mother, Sue Sullivan of Grosse Pointe Park. "He also uses the Guinness Book of World Records."

"I pay no attention. I don't proofread or edit it. It's all his," she said, with visible pride.

John Sullivan, 10, publishes a weekly newspaper. He writes the stories and lay out the pages on his family's computer, they makes copies for his 31 subscribers. The paper is also available on line.

errors creep in, in spite of Spellcheck."

John deals with the paper's inevitable mistakes as all responsible newspapers do — by publishing corrections in the next edition.

His corrections are called "Paper Bloopers." After the first few weeks, he decided to take the bloopers off the front page and put them on an inside page. "They took up too much room," he said.

"I also changed the size of the paper and I changed the order so that important stories are on the front page," he said.

The Star Press has 31 subscribers — neighbors, teachers, his principal, students, cousins and his grandparents. He prints the paper on his computer, then makes copies at a local copy center. "Now he wants his own copier," his mother said, with a smile.

Sullivan's paper usually runs about four pages, including:

- A distillation of international and national news: "Many countries are trying to get the Taliban to surrender their last strong-hold, Kandahar. The US is not part of this surrender..."

- Important national news: "Thomas Junta was found guilty Friday of involuntary manslaughter because he beat Michael Costin to death at a hockey game their sons were attending in July 2000..."

- Sports: "Star running back TJ Duckett is leaving Michigan State University to go pro after leading the Spartans to winning the Scillicon Valley Football Classic in his junior season..."

- A masthead: "Authors John Sullivan, Nick Jost, Vince Muniga, Anne Sullivan, Ellen Muniga, Chris Hancock, Austen Brooks, Lars Hamre, Managers Jack Sullivan, Nick Jost, Asst. manager Vince Muniga. Thanks to Microsoft Works Word Processor, www.msnbc.com."

Spokesman Chris Hancock. Chairmen of the Board Austen Brooks. Word count This paper contains 1362 words."

Occasional categories include:

- Entertainment: "Cats and Dogs has now come out on home video... In 'Cats and Dogs,' the cats want to steal a potion that will keep humans not allergic to dogs and reverse it so nobody would keep dogs as pets but instead keep the cats as pets."

- A fun page: "All the kids at a school were staying for lunch, and at the beginning of the line there was a table with many apples on it. A sign said 'Take only one — God is watching you. So all the kids took only one. At the end of the line there was a table with many cookies on it. A kid wrote on a piece of paper, 'Take as many as you want — God is watching the apples.'"

- A Website question: "Every month the Star Press will publish a different question on their website. Every week the amount of votes that each question gets will be in the paper..."

Questions range from "Who is your favorite Red Wing?" and "What is your favorite holiday?" to "How should Sergei Fedorov be punished because he was caught driving drunk?"

(Seventy-one percent of Sullivan's readers said Fedorov should be treated like everyone else.)

- Original poetry, a calendar of events, lists of birthdays, photos of local events, classified ads (10 cents for 50 words or less; 25 cents for a half-page; $1.50 for a full page); a history question; and a Did You Know? tidbit: "Did you know on January 11, 1964 the surgeon general issued its first non-smoking warning?"

- Those pesky bloopers: "This was probably the funniest mistake we made, and will ever make... when correcting John Sullivan about his quote, we forgot some quotation marks!"

The Star Press is Sullivan's second newspaper publishing venture.

"He started writing one called the Star News when he was 9," Sue Sullivan said. "He put out about a dozen issues. His older sisters did the same thing when they were younger. "But John has followed through. "John has always loved office supplies," she said. "He loves to go to Staples and he loves folders and files and paper and computers."

When he was 7, his grandparents, Larry and Carrie Sullivan of Grosse Pointe Woods, surprised him with eight shares of Staples stock as a First Communion gift.

"I have always liked playing on the computer," Sullivan said. When I grow up I want to do something that includes computers and calculators."

His favorite subject is math. He plays baseball and football and he has earned the rank of sharpshooter Bar IV in junior small-bore rifle shooting. He's working toward the rank of expert marksman.

He also likes woodworking with his grandfather, Larry Sullivan. Together, they make Christmas gifts: wood ornaments and wreaths, candle holders, fireplace match holders and more.

Sullivan welcomes story suggestions for The Star Press as well as comments on past stories.

"I have a drop box in my locker and kids give me ideas," he said. "I get e-mail ideas too. I try my best to tell people about what's happening."

Sullivan doesn't charge for his paper. His parents won't let him. But he has 31 loyal subscribers. He accepts donations, which generally come from both sets of grandparents, the Sullivans and Suzanne and Jack Howard of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Expenses include the cost of making copies and the 25 cents an article that he pays to his reporters.

The only criticism he hears about his publication, Sullivan said, is the need for better proofreading.

A neighbor, Heidi Denler, agreed to proofread for free and he's thinking about accepting her offer.

"It's all his," said Sue Sullivan. "We don't have anything to do with this. I drive him to Staples, that's all."

To subscribe to The Star Press or to suggest a story, e-mail Sullivan at JSullivanStarPress@yahoo.com. The paper's Website is <http://members.tripod.com/tbestarpress>.

The Star Press covers international, national and local news. CEO John Sullivan also includes puzzles, mazes, jokes and sports news. He pays writers 25 cents a story.

Don't your employees deserve the security and peace-of-mind of Wayne County's HealthChoice?

With over 2,000 businesses and more than 21,000 members, Wayne County's HealthChoice is the fastest-growing health-care coverage in Michigan.

Not only because of its unmatched affordability - you and your employee each pay just $43 a month* - but because of the exceptional quality of care HealthChoice provides.

"For the cost, we couldn't believe the coverage could be this good," said Juan Haygood, owner of Pete's True Value Hardware. "But it's true: HealthChoice is everything it says it is, and more."

Including coverage for doctor's visits, emergencies, hospitalization, even prescription benefits. From a choice of six excellent provider networks.

For you, the Wayne County business owner, that means attracting better employees and retaining your best workers. For your employees and their families, it's peace-of-mind, security, not having to worry about being able to afford health care when needed.

And if your business isn't in Wayne County... maybe it should be.

G.P. picture history book a top seller

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A couple of local history buffs never dreamed their hobby would land them on the best seller list.

But the authors of "Grosse Pointe: 1880-1930" have penned the most popular book of 2001 in a series of local histories published by Arcadia Press.

"We're amazed it's taken off as much as it has," said Suzy Berschback, who co-authored the book with fellow Grosse Pointe Farms resident Madeleine Socia.

"It's gratifying to see so many people in Grosse Pointe are as interested in our community's terrific history as Suzy and I are," Socia said.

Released last spring, the book moved swiftly through three printings to sell nearly 4,000 copies in Arcadia's "Images of America" series. Most of the publisher's titles sell less than 2,000 copies. "A fourth printing is just a matter of time," said Holly Zemstra, an Arcadia publicist.

Socia and Berschback compiled the community's photographic history with the cooperation of longtime residents. They also dug through archives of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, to which they belong.

The authors have pledged a portion of the book's proceeds to the historical society.

"The historical society has been actively promoting the publication. We appreciate that," Berschback said.

The authors' marketing skills have earned rave reviews from booksellers.

"The authors did a book signing at Borders several months ago," said Kate Cherry, a manager of Borders Books in the Village. "They arrived in period costumes and were absolutely charming. They had a great turnout."

Similar reports came from the Barnes & Noble store at Mack and Moross.

"We make a pretty good promotion team," Berschback said. "We're out there having fun."

Zemstra said, "The authors know their community. The more active they are, the more it helps."

The book even held its own among the beef jerky display and lottery machines near the checkout counter of Jerry's Club Party Store in the Farms. All proceeds from sales at Jerry's go to the historical society, Socia said.

"I sold quite a bit of them during the holidays," said manager Rose Peyrero. "I still have them on the counter." Readers have urged Berschback and Socia to write a second volume.

"We're not going to rule out the possibility," Berschback said. "For now, both Madeleine and I have projects we're happy working on."

Socia works for the Grosse Pointe News. Berschback is writing an illustrated children's book aimed at 9- to 13-year-olds.

"While researching the history book," Berschback said, "we came across old legends of Grosse Pointe — haunted histories, werewolves and goblins. They were fun to read to my kids."

Socia is helping with the book, tentatively titled "Tales of Old Grosse Pointe." They are looking for a publisher.

Arcadia publishes about 360 books per year. The company specializes in regional topics, including ski jumping in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, the history of the Detroit Athletic Club and, in a strong seller released late last year, the old Detroit railroad station near Tiger Stadium.

"We have to take our chances," Zemstra said. "The Grosse Pointe book" turned out fantastic. It's one of the ones that really worked out well. We'd be up for another volume."

Business owners and residents turned out en masse Monday night to learn how the water main replacement project along Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods will affect them.

And affect them it will. The 2.1-mile, $6 million undertaking will take four years to complete. The city hopes to do the work in phases so as not to disrupt all Mack businesses simultaneously.

Nevertheless, business owners are concerned, and they should be.

They do not have to go far to learn the dire cost to businesses — as in lost business — due to a project of this size. Jefferson businesses in St. Clair Shores are still impacted by the mammoth project there. And not too many years ago, Little Mack businesses suffered the same disruptions. And before that it was along Harper Avenue.

We recall stories of businesses not able to survive due to the loss of business the road and pipeline projects caused.

Certainly we do not wish that fate on our many local businesses on Mack in the Woods. It was good to see the many business owners turn out Monday night to let their concerns be known to city officials.

Of course, businesses aren't the only ones to be affected. Shoppers and residents will face hardships as well.

We have all driven down Mack and experienced heavy congestion on a normal day. Can you imagine what it will be like with only one lane for southbound traffic? If you've ever encountered an accident on Mack and sat through four lights, you get the picture.

Jets Pizza owner Dr. Blake Hanrahan suggested we wait a few years for the economy to improve before taking on the project. But that seems like putting off a much-needed surgery. Not a good idea.

As Mayor Robert Novitke said of delaying the water main replacement, "It's only going to get worse."

Woods engineering consultant William Westrick explained that the water main was put in place 75 years ago and has been repaired an average of twice a year since then — 152 times.

Ignoring or delaying replacement may be more than a mistake; it "might be a disaster," Westrick said.

Since delaying the project is not an option, how about doing it at night? That would only make it take longer and cost more. Besides, how would you like all-night construction if you lived only a house or two off Mack?

Moving the water main to the median can't be done because of a major utilities conduit running under the grassy knolls.

The alley can't be used because the business owners would then be stuck with rerouting their plumbing.

We have to face it; the water main must be replaced along its current route and it won't be pretty.

We can only hope and pray Woods officials diligently manage the project and that the contractors get in and out as quickly as possible.

We also have to remind ourselves to be patient. Our inconvenience can't be helped. We also must continue to patronize our Mack Avenue merchants as we always have — even if they will be harder to get to.

But despite all our patience it will be trying. Nerves will be rawer than the meat in Alexander & Polen's window — which, but the way, is on Mack in the Woods.

Two dogs' tales

Once upon a time there was a beautiful woman who loved animals. She had lived on a farm way out in the country for over 20 years. When she sold her farm and moved into her new home in a suburban neighborhood, she had to sell her horses and many of the other farm animals.

She brought her two dogs, a pair of Jack Russell terriers, with her to her new home, and there they lived in splendid harmony for well over a decade.

True to the cycles of life, the dogs grew old and eventually died, and the lovely woman was bereft and lonely. She had been around animals all of her life and missed the companionship, unconditional love and daily exercise, just to mention just a few of the benefits of animal ownership.

One day the woman heard there was a Jack Russell named Patches in need of a home. The animal was 2 years old, housebroken and in need of a loving mom. An interview was set up and it was a match. The woman took Patches home that very day. Hooray!

What a bond these two have made. They go everywhere together and take long walks each day. One day last fall, the woman started muttering to her friends that perhaps it might be a good idea if Patches had a friend. After all, she had always had two dogs and they were great company for each other.

Patches had established herself as the dominant doggie of the domain after a year with her new owner. Friends knew it was only a matter of time. The woman is very specific about what she wants in an animal and knowing with whom she is dealing.

She contacted several rescue shelters and various adoption agencies and was eventually connected with a woman who had found a dog on the freeway, lying next to her dead canine companion. When the dog was still there two hours later, the woman brought her home to foster her and attempt to locate her owner.

With the aid of the Internet, the two animal lovers found each other and arranged a meeting, which would of course include Patches, who would have the final say over the plan.

Each woman drove to a mutually agreed spot an hour between them. The two dogs met and the sniffing, circling and exploring began. But there was no serious snarling, no biting, just a couple of dogs checking each other out on a Sunday afternoon.

That day Freeway joined Patches at her new home in Grosse Pointe and if the story ends as it is supposed to, it'll be happily ever after.

Applauds locks

To the Editor:

I would like to salute the members of the Grosse Pointe Park Department of Public Safety for their decision to distribute gun locks to Park residents and for encouraging residents to turn in weapons and ammunition.

Because of the increased number of people carrying weapons as permitted by the recently liberalized CCW law, a greater number of guns are being carried in purses, coat pockets, briefcases and computer bags or are stored in car glove boxes. Consequently handguns are more accessible to curious children and more available to be stolen and resold to a black-market purchaser who is not able to pass a background check.

Responsible gun owners should place a gun lock on their gun when they return home in order to protect the other members of their household.

Parents should ASK (Asking Saves Kids) their neighbors if they have guns in the home and whether they are safely stored before allowing their children over to play.

Gun owners and collectors should store their guns in a gun safe in order to prevent their guns from being stolen during a home burglary as happened recently in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The primary way to keep the bad guys from getting guns is to stop the flow of guns into the black-market.

Our police officers deserve our cooperation and support. The FBI reports that the number of police officers killed on duty in the United States in 2000 increased by 21 percent over 1999 (Associated Press, Nov. 26, 2001). According to the report, 51 law-enforcement officers were killed on duty in 2000, compared with 42 in 1999. Of the 51 officers killed, handguns accounted for 33 of the murders, rifles for 10 and shotguns for four.

The best way to ensure that your gun is not used to commit a murder, a teen suicide, or the accidental death of a child, is to lock it up and practice safe storage.

Gun owners may not yet be legally obligated to ensure that their guns do not cause unintended harm, but they are certainly morally obligated to each one of us.

Water stress

To the Editor:

I'd like to congratulate you on your Guest Opinion column, printed in the Grosse Pointe News Jan. 3 issue by Stella Thomas, "What is the future of water?"

I found it very interesting and educational. I had not thought of the effects of water shortages on European and African nations.

We are very fortunate in America to have the resources to purify our water systems. Many of our lakes and rivers are polluted, which necessitates us to drink bottled water.

More articles on this subject are needed to preserve our water supply and to protect us from health-associated problems.

School funding

To the Editor:

With an aging population in Grosse Pointe Farms, we are being asked to support yet another budget proposal. We have just all received the increase for WCCC.

It seems to me we will be increasing debt for our future generations and putting a financial burden on our senior citizens.

The Farms is an affluent community with many ways to raise money. Community finances seem to be in good shape, but if we continually support more specialized millages and/or budget issues, we will soon deplete our resources.

Meet swimmers' needs

To the Editor:

As a 20-year resident of Grosse Pointe, I appreciate the foresight of former citizens in the development and recreation of all.

I am also dismayed at some of the items that are lacking — no auditorium at Brownell, small insufficient pools, no scheduled replacement of musical instruments.

It is commendable the school board is considering a bond to address the demands of the academic curriculum — particularly in the sciences; and that consideration is being given to the performing arts for space and equipment. The intellectual and cultural components of the educational process are being improved. It is critical to remedy a deficiency in the third component — the physical education of the individual.

This is definitely a swimming community. Everyone, from toddler to octogenarian, has the capability to participate. Swimming is truly a lifelong sport. Our pools are used to the maximum for swim lessons, aerobic classes, competitions, synchronized and lap swims. However, many are forced to travel to neighboring communities to obtain less crowded pool time or any pool time at all.

Some in the community look at the number of pools in the area and question the need for one more. Five are only in use for three months. The Grosse Pointe South High School pool is not even large enough to accommodate a whole physical education class. Due to recent changes in diving depth regulations, not even the "new" Grosse Pointe North High School pool can be used for 25-yard competitions.

Older swimmers, the very young swimmers, and special-needs swimmers need water maintained at a warmer temperature than those who are doing laps for fitness or for competition training.

A new pool would benefit the whole community and should be included in the bond proposal.

There must be a commitment to a superior educational facility, not just for a few years, but for decades. This cannot be achieved in a patchwork fashion. Put the complete package of improvements in all the needed areas — academic, cultural and physical — together in one future-oriented bond now.

If Grosse Pointe is a community that has the foresight to address all these aspects of its educational program, it will continue to have a tradition of educational excellence.

Curb litter

To the Editor:

The amount of litter along the streets and on lawns seems to be multiplying as time goes on.

It is distressing to see plastic bottles, fast-food containers and trash of every sort lining the curbs in our area. (This seems to be worst after garbage pick-up days.)

Perhaps it's time for an anti-litter campaign to be made so residents are more aware of what I believe to be an increasing problem. School officials could bring this to the attention of the students. Whatever can be done should be done. One piece of litter is still litter.

The Grosse Pointes have always been maintained beautifully. It is up to everyone to keep them that way.

Hipster slang

The following list of hipster lingo will be jake with bongo-bangers and hepcats, but for squares from Delaware, a dictionary of hipster slang by Max Decharne is, as its title promises, "Straight from the fridge, dad."

From the glory days of hipsterism:

- A-bomb juice: moonshine.
- Abyssinia: see you later, as in "I'll be seein' ya."
- Anywhere: possessing drugs, such as "Is you anywhere?"
- Barbecue stool: electric chair.
- Big barracuda: an important person.
- Butcher shop: hospital.
- Cackle factory: lunatic asylum.
- Chicago piano: machine gun.
- Chicken dinner: pretty young girl.
- Chop suey: messy death, such as making chop suey out of a friend with a meat ax.

- Cliff-dweller: resident of high-rise apartment.
- Clutch buster: hot-rodder.
- Copasetic: extreme compliment.
- Crack the books: read.
- Crazy: the best, as in "dig that crazy chick."
- Crowd pleaser: a policeman's gun.
- Crunchers: feet.
- Daddy-O: a term of address for hipsters, attributed to New Orleans disc jockey Vernon Winslow who broadcast during the late 1940s as Dr. Daddy-O: "the Daddy-O of radio, a porkulatin' platter-pushin' poppa."
- Do a Houdini: disappear or leave in a hurry.
- Doing it all: serving a life sentence in prison.
- Drop the veil: stop lying, such as, "Drop the veil, sister."
- Dude: a suave cat, well dressed.
- Empty enough to steal the dog's dinner: hungry.
- Executive session: drinking.
- For you and me the chili is on: our relationship is over.
- Fumigate your brains: smoke a cigarette.

- Fuse box: head.
- Get your kicks ("on Route 66"): have a good time.
- Gin mill cowboys: bar regulars.
- Coon from Saskatoon: an idiot; a square.
- Heat: the law, such as, "The heat is on."
- Hep: cool, righteous, in the know, as in "Where'd you get so hep?"
- Hide: a drum set. For instance: "Tan those hides, daddy-o."
- I have heard the wind blow before: You're bluffing; don't hand me that line.
- Iceberg act: playing it cool.
- It looks like rain: someone is about to get arrested.
- Jake: all right.
- Jerks and fillies: boys and girls, cats and kittens, studs and sisters.
- Killer-diller: a knockout, the best, something truly hep.
- Lay it on me: tell me.
- Let's tear: Let's get in the car and drive fast.
- Letting the air out of someone: stabbing them.
- Licorice stick: a clarinet.
- Make like a fish: take a bath.
- Man: all-purpose hipster form of address; policeman; drug dealer.
- Murderistic: mighty fine.
- Naturally buzzin' cuzzin': a lively guy; a switched-on dude.
- Nickel rat: cheap crook.
- No-goodnick from creepville: despicable person; a waste of space.
- On the beam: wise and alert.

- Other half of a half-wit: stupid.
- Pearl diver: a dish washer.
- Pie chomper: mouth.
- Rest the weight: sit down.
- Rewrite job: medical attention.
- Slip him the boodle: given him the money.
- Slip him the dose: shoot him.
- Square from Delaware: unenlightened person.
- Squawkers: parents.
- Stand by while I pad your skull: listen carefully.

Local sailor makes good

Someone whose opinion I value — one of my former Pointers of Interest and a sailing enthusiast — tells me local friends of Leslie Nurse will be interested to know what she's been up to lately.

Nurse lives on Amelia Island, a narrow strip of land between the Atlantic Ocean and Intercostal Waterway on the east coast of Florida north of Jacksonville.

She was recently named a residential loan officer at First National Bank of Nassau County. Many Pointers know Nurse from her interest in sailing.

In 1997, she moved to Amelia Island to work as the marketing manager for the schooner Voyager. Before joining First National, Nurse worked for Independent Mortgage Advisors.

On human dignity

In the Jan. 28 issue of The New Republic is a letter by Isaiah Berlin, who wrote a long-overdue letter to George Kennan, which is nothing if not both complex and profound, deserving of some analysis, simplification and improvements to readability.

It was in response to a letter of praise from George Kennan, statesman and writer on American diplomatic history, for Berlin's essay, "Political Ideas in the Twentieth Century."

Berlin's essay was considered to be one of the important documents of 20th century liberalism because it defined a concept central to human morality. In it, he attempted to clarify a basic modern moral issue at the root of human rights, the right to be free.

But freedom, like love, has many definitions and meanings, and in this essay, to which Kennan responded with deep understanding and immeasurable praise, Berlin set down certain basic prerequisites for human dignity and human rights, which dig deep into the center of what constitutes a human being.

He undertook this analysis because of what he knew about what happened to the human psyche under the totalitarian domination of Stalin, and how an individual's uniqueness under the Soviet regime was simply and powerfully quashed. And so-called intelligent ideologies rationalized this subjugation for the seeming goal of outlawing greed and the competition of free enterprise, which gave rise to class distinctions.

They would stop at nothing, including murder, torture, brainwashing and exile to bring about a classless society, a dictatorship of the proletariat, the domination of the group over the individual. Many of the excesses of Soviet communism were dramatized in George Orwell's "1984."

But, as Berlin has pointed out, many new national states of Asia and Africa also exhibit no great concern for civil liberties.

Berlin's letter to Kennan, published posthumously, attempts to describe the essence of human freedom and the basis of human dignity.

First of all, a little something must be said about Berlin. This is a tribute to Sir Berlin, who died in 1997, from Wolfson College, Oxford, which he created:

"Isaiah Berlin was one of the most remarkable men of his time, and one of the leading liberal thinkers of the century. Philosopher, political theorist, historian of ideas; Russian, Englishman, Jew; essayist, critic, teacher; he was a man of formidable intellectual power with a rare gift for understanding a wide range of human motives, hopes and fears, and a prodigiously energetic capacity for enjoyment of life, of people in all their variety, of their ideas and idiosyncrasies, of literature, of music, of art."

This is his own memorable encapsulation of the pluralist outlook:

"Life can be seen through many windows, none of them necessarily clear or opaque, less or more distorting than any of the others."

What he writes to George Kennan, as he himself tries to define what Kennan was praising him for, is about the principle on which Western civilization rests.

"... If I understand you correctly, you think that Western Civilization has rested upon the principle that, whatever else was permitted or forbidden, the one heinous act which would destroy the world was to do precisely this — the deliberate act of tampering with human beings so as to make them behave in a way which, if they knew what they were doing, or what the consequences were likely to be, would make them recoil with horror and disgust."

Basically, he believed that a human being should be free from interference, especially by those who think they know better, that they can choose for us in a more enlightened way than we can choose for ourselves.

Berlin's pluralism justifies his deep-seated rejection of coercion and manipulation by authoritarians and totalitarians of all kinds: communists, fascists, bureaucrats, missionaries, terrorists, revolutionaries and all other despots, levelers, systematizers or purveyors of "organized happiness."

Berlin had a horror of the sacrifices that have been exacted in the name of Utopian ideals due to be realized at some unspecified point in the distant future: Real people should not have to suffer and die today for the sake of a chimera of eventual universal bliss.

Dining out

Here's a dilemma. Where do you go to dine if you co-own the restaurant that Hour Magazine and the Detroit Free Press last year named the "Restaurant of the Year" in Metro Detroit?

Well when David Pandy, co-owner of The Hill on Kercheval in the Farms, doesn't eat at his home restaurant, like as not he may be found at Cuisine, 670 Lothrop in Detroit, behind the Fisher Building, the Free Press' 2002 Restaurant of the Year.

Spotted there last month before this year's honor was announced, Pandy admitted it was his and wife Susan's fourth trip to the new eatery. That's a pretty good endorsement for the French-American style, upscale restaurant in a 1920s building.

Pandy was confident enough in his own offerings that he summoned owner-chef Paul Grosz out to meet a party of Grosse Pointers. Eliessa Karg of the Metro Times has also rated the place five star for food and called it "sophisticated and memorable."

Grosz was executive chef at The Whitney on Woodward for a decade before striking out on his own. Valet parking is available and the staff works to accommodate Fisher theatergoers. Entrees run $25 to $49.

You can check the restaurant out on the web at MetroTimes.com and click on the restaurant reviews or boot up Cuisine's web page at cuisinedetroit.com. The phone is (313) 872-5110. Or you can read Sylvia Rector's Free Press comments at Freep.com.

If you are into desserts try the habanero chocolate sorbet at Cuisine. It's hot, cold and delicious all at the same time. All desserts are $7.

Top 10

Ever since Bo Derek made the movie "Ten" and probably a long time before that the media have been fascinated with lists of 10.

When the Free Press' Rector listed her top 10 "fine dining experiences" on the same day she picked Cuisine as "Restaurant of the Year," the question came up: What happened to The Hill? Did it go from Restaurant of the Year to back in the pack? No. Should we all march on 600 W. Fort and throw dinner rolls at the Free Press' front door? No.

The explanation was simple: The Hill was not being "dissed." It doesn't exactly fit the category of "fine dining," Rector said. While it offers a fine dining experience, it also offers a friendly, warm atmosphere for schlumps like me who wander in after a high school basketball or football game in their jeans and baseball cap and just want to eat their bleu cheese pizza.

Rector said, "I don't think there's a finer meal around than the 'Hill of Perch' they serve at The Hill. That's right, and the bleu cheese pizza is right up there for us schlumps."

Udder delight

Here's a news flash from Linda Axe, a talented interior decorator with offices in the Farms. On Friday at 10 p.m., the cottage she and attorney husband John own at Castle Park near Holland, Mich., will be featured on HGTV, the Home and Garden channel.

The cottage is a delightful place tucked behind the Lake Michigan dunes and decorated entirely in a cow theme and features neat built-in bunks and other items that you would love to have in your summer home.

Castle Park is a private enclave of about 80 cottages and homes that has been there for more than a century and was built around a yellow castle that a Chicago businessman reportedly built for his wife and daughter and stowed them there. They reportedly lasted a year or so before heading back to the big city.

Until his job as secretary of defense took over his life and they sold the place, Donald and Joyce Rumsfeld were the Axes' Castle Park neighbors.

Radar would warn of lake pollution

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A team of silent sentinels could be standing watch soon along the western shoreline of Lake St. Clair.

Their duty will be to scan for pollution contaminating southeast Michigan's main source of drinking water.

If deployed next summer under a $1.1 million proposal by a research scientist from the University of Michigan, the twin, automated radar stations will overlook the entire 700-square-mile link in the world's greatest system of freshwater lakes.

From atop sites to be determined in St. Clair Shores and one of the Grosse Pointes, each synchronized sweep of the radars and every pulse of high frequency radio waves will reveal aspects of lake dynamics that had been measured previously but without the proposal system's level of detail.

The radar installations will document the pattern of multiple surface currents simultaneously. The network will reveal how currents are affected by fickle winds that have made Lake St. Clair a reservoir of frustration for sailors.

The radars will be strong enough to see across the lake to the Canadian shore.

They will record swirling currents totaling 4,500 cubic meters of water per second off the grassy tip of the world's largest fresh-water delta at the mouth of the St. Clair River.

They will record sluggish water eddying through red-choked nesting grounds inside the converging shores of Anchor Bay.

They will show how wind and water levels change along the densely-populated and heavily-trafficked United States shoreline.

They will look east beyond the freighter channel to monitor currents off the pebble beaches below the rich farmland of Belle River, Ontario.

"These radars are truly state-of-the-art gizmos," said Guy Meadows, director of the University of Michigan Ocean Engineering Laboratory. Meadows has studied the Great Lakes for more than 25 years.

He said the proposal "will advance the pollution monitoring capability of Michigan to that unsurpassed in the nation."

The units will record the direction and speed of surface currents at 1,000 locations throughout the lake.

Meadows said the project's pollution-mapping component depends on health departments reporting sewage releases or spills. He's working on a future proposal involving sensor buoys that could automatically report polluted water.

According to Meadows' present proposal, environmental charts will be updated and posted on the Internet every hour.

As the 18-month pilot program develops, a predictive model of lake behavior will evolve. In addition to detecting pollution, such as high counts of harmful E.coli bacteria caused by discharges of raw sewage after heavy rains, scientists will be able to forecast the speed and direction in which pollution is expected to flow.

The radar network will act like an environmental watch dog, warning water department officials, swimmers, fisherman and pleasure boaters of approaching contamination.

"The model will provide up to 24-hour advance predictions of circulation and beach conditions," Meadows said. If a spill occurs, the model can work in "hindcast mode to identify, with confidence, pollution sources."

Meadows drafted his plan last December. It's one of nearly 60 proposals being considered by the state Department of Environmental Quality.

"I have not really had a chance to look at Dr. Meadows' proposal," said Katherine Cunningham, Chief of Coastal Management Program in the DEQ's Land and Water Management Division. "We hope to notify applicants in June. We've had other grants Dr. Meadows has worked on that have been successful."

Meadows said most of the funding would come from federal money already allocated to Michigan and earmarked for Great Lakes restoration.

"We'd like to convince the state to spend a significant portion of that on Lake St. Clair," he said.

Rep. Andrew Richner R-Grosse Pointe Park, said, "I fully support the effort. The most important thing we can do right now is identify the sources of pollution, where they're coming from and what type of pollution it is so we can try to rectify it. If I can assist, I'd be happy to help."

If approved, state officials will require the local communities involved to pay 25 percent of the project. Support could take the form of cash or in-kind services, such as access to the waterfront, space for mooring survey vessels, monitoring storm water outflows and security for research equipment.

The Grosse Pointes and St. Clair Shores, Meadows said, "have generously stepped forward to offer in-kind services."

Meadows would like the program up and running by July 1.

In anticipation of funding, he has scouted possible radar sites.

"The farther apart the better — as far north and as far south as possible," he said.

A prime location is the 26-story, Shore Sky Tower at Nine Mile in St. Clair Shores. Meadows has also considered the roof of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial in Grosse Pointe Farms.

"We could put it here," said Mark Weber, head of the War Memorial. "With our interest in the lake, we would be interested in working with Dr. Meadows on that project."

The radars could have uses beyond mapping pollution.

"They would provide hourly maps of boat traffic," Meadows said. "They also see ice very well."

Lake St. Clair and the communities supporting Meadows' project could become a test bed for the development of similar technology throughout the Great Lakes.

Meadows said future sites could include Traverse Bay, Saginaw Bay and the western basin of Lake Erie.

"The goal of the proposal is to have an updated website for everyone to see," Meadows said. "It makes sense."

Lake St. Clair, which according to a study by Clean Water Action provides drinking water to five million residents of Michigan and Ontario, is a magnet for recreation, residential development and industry.

The free-flowing body of water has rested largely unchanged, except for the freighter channel dug during the early 20th century, since being named by Father Louis Hennepin on Aug. 10, 1679. In recent years, however, the lake has had a problem.

Beaches along the western shoreline, from Metropolitan Beach in Mount Clemens, Blossom Health Beach in St. Clair Shores to Pier Park in Grosse Pointe Farms and Belle Isle in Detroit, are often closed due to unsafe levels of fecal bacteria.

The bacteria are harmful to humans and animals, yet feed the growth of weeds which eventually decay, stink and create more pollution.

"It is the purpose of this proposal to reverse this trend and begin to restore the water quality," Meadows said.

He said his system will "address, investigate and ultimately predict water quality conditions that pose potential threats to the health of humans and wildlife."

North target of firebomb attack

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

If it weren't for the incompetence of an alleged teenage fire bomber whose Molotov cocktail had less fizzle than a Shirley Temple, Grosse Pointe North High School could have gone up in smoke last weekend.

A 15-year-old Woods boy, a student at North, was arrested for attempted arson in the incident police discovered shortly before 11 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 26, according to Mike Makowski, the Woods director of public safety.

Makowski said the suspect was taken to the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center.

The suspect faced charges of preparing to burn and malicious destruction of property at a Monday, Jan. 28 hearing at the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center, according to an administrator with the 3rd Judicial Circuit Court Family Division.

At press time Tuesday afternoon, the youth had not posted his $20,000 bond and remained in custody.

The suspect is scheduled to appear before family division referee Kathryn O'Grady on Feb. 6 at 9 a.m.

Woods officers had been tipped off to the incident by an anonymous caller.

According to Makowski, the boy hammered a hole through a reinforced office window on the school's south side. He allegedly placed a homemade firebomb on an inside ledge.

Officers gathering evidence said they found "possible blood (and) skin marks on different pieces of glass all around the perimeter of the hole."

The bomb burned itself out. Nothing caught fire and damage was limited to the broken window, Makowski said.

About an hour after the building was secured, officers arrested the boy in his pajamas at his Woods home. While being taken to the police station, an officer asked the youth if he knew why he was in custody.

"I have a good idea," he reportedly answered.

"This is serious," said Marge Parsons, an assistant superintendent of the public school system.

"In a worst-case scenario," she said, "if the police or Wayne County prosecutor determine it to be arson, he's a candidate for expulsion. That is state law. It's not our decision."

She had a hard time thinking of a best-case scenario.

"Assuming he actually threw it in (the office), I don't know how you soften that down," Parsons said.

Water rates

According to a Jan. 21 letter from Shores village attorney Ralph Houghton to the water and sewerage department's interim director Gary Fujita, the Shores has been asking for a review of its rates nearly every year since 1986.

The letter also indicated the Shores received a letter from the water and sewerage department on Jan. 24, 2000, indicating a meeting would be set up to install new recording meters and to discuss the issue in greater detail.

"This was over two (2) years ago and we have not heard from your department since," wrote Houghton.

Kenyon believes that the Shores rates should be set in line with the Park and the Woods based on usage and size of the homes.

"We don't have the constant flow like they have with commercial districts," Kenyon said. "We've also taken conservation measures which we've communicated with our residents through cable TV."

Kenyon said that their engineers estimated that a charge of $7.94 per 1,000 cubic feet of water would be more in line with the village's usage and that the adjustment should entitle the village to a credit of about $800,000.

City of Grosse Pointe Assistant City Manager Brian Vick also believes the water and sewerage department has been calculating the City's sewerage rates in error as well.

The water and sewerage department is planning to increase its sewerage rate to the City from $11.43 to $13.61 per 1,000 cubic feet. The City may pay the highest sewerage rate of all the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods communities; $6.49 per 1,000 cubic feet more than the clients of the Northeast Sewerage System (Grosse Pointe Shores, Grosse Pointe Woods, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores).

Vick claims that the water and sewerage department has been in error for the last two years.

"It's a good question and a question we're going to have to discuss with Detroit," Vick said.

While the Farms is anticipated to pay only slightly less than the City for its sewerage services, a projected rate of $13.55 per 1,000 cubic feet, City Manager Rich Solak said that cost will be offset by a $191,000 credit from 2000-01.

"Because we were able to separate our sewers, we were able to get a substantial credit that will help us moderate our sewerage rate," Solak said. "We're hopeful we'll be able to keep rates steady to our customers."

Solak said the Farms will need to analyze the credit and costs and work those figures into the next fiscal year budget.

North, South band and orchestra members fare well at festival

Grosse Pointe North and South High students represented their schools well last weekend at the MSBOA District Solo and Ensemble Festival held at East Detroit High School.

Students performed solos and ensembles for professional adjudicators and were given a rating of 1-5 based on the quality of their performance.

Students were judged on the overall execution of their piece, including technique, intonation, ensemble, tone and dynamics. Performances good enough to receive a 1st or 2nd division rating were awarded medals.

The following North students received a first division medal for a superior performance and qualified to participate at the State Festival on March 23: Katie Longley and Elly Dolinski, woodwind duet; Susan Rhee, violin solo; Ayesha Soares, Kristin Longley and Elly Dolinski, clarinet trio; Andrea Sheridan, viola solo; Bridget Brosnan and Marta Acsadi, flute duet; Matt Halicki, Susan Rhee, Ken Chacklos and Laura Pizzamenti, string quartet; Bridget Brosnan, flute solo; Katie Longley and Hilary Kadrach, flute solo; Ben Lupo, cello solo; Susan Rhee, piano solo; Thomas Cameron, viola solo; Roy Lucier, saxophone solo; Joseph Hong, violin solo; Kyle Kwiatkowski, violin solo; Roy Lucier, Andrew Ferworn and Derek Trombley, saxophone trio; Joseph Agacinaki, bassoon solo; Taryn Dyle, French horn solo; Carly Hanna, viola solo; Cathy Burk, cello solo; Marta Acsadi, flute solo; Liz Cramer, cello solo; Maria Salciccioli, clarinet solo; and Carly Hanna and Kate Dervishi, string duet.

dents received second division medals for an excellent performance:

Hilary Kadrach, piano solo; Natalie Calloway and Tegan Ford, duet; Nick Ridella and Chris Blunden, trumpet duet; Katie Rabidoux, Jennifer Smith and Andrea Sheridan, string trio; Jennifer McGraw and Carrie Fines, flute duet; Melissa Jamerino and Dana Chicklas, violin duet; Shannon Reynolds, flute solo; Jenny McGraw, flute solo; Ben Poupard, trumpet solo; Jennifer Smith, violin solo; Elise Fields and Katie Bossack, string duet; Scott Dyle and Jimmy Solomon, trumpet duet; Sarah Bay, Cara Wulf, Mike Greiner, Matt Stasiewicz and Dan La Rose, percussion ensemble; Lia Pillen, John Salvador and Alex Fields, string trio; Thomas Cameron and Ben Lupo, string duet; Alex Fields and John Salvador, violin duet; Meghan Gleason, clarinet solo; Ben Landsiedel, trumpet solo; Margaret Walton, cello solo; Stephanie Leaman, flute solo.

South students earning first division medals include: Darren Mantyla, trumpet solo; Andrew Wrobel, trombone solo; Renee DeFour, cello solo; Mark Leube, clarinet solo; Katie Giblin, flute solo; John Markwick, trumpet solo; Christina Jacovides, piano solo; Rose Urbiel, violin solo; Jon Sierant, clarinet solo; Triana Sirdenis, cello solo; Kim Sutton, cello solo; Emily Shipman, viola solo; Julia Anderle, flute solo; Rachel Gruner, flute solo;

Maureen Savinov, violin solo; Suzanne Wrobel, piano solo; George Tecos, violin solo; David Altschuler, piano solo; Jessica Blount, clarinet solo; Sharon Gruner, cello solo; Sasha Savinov, cello solo; Darren Mantyla and Mike Wiseman, trumpet duet; Katie Giblin, Kelene Soltezz and Rachel Gruner, flute ensemble; Renee DeFour, Rose Urbiel and Stephanie McElroy; Jimmy O'Connell, Jamie Fountain, Ryan Gunderson and Charles Scholfield, brass ensemble; Kate Briske and Laura Cole, woodwind ensemble; Meghan Peach and Lauren Scopel, woodwind ensemble; Carolyn Blaek, BethAnn Samra, Nina Meyer and Rence DeFour, string ensemble; and Sasha Savinov and Maureen Savinov, string ensemble.

South students earning second division medals were: Jon Wiseman, trombone solo; Anthony Galinato, violin solo; Charles Scholfield, tuba solo; Josiah Spurr, piano solo; Mike Wiseman, trumpet solo; Jennifer Bradley, violin solo; Suzanne Wrobel, Sharon Gruner, Carlin Hauck and Jennifer Paone, string ensemble; Scott Fiegelson and Shane Scott, brass ensemble; Kate Ansaldi and Kathleen Alvin, string ensemble; and Christina Jacovides and Kim Sutton, string ensemble.

Sixth-grader wins geographic bee

Tripp Kennedy, a sixth-grade student at the Grosse Pointe Academy, won the school-level competition of the National Geographic Bee on Jan. 10 and a chance at a $25,000 college scholarship. The school-level bee was the first round in the 14th annual National Geographic Bee.

Thousands of schools nationwide participated this year. The school winners, including Tripp and runner-up Tyler Black (grade 7), will take a written test; up to 100 of the top scorers in each U.S. state and territory will be eligible to compete in their state bee on April 5.

The National Geographic Society will provide an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C., for state champions and teacher-escorts to participate in the national championship on May 21 and 22. The first-place winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship and a lifetime membership in the society.

"Jeopardy!" host Alex Trebek will moderate the national finals. The program will air on the National Geographic Channel and afterward on PBS stations.

A "leprechaun" went aboard a "skiff" and enjoyed the "ebb" and flow of the waves. In one "embarrassing" moment he fell "overboard!" What connects these words to Grosse Pointe Academy? Each cropped up during the annual Middle School Spelling Bee at the Grosse Pointe Academy on Dec. 7.

Forums to discuss school curricula

As a part of continuing efforts to include public opinion at all levels of curriculum development, the Grosse Pointe Public School System will hold public forums to familiarize the community with the draft of the new curricula.

A forum to discuss the draft of the new modern and classical language curriculum for grades 6-12 is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 6, in the library at North High School.

A similar public forum to explain the draft of the new science curriculum for grades K-12 is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 7, in the library of Grosse Pointe South High School.

The curriculum committees have focused on developing a consistent, balanced and articulated program for all schools in the district. Public forums are the first steps in the adoption process for new curricula.

Following the opportunity for public comment, the curriculum will be presented to the district's educational planning leadership council later in February and, finally, to the board of education in March.

Members of the community are welcome and there will be procedures to allow those attending to address the committee with their ideas and concerns.

Cub Scouts host pancake supper at Kerby School

Members of Cub Scout Pack 481 are preparing to serve close to 2,000 pancakes at their annual All-You-Can-Eat Pancake Supper.

Every scout family works the event and the funds raised go to support the pack's camping programs, annual Pinewood Derby and Blue and Gold Awards banquet.

This year's supper will be held in the Kerby Elementary School gym on Tuesday, Feb. 5, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Tickets are $4 at the door, or can be purchased from any Kerby scout.

Ada P. Booth

One-time Grosse Pointe Park resident Ada P. Booth, 86, died on Friday, Jan. 25, 2002, at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.

Mrs. Booth, who most recently lived in Dearborn, received a degree from Salem College in Winston-Salem, N.C. and later earned another degree in Library Science from Simmons College in Boston, Mass., and a master of science in Library Science from the University of Michigan. She was employed by the Grosse Pointe Public Library until her retirement in 1980.

She was active at Christ Episcopal Church Grosse Pointe and was also a member of the Daughters of the King and the Women's History Club.

She is survived by her daughters Ellen McCarthy and Meg Bagnasco; her grandchildren Emily and Andrew; her brother Bruce Pfohl of Waterford, Va. and her sister Caroline Carter of Front Royal, Va. She was predeceased by her husband Robert E. Booth and her brother Christian Pfohl.

Arrangements are being handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park. A memorial service is planned for Saturday, Feb. 2, at 12:30 p.m., at Christ Episcopal Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms. Mrs. Booth was cremated and her ashes will be interred in the Christ Church Columbarium.

Memorial contributions may be made to Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236.

Gertrude Wilson Johnstone Meyer Carey

Gertrude Wilson Johnstone Meyer Carey

Gertrude "Trudie" Wilson Johnstone Meyer Carey, 95, died at her home in Grosse Pointe Park on Thursday, Jan. 24, 2002.

Trudie was the daughter of Dr. Alexander Watt Johnstone, minister of the Cadillac Presbyterian Church, and Cora Elmira Wilson, church organist. She was born and raised in Cadillac. Her maternal grandfather Wilson was a lumberman who built the family home in Harrison, Mich. Her grandfather donated the land for the Wilson State Park.

Trudie enjoyed traveling throughout the world. She loved dancing and the performing arts. In 1923, she graduated from Cadillac High School and attended Western College for Women in Oxford, Ohio. After two years, she transferred to Simmons College in Boston, Mass., where she graduated with an education degree and also a professional degree in clothing and textile design. Her grandparents gave her a graduation present of a grand tour of Europe and, upon her return, she was awarded a teaching position in the prestigious Russell Vocational School in Detroit.

Detroit was where she met her soon-to-be husband, Earl G. Meyer, an Ann Arbor native and a graduate of the University of Michigan architectural school. On Aug. 11, 1932, she and Earl were married in the garden of her family's estate in Harrison. Earl and Trudie returned to Detroit where he opened an architectural practice and she continued teaching.

Earl designed a home for them in Grosse Pointe Farms on Touraine Road. Trudie loved to entertain there and it was also where they raised their three children, Marilyn Meyer DiLoreto, Cherylann L. Meyer and Earl Richard Meyer.

Trudie was very active at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and in area square dance clubs and at the Detroit Boat Club, Fine Arts and Theater Arts where she designed and created beautiful costumes for many years. She was also a member of the Cercle Dramatique, Tuesday Musicale, Grand Marais Garden Club, the English Speaking Union and Book Review Clubs. Their love of travel took Earl and Trudie throughout the world with the Circumnavigators.

After the tragic death of their son, Dick, who died of an aneurysm during his freshman year of college, Earl and Trudie moved to Tonanacour Place. Earl died in 1973.

In 1975, Trudie married Thomas Carey and moved to Grosse Pointe Park. Her years with Tom were full of dancing, travel, laughter and a large, extended family. Tom passed away in May of 1987.

Trudie filled her life with friends, gardening, book clubs, theater and music. She instilled in both daughters a love for travel and community service. She was also an avid supporter of students in Grosse Pointe who participated in the performing arts.

Through her love and enthusiasm for life, her children's lives, and those of her friends, were greatly enriched.

She is survived by her daughters Marilyn M. DiLoreto of McLean, Va. and Cherylann Meyer of Grosse Pointe Park and Traverse City. She also has four stepchildren, Tom, Jim, Ann and Mary Carey; grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Trudie lived the way she wanted as a stately and elegant lady active in her community and family until the day when she died in her own home.

A memorial service will be held at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore Rd. in Grosse Pointe Farms on Saturday, Feb. 2, at 1 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Gertrude Meyer Carey Performing Arts Award, Grosse Pointe South High School, c/o Barb Cole, 11 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236 or the VNA Hospice, 25900 Greenfield Rd., Suite 600, Oak Park, MI 48237.

Betty Virginia Charles

Betty Virginia Charles, 84, died of natural causes at her Detroit home on Monday, Jan. 7, 2002.

Born in Chicago, Mrs. Charles lived in Windsor, Ontario, Canada, before moving to Detroit. She was a longtime waitress in the restaurant of Hudson's downtown Detroit store.

Mrs. Charles enjoyed fishing and visiting Chicago.

She is survived by her many friends and family members. She was predeceased by her husbands Clarence Donnelly and Generosa Charles.

A memorial Mass will be celebrated on Sunday, Feb. 17, at 9 a.m., at St. Matthew's Catholic Church, 6021 Whittier in Detroit. Mrs. Charles was cremated and her ashes are interred in the St. Theresa section of Heavenly Rest Cemetery in Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Humane Society, 7401 Chrysler Dr., Detroit, MI 48211 (<http://www.mihumane.org>) or St. Matthew's Church, 6021 Whittier, Detroit, MI 48224.

Shirley Norton Donovan

Shirley Norton Donovan, 83, a longtime resident of Grosse Pointe, died on Monday, Jan. 21, 2002, at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe.

Born March 10, 1918, in Detroit, she was the daughter of Preston Dunning and Maxine Abbott (Mosher) Norton. She attended Michigan State University, where she was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

She was married to J. Lane Donovan on June 26, 1937, and they settled in Grosse Pointe, where they resided during 62 years of marriage. Mr. Donovan preceded his wife in death on Sept. 1, 1989.

Mrs. Donovan was a member of Christ Episcopal Church Grosse Pointe for many years, where she was a member and former chairperson of the ECW. She also served on the Altar Guild and participated in the Stephen Ministry Program.

She was a member of the Country Club of Detroit, where she participated on the golf and bowling leagues. Her other interests led her to memberships in the Audubon Society, the Seven Ponds Nature Center, the English Speaking Union, the Grosse Pointe Club, the Pointe Garden Club and the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution -

Louisa St. Clair Chapter.

Mrs. Donovan was an avid needle woman and was well-known for her intricate needlepoint and crewel embroidery creations. She made significant contributions to needlework projects at Christ Episcopal Church Grosse Pointe, St. Aidan's Episcopal Church in Malibu, Calif. and Christ Church in Dayton, Ohio.

She is survived by her sons, Joseph L. (Claudine) Donovan of Alexandria, Va., Terrence N. (Kay) Donovan of Brighton and Charles W. (Sue) Donovan of Flint; seven grandchildren, Guy A. (Michelle) Donovan of Lincoln Park, Anne C. (Quinn) Pauly of Friday Harbor, Wash., Christopher D. (Cynthia) Donovan of Howell, Terrence N. (Jill) Donovan Jr. of Tulsa, Okla., Kelli M. Donovan of Littleton, Colo., Maxine C. (Lee) Meeks of Alexandria, Va. and Daniel C. Donovan of Brighton; her 10 great-grandchildren; one great-great-granddaughter; her sister-in-law Ann Norton of Petoskey and two nephews, Charles W. (Patsy) Norton of Grosse Pointe Park and John P. (Nancy) Norton of Petoskey.

Arrangements were handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home of Grosse Pointe Park. Funeral services were held on Jan. 25, at Christ Episcopal Church Grosse Pointe, the Rev. Bryant Dennis Jr. officiated. Interment will be held at a later date.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Seven Ponds Nature Center, the Salvation Army or Christ Episcopal Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236.

Memorial gifts will be welcomed at the Detroit Institute for Children, 5447 Woodward Ave., Detroit, MI 48202 (<http://www.detroit-children.org>) and the Michigan Humane Society, 7401 Chrysler Dr., Detroit, MI 48211 (<http://www.mihumane.org>).

Mimi will be missed and fondly remembered by all who knew her.

Mary Ellen Garan

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Mary Ellen "Mimi" Garan died after a long illness, at St. John Hospital and Medical Center in Detroit, on Friday, Jan. 25, 2002.

Born in Detroit's Harper Hospital, Mimi grew up in Indian Village. She attended the Liggett School and Bradford Junior College. She received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Michigan and a masters in Special Education from Wayne State University.

She earned her Ph.D. in making everybody happy.

Mimi taught at the Detroit Day School for the Deaf until her children were born. She served 10 years on the board of the Detroit Institute for Children. During the final year of her term, she was president of the Board of Trustees. Her "unselfish devotion, strong guidance and leadership" were acknowledged by her peers.

Mimi also served as a contributing member to Sigma Gamma, PiPhi Sorority, Christ Episcopal Church Grosse Pointe, University Liggett School and the Detroit Industrial School Board.

Her family was the center of her life.

She is survived by her son Daniel (Janis) Garan; her daughter Kathy Garan of Scottsdale, Ariz.; her grandson, Daniel L. Garan IV; her sisters Peggy Murphy of Honolulu, Hawaii and Kiki (Kenneth) Gould of Northfield, Ill., and many nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by her husband Daniel L. Garan.

A memorial service honoring Mimi was held on Jan. 30, at Christ Episcopal Church in Grosse Pointe Farms. Her ashes are interred at the Christ Church Columbarium.

Memorial gifts will be welcomed at the Detroit Institute for Children, 5447 Woodward Ave., Detroit, MI 48202 (<http://www.detroit-children.org>) and the Michigan Humane Society, 7401 Chrysler Dr., Detroit, MI 48211 (<http://www.mihumane.org>).

Mimi will be missed and fondly remembered by all who knew her.

Margaret F. Grobbel, 102, died on Friday, Jan. 25, 2002 in Houston, Texas.

Born in Detroit, Mrs. Grobbel was the daughter of Margaret J. and Lawrence E. Fitzpatrick. She was a resident of Grosse Pointe Park for 50 years.

Mrs. Grobbel attended both the Jefferson Avenue and Lawrence Avenue Academies of the Sacred Heart and earned a bachelor of arts from Clifton College of the Sacred Heart in 1922. She served as president of the Sacred Heart Alumnae in 1930 and was later the president of the Children of Mary Sodality at the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Grosse Pointe.

She was married for 55 years to the late Cyril A.

Grobbel, past owner of E. W. Grobbel Sons, a wholesale meat business that has been owned by the Grobbel family from 1883 to the present.

An active member of the community, Mrs. Grobbel was a member of St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic Church, the League of Catholic Women, the Women's City Club and the Detroit Yacht Club.

Mrs. Grobbel is survived by her son Cyril A. Grobbel Jr. and her daughter Patricia Grobbel Kemp. She was "the dearest grandmother" of Cyril A. Grobbel III, Dr. Melea Grobbel, Marita S. Grobbel, Christopher Grobbel, Regan Grobbel Stolarski, Jason J. Grobbel, Anastasia Grobbel Minor, Cassandra Grobbel, Margaret Kemp Karteron, Michaela Kemp Zirnbauer, Angela Kemp Woodrow and Patricia Kemp Jackson; 23 great-grandchildren; one great-great-grandchild and many loving nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by her husband and her granddaughter Kathleen Anne Kemp.

Arrangements are being handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home of Grosse Pointe Park. A funeral Mass will be celebrated on Saturday, Feb. 2, at noon, at St. Clare of Montefalco Church, on Mack and Whittier in Grosse Pointe Park. Interment will follow at Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit.

Memorial gifts may be made to the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Bloomfield, 1250 Kensington Rd., Bloomfield Hills, MI 48304.

Stocks eeked small gains in holiday-shortened week

Last week stocks gained 68 points, or 7/10ths of 1 percent, to close at 9,840; while the NASDAQ Composite merely added 7 points, or 3/10ths of 1 percent, closing at 1,937.

The NASDAQ 100, the best barometer of tech stocks, rose 10 points, or 7/10ths of 1 percent. Its exchange-traded trust, symbol: QQQ, closed at 38.83, up 24 cents.

NYSE volume totaled only 5.6 billion shares for the week, or 1.4 billion shares per day, reflecting the King holiday on Monday, Jan. 21.

Of the 20 stocks held by the largest number of accounts at Merrill Lynch (often called "We, the People"), 12 declined last week, while eight advanced, indicating a 3-for-2 bearish sentiment in an otherwise lackluster market.

Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan debated with himself last Thursday (and he won again). Greenspan said there are "signs recently that some of the forces that have been restraining the economy over the past year are" starting to diminish and activity is beginning to firm.

At press time Monday, bond traders were almost unanimous that Greenspan & Co. would do nothing about short-term interest rates this week (Wednesday).

If this does mark the end of the Fed's interest rate cutting spree, then the bond market will begin to anticipate its reversal thereof. This will result in a flattening of the "yield curve" with short to midterm rates rising somewhat, while long rates remain steady, or only inch upward.

Comerica increases cash dividend

Comerica Inc. (CMA, about 57.07 last Friday) announced that its board of directors increased its quarterly cash dividend to 48 cents per share, from 44 cents previous, a 9.1 percent increase.

Eugene A. Miller, chairman, stated that this was the 33rd consecutive year of dividend increases. The new dividend yield is now 3.4 percent.

Many analysts now say they will be happy with total returns (price changes plus cash dividends) in the high single-digits for the next few years. Gone are the dot.com days of 20 percent annual increases!

In the "old days," one investment strategy was to divide corporate profits: one-third for reinvestment in the company, one-third for dividends to shareholders and the remaining one-third for management bonuses and incentives.

In the 1970s and 1980s, LTS found the best of all worlds could be accomplished by annual increases in cash dividends at mid year, augmented by a 5 or 10 percent stock dividend at year-end.

The price decline caused by the stock dividend going "ex-dividend" was usually made up within two weeks or less. The total market value of your increased shares actually increased 5 percent!

The topic "dividends" is one of LTS' favorite topics (see Nov. 15, 2001; Feb. 8, 2001; May 25, 2000; and March 11, 1999).

Many investors not needing the dividend cash flow for household income choose to transfer the funds to the dividend reinvestment plan (DRP).

DRPs are very popular, because once set up, everything is automated, creating a "dollar-averaging purchase program."

Currently, the dividend yield on the S&P 500 Index is a measly 1.4 percent, almost as anemic as the yields on CDs and money market accounts.

Some of the better dividend-payers are found in 1) financial services (see CMA, above), 2) utilities and 3) REITs.

LTS will continue this subject next week.

No end to Enron

When describing Enron's commodity trading contracts, the media have thrown around the phrase, "mark-to-market." In its trading activities, Enron offered long term energy contracts that guaranteed delivery of, say, a fixed amount of natural gas at a fixed price for a 10-year period.

The guarantee was supported by an indemnity bond purchased by Enron through normal insurance channels. The trading department attempted to hedge as much of the contract as possible by the purchase and sale of derivatives.

When broken into annual segments, these contracts typically produced declining losses in early years and increasing profits in later years.

GAAP accounting rules permit the contract maker to take the entire 10-year "net profit" in the year written, called "mark-to-market." Thus, these noncash "paper profits" were reported on the books. As trading activity increased in 1999 and 2000, these reported earnings skyrocketed, even though cash flow losses were occurring.

What a waste

Back in the early 1990s, LTS read about plans for a new M-59 freeway, an east-west artery to connect Pontiac on the west with Mount Clemens on the east. The new freeway would function as a high-speed "outer-ring" for the north-east side of the metropolis, much like I-75 fills that role on the west side.

Sad to say, the northwest link, the I-275 connector, linking I-96 at Novi to I-75 northwest of Clarkston, has been hopelessly mired in local politics and environmental issues for the past two decades. In fact, final construction may never occur.

This 18-mile missing link causes much of the international truck traffic crossing the Blue Water Bridge to Canada at Port Huron to be diverted through downtown Detroit on I-75.

Since I-696 has been operating in excess of capacity during rush hours, it was imperative that the more northerly east-west M-59 freeway be constructed as soon as possible.

M-59 is also variously known as Hall Road and 20 Mile Road. Now, $350 million later, it is the most expensive six-lane divided local street system in Michigan! The limited access freeway design was built for nine miles from I-75 easterly to Mound Road.

But for 11 Miles from Mound Road to I-94 (north-east of Mount Clemens), it is just another Grand River, Woodward or Gratiot suburban highway, complete with over 20 red lights that they can't seem to synchronize!

Last week, LTS had business in Utica on Hall Road. The directions from Grosse Pointe were simple enough: "East on I-94 to M-59 exit, then west on M-59 to the M-53 Van Dyke Expressway."

You can't believe the traffic around Lakeside Mall at 11 a.m. on Friday. And all those traffic lights. Average speed, less than 20 mph!

Maybe by 2010, or later, a "real" freeway will be built as a "by-pass," probably along 25 Mile, five miles north. Cost? Another $500 million by then. What a waste!

Posthumus visits

Michigan's Lt. Gov. making the rounds

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Lt. Gov. Dick Posthumus has visited the Grosse Pointes four times since August.

"I want to serve this state," said Posthumus, the leading Republican candidate for governor. "To do it, I have to be where the people are. One of the places that is important to me in becoming governor are the Grosse Pointes."

He said, "I keep coming back because I have great support here."

Outside of Rep. Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe Park, the heavily Republican Grosse Pointes don't have direct GOP representation in any elected office beyond the municipal level.

"I'll represent communities like this as the highest elected official in the state, working with guys like Andrew Richner," Posthumus said.

He said the Grosse Pointes' placement within Democratically-dominated Wayne County is "an unfortunate quirk of geography."

As Michigan lawmakers reapportion Congressional districts to reflect population shifts revealed in the recent census, many Grosse Pointe residents hoped the community, which has been broken up into two districts, would be put back together and added to a less liberal district in Macomb County.

"In our reapportionment, you can't cross county lines," Posthumus said. "But the fact is you have Rep. Richner and you'll have me in the future. You'll have people who understand the needs of the community."

Exercise center opens on Mack

Just in time to help people keep their New Year's resolutions, an exercise and weight loss center has opened on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Curves for Women is a growing fitness franchise with 2,500 locations in the United States and three foreign countries.

The Curve weight-loss philosophy combines sensible dieting with a 30-minute strength training and cardiovascular program.

"When you diet alone, 40 percent of the weight you lose is muscle," said local owner Shawn Burch. "Muscles are the engines of our bodies that require fuel. If you drastically lower your body's energy needs each time you diet, you will always gain your weight back."

She said the key to permanent weight loss is lean muscle.

"When a woman loses 20 pounds with us, it is predominantly body fat. Strength training protects and increases lean tissue while raising metabolism. The Curve workout is strength training women will do."

Curves for Women is located at 20927 Mack.

Nominees wanted for women's award

The Michigan Business and Professional Association is seeking nominations now through Feb. 28, for the sixth annual Women & Leadership in the Workplace awards. Categories include business; human service/philanthropic; media; civic affairs or government; education; professional; and small business achievement.

Award criteria will consist of significant achievements in given professional fields; recognition by peers for outstanding service; and contributions to the advancement of issues related to women in the business world.

"We're committed to bringing these leaders to the forefront of our community by honoring their achievements, and serving to encourage new generations of women leaders through their example," said Jennifer Kluge, MBPA executive vice president.

Previous winners of the organization's distinguished service award include Dorothy Comstock Riley, Irma Elder and Margaret Byington.

For more information, or to receive nomination materials for an award candidate, call the MBPA at (888) 277-6464, or visit the website at www.michbusiness.org.

MBPA is an organization of small to medium-sized businesses that represents over 20,000 members who employ over 160,000 persons throughout Michigan.

Amato
Thomas Amato has been appointed vice president of corporate development at Metaldyne Corporation, a designer and supplier of engineered metal-formed components and modules for automotive engine, driveline, and chassis applications. Metaldyne, with 2001 revenue of $2.4 billion, is a portfolio company of Heartland Industrial Partners, a Greenwich, Connecticut private equity group.

Amato will oversee Metaldyne's business development efforts, including mergers, acquisitions, and strategic alliances.

He had been the company's corporate development director for Metaldyne's TriMas Group, and prior to that was in a similar role at MascoTech, Inc.

Amato has an MBA from the University of Michigan and a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Wayne State University. He lives in Grosse Pointe Woods with his wife, JoMarie, and their three children, Drew, Gabi, and Nick.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Judy Caldwell and Cindy Miller of the Park have been elected to the board of directors for the Women's Economic Club.

Caldwell is director of Perrin Fordree & Co. Miller is marketing consultant and district manager for Arbonne International.

Ran away and caught

A 48-year-old Detroit man and three female accomplices tried but could not elude City of Grosse Pointe police from a suspected shoplifting incident in the 17100 block of Kercheval on Friday, Jan. 25.

The man concealed and tried to walk out of the store with $32 worth of over-the-counter medications at 9:30 a.m. After he was stopped by a public safety officer, he ran away, jumped several fences and was left stranded by a getaway vehicle. The man was apprehended by two public safety officers after a six-block chase.

The driver and two passengers of the getaway vehicle were stopped at Kercheval and Alter in Detroit and were all arrested on outstanding warrants.

Man found in lake

The body of an 83-year-old man who walked away from a nursing home on East Grand Boulevard in Detroit was found in Lake St. Clair near St. Paul Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The man, an Alzheimer's patient, was reported missing on Sunday, Jan. 20. He was a retired Chrysler worker who was single.

Obituaries

earned a bachelor of arts degree from Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo and a master of arts degree from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Lucander had retired from a 35-year career during which she taught elementary school in both the Grosse Pointe and Roseville public schools. She served on many school curriculum committees and received several commendation awards from the Roseville Board of Education.

She was affiliated with the American Federation of Teachers, the Western Michigan University Alumni Association and the University of Michigan Alumni Association. Mrs. Lucander was also a parishioner of Grace Episcopal Church in Port Huron and Christ Episcopal Church Grosse Pointe.

She also cherished time spent with her grandchildren and family and was a woman of varied interests, including travel, genealogy and western dancing.

Mrs. Lucander is survived by her sons Christer Dillon (Martha) Lucander and Nils Erik (Karel) Lucander; her daughter Kirsti Kay (Brian) Lucander Juergens; her six grandchildren and her sister June Dillon (Benjamin) Richards.

Arrangements were handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park. A funeral service was held on Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 11 a.m., at Mariner's Church of Detroit. Interment is at Lakeside Cemetery in Port Huron.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Salvation Army or Mariner's Church of Detroit, 170 E. Jefferson, Detroit, MI 48226.

Zelma I. Nichols

Zelma I. Nichols, 83, died of a stroke on Monday, Jan. 21, 2002, at St. John Hospital and Medical Center in Detroit.

Born on April 4, 1918, in Akron, Ohio, Mrs. Nichols was a homemaker who lived in Grosse Pointe Farms.

She is survived by her son Danny (Judy) Nichols; a daughter Deborah Nichols; her grandchildren Matthew (Kristin) Nichols and Christopher (Joy) Nichols and two great-grandchildren, Madeleine and William Nichols. Mrs. Nichols was predeceased, in 1980, by her husband Albert Nichols.

The man was found by a Farms resident on Thursday, Jan. 24, around 1 p.m.

The U.S. Coast Guard was called in to pull the man out of the 34 degree water on the shoreline.

The Wayne County Medical Examiner's office determined the cause of death to be drowning. It is unknown how the man got into the water or how long he had been there.

Lakeview larcenies

One snowblower was taken and another snowblower was almost taken from two different garages in the 100 block of Lakeview in Grosse Pointe Farms.

One resident reported her snowblower missing to the Farms public safety department on Friday, Jan. 25. She was not sure when the snowblower was last seen or if there were any other items taken from her garage.

A snowblower was left on the side of a driveway at another house on the same block on Friday, Jan. 25.

The resident said she had left her garage door partially open when she left the house at 2:45 p.m. The garage door was closed when she returned home at 4 p.m.

Arrangements were handled by the A. J. Desmond & Sons Funeral Directors of Troy. A funeral service, officiated by the Rev. Zivan Urosev, was held on Jan. 24, at St. Lazarus Serbian Orthodox Cathedral in Detroit.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Lazarus Serbian Orthodox Cathedral, 4575 Outer Drive, Detroit, MI 48234.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Tools missing

An employee of a Roseville-based glass company discovered that someone had broken into his work van while he was fixing a customer's broken windshield in the 300 block of Moross around 2 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 25.

The employee did not know he had been looted until he backed out of a driveway and a van door swung open. When he looked back to see the open door, he noticed a generator and hand tools were missing from the cargo area of the van.

Plates pinched

A Grosse Pointe Shores resident didn't realize the license plate from her car was missing until she was at a friend's house on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 27.

Her 1990 Ford station wagon was parked in front of her house between 4 and 11 a.m. that day before she left to run errands outside of the village limits.

Sees his Neon being nabbed

A man living in the 1800 block of Prestwick in Grosse Pointe Woods looked out his window at about 2 a.m. on Saturday, Jan. 26, to see someone stealing his gray 2001 Plymouth Neon. There are no suspects, but the victim thinks the thief was accompanied by someone in another gray Neon.

Two suspects are caught

Two suspected shoplifters were caught last week in Grosse Pointe Woods.

On Monday, Jan. 21, shortly after 6:38 p.m.,

Woods officers and Detroit police teamed up at Mack and Moross to take the pair into custody. The men were suspects in a pair of shopliftings on Mack earlier this month.

The men, a 20-year-old Park resident and a 19-year-old resident of Detroit, both had outstanding warrants, according to Woods police.

Super service

A woman pulled into a gas station last week at Mack and Vernier in Grosse Pointe Woods, entered the lobby to make a purchase, returned to her car and discovered someone had stolen her handbag.

The incident happened on Wednesday, Jan. 23 at 6:50 p.m.

There are no suspects, although at about the same time police received an anonymous cellular telephone report of a man trying to open the doors of cars parked at the station. The stranger reportedly drove an older model, "beat up" blue car with white doors.

Hacker hassle

A Grosse Pointe Woods woman was surprised to learn she'd been sending e-mail messages to her husband, friends and coworkers.

It turned out an Internet hacker had tapped in to her e-mail account, obtained her password and taken over. The woman's web provider told her to call police.

Drill press theft

Sometime between Jan. 16 and 22, a Delta drill press model 11-990 was stolen from a closed and unlocked garage in the 1000 block of Harvard in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Anniversaries

Pinned down

A young driver had to be extracted from his vehicle with help of officers from the Harper Woods fire department and the jaws of life Jan. 21.

The driver, who had been going across town at approximately noon, struck another vehicle and was trapped behind the wheel in the 19100 block of Huntington until the fire engine and ambulance arrived to rescue him. He was transported to St. John Hospital and Medical Center in serious condition with serious wounds to his legs and torso.

Breach of contractor

One of the subcontractors for a home improvement store in the 20300 block of Kelly was left unable to complete his day of work after running into the store for his next assignment, Jan. 21.

The man parked his 2001 Ford E250 van in the parking lot for approximately 10 minutes around 1 p.m. and when he returned, the rear door's lock had been punched and more than $2,000 worth of power and hand tools had been taken from the vehicle.

Unlocked

The owner of a 1995 Dodge pickup truck paid the price of leaving his doors unlocked Jan. 22.

The man returned to his vehicle from visiting friends in the 20800 block of Littlestone at approximately 3:14 a.m. to see two individuals flee his truck with his $500 car stereo. They drove away from the scene in a beige van. Police were notified and given a description of the vehicle but were unable to locate the suspects or the van.

Faulty Fob

A woman stopping to fill her fuel tank at a gas station in the 19200 block of Harper should have paid at the pump.

The woman left her vehicle to enter the filling station and pay the attendant at approximately 7:05 p.m., Jan. 24.

She told police she distinctly remembers pushing the button on her remote keychain to lock her doors. When she returned to the vehicle minutes later she found the doors were ajar and her purse, license, credit cards and cash were missing.

Redesigned ES 300: Another solid base hit from Lexus

Little things mean a lot — a couple of extra inches in height and length, some extra sound-absorbing materials, a smoother shape for less wind resistance, tighter, sportier handling.

from decades past. It is sleek and sophisticated. Its designers have managed to give it the panache many buyers are seeking without drawing too much attention to the vehicle. Thus, it is some favorite shopping haunts on the DelMarVa Peninsula that forms the eastern edge of the Chesapeake Bay. Its huge trunk and spacious back seat make the ES 300 a great companion for travelers and/or shoppers. You are more likely to run out of money or credit before you run out of space for your stuff.

But it's the hidden features of this car that give it true value. Standard are side air curtain airbags, front seat-mounted side impact air bags and dual-stage front air bags designed to deploy with greater or lesser force depending on the severity of impact.

Four-sensor, four-channel antilock brakes are standard as is electronic brake distribution. Brake assist and traction control are available in the vehicle skid control option.

According to Lexus, brake control senses a quick push of the brake pedal as emer-

The 2002 ES 300 has a longer wheelbase and is over two inches taller than its predecessor. That added height makes it easier to climb into and out of.

With its redesigned 2002 ES 300, Lexus is attempting to prove that a better whole is the sum of many improved parts.

The next generation ES 300 has a longer wheelbase and is over two inches taller than its predecessor. That added height makes it easier to climb into and out of the near-luxury sedan.

Yet the car's profile by no means looks like something always appropriate, whether running behind-the-scenes errands at the outlet mall or local discount big box or transporting one to an elegant soiree.

Our driving experiences tended to be in the former, less formal venue. The ES 300 took a brief vacation with us in Maryland and Virginia and looked right at home on the sandy shores of the Atlantic or outside include a leather trim interior, six-disc in-dash CD auto-changer, various audio packages, a wood-and-leather steering wheel, heated front seats, adaptive variable suspension, a power rear sun shade and all-season tires with chrome wheels.

We found the optional rain-sensing wiper system just amazing, turning itself on and adjusting wiper speed based on its meteorological intuition. The wipers know exactly how much moisture is on the windshield and act accordingly.

The 24-valve V-6 — the only engine available on the ES 300 — develops 210 horsepower. Its EPA fuel economy ratings are 21 mpg city, 29 mpg highway.

The new ES 300 provides a very, very smooth ride. That translates to a vehicle that is comfortable for long trips. This is no European sport sedan. You will be sheltered from many of the realities of our highways and byways. The driver and passengers are pampered rather than challenged.

The test vehicle had leather seating surface. Trendy as they are, we'll pass on leather in favor of fabric. Packages slip and slide too much on leather and they need to be wiped and cared for much like cloth must be vacuumed.

Base price for the ES 300 is $31,605, same as last year, according to Toyota spokesman John McCandless.

The 2002 Lexus ES 300 is as comfortable with errands as it is the opera.

Its huge trunk and spacious back seat make the ES 300 a great companion for travelers and/or shoppers.

Cookbook contains big measure of tradition

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

The scent of cinnamon and apples baking fills the house. A background hint of chopped pecans and Apple Jack hovers in the air.

It's time for deep dish apple pie.

"It smells wonderful — aromatherapy at its best," said Candy Huettelman.

It's also a family tradition, a link between past and future generations.

"We have been baking that pie with the kids every Thanksgiving and Christmas," said Huettelman, referring to her two college-age daughters, Kate and Kelly. "It's sort of nurturing."

Huettelman, a resident of Grosse Pointe Shores, learned the recipe from her mother and has passed it on to her daughters. Now it can be yours.

The recipe is one of about 350 local family favorites included in "Recipes to Remember," a community cookbook published in December. The book costs $20, half of which is being donated to the Van Elslander Cancer Center on the campus of St. John Health System in Grosse Pointe Woods.

"Recipes to Remember" is the project of Olga Tecos and Josephine Carducci, owners of La Moda salon in the Woods.

"About a year ago we wanted to choose a charity," Tecos said. She came up with the cookbook idea at a church convention.

Liz Mitchell, a development officer for the cancer center, said the cookbook "is going to introduce the Van Elslander Cancer Center to the community through a wonderful way — nutrition." There's a story behind each recipe. Mitchell submitted a recipe for French apple crepes. The mixture is a child's delight of maple syrup, sugar, sliced lemon and more maple syrup topped with whipped cream. Mitchell's late mother-in-law used to make the crepes. Now Mitchell thinks of her when baking them.

"She was a wonderful role model and a wonderful cook," Mitchell said. "Through this recipe, a little of her legacy passes on. There's a lot going on in this cookbook."

Tecos decided to raise money for the cancer center after having dinner with Grosse Pointe Shores residents Art and Mary Van Elslander, after whom the cancer center was named.

"I was mesmerized by their philanthropic ways and how down-to-earth they are," Tecos said. She called the center a "state-of-the-art facility. It's a privilege to have it in our community."

Mitchell said proceeds from the cookbook are a welcome gift.

"There always will be new equipment we need to buy," she said.

Tecos began the project by contacting Cookbook Publishers Inc., a Kansas company that has specialized in community cookbooks for more than 50 years. Company officials answered with encouragement and an instruction kit showing how to compile recipes and customize the book's layout.

"These are simple steps on the surface," said Kay Mogusar, Cookbook's vice president, "but each step involves a certain amount of work."

Mogusar said there is usually an "overwhelming response from people wanting to be a part of the cookbook. If people realize they are helping create a cookbook for their organization, it helps motivate them to turn in recipes," she said.

Tecos and Carducci selected a format, including a helpful spiral ring binding so the book can lie flat on the kitchen counter. They gathered recipes and let Cookbook Publishers do the typesetting and printing.

The book has 150 pages of recipes — appetizers, breads, soups, salads, vegetables, main dishes and desserts. A section of miscellaneous offerings includes squid sauce, a recipe Carducci learned from her Uncle Vic. It's "delicious," she wrote. Also included are helpful kitchen tips, such as how to adjust recipes for large groups — to cook a spaghetti dinner for 100 guests, you'll need five gallons of pasta and 12 loaves of bread. There are substitution charts, temperature tests for candy making, diet hints, food safety guidelines and an index.

Some helpful hints come from the cooks themselves.

In her recipe for brandy slush, Betsy Tomaka advised filling a glass 3/4 full with the slushy mixture of tea, sugar, lemonade, orange juice and brandy.

"Add enough ginger ale to make it drinkable," she wrote. "Recipes to Remember" contains family favorites submitted by local residents, employees and clients of La Moda, and people associated with the cancer center. Huettelman learned of the project from being a La Moda client and St. John administrator.

"The recipes are all tried and true," Tecos said.

Many families offered multiple recipes. John Huettelman, husband of Candy and father of Kate and Kelly, submitted his favorite formula for orange chicken. The recipe, which brings a special taste of dried mustard and ginger, had been passed down from his mother-in-law Schickley Kline.

"This was one of her favorites," said John Huettelman. "Whenever we went home for visits, she made that for me as a special dinner. Candy makes it absolutely superb."

"We are a product of our grandparents and parents," said Tecos. "We do things like they did. We were the students, now we're the teachers. We have to pass these traditions along."

"Recipes to Remember" is for sale at La Moda, 20091 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods; at Franklin Bank, 20247 Mack in the Woods; at the St. John Hospital gift shop and the Art Van Elslander Cancer Center at Mack and Moross. The book costs $20, $10 of which will be donated to the cancer center.

Her chapel-length veil was made of ivory tulle and she carried an all-white bouquet of freesia, roses, ranunculus, lamb's ear, eucalyptus and seasonal greens.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Jennifer Saavedra of Chicago.

Bridesmaids were Molly Malecek of Hackensack, Minn., Margaret Weber of Sacramento, Calif., Alexandra Boos of New York City and Sarah Schumaker of Chicago.

Attendants wore full-length dresses with moss green velvet bodices and satin skirts. They carried bouquets of scarlet red roses and seasonal greens.

The best man was Clyde Roper of Selma, N.C.

Groomsmen were John Helsabeck and Shaun Slattery, both of Raleigh, N.C., Jim Hartle of Modesto, Calif., and the bride's brother, Timothy Kazul of San Francisco.

The mother of the bride wore a full-length brown velvet skirt, beaded camisole and velvet jacket. She carried long-stemmed champagne roses.

The groom's mother wore an embroidered lavender silk top and skirt. She also carried long-stemmed champagne roses.

Readers were Susan Garille-Higgins, Lisa Brown, Kevin English and Melaine Moore.

The bride earned a bachelor of fine arts degree in graphic design and a bachelor of arts degree in communications from the University of Michigan. She is an art director with Modern Maturity magazine.

The groom earned a bachelor of science degree in political science from Appalachian State University and an MPA degree from North Carolina State University. He is a consultant with PriceWaterhouse Coopers.

The newlyweds traveled to Zihuatanejo, Mexico. They live in Washington, D.C.

Weyhing-Nadrowski

Heather Anne Weyhing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Weyhing of Sterling Heights, formerly of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Christopher George Nadrowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Nadrowski of Imlay City, on Oct. 6, 2001, at Burning Tree Golf and Country Club.

The Rev. Michael Frye officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the club.

The bride wore an ivory gown that featured a bodice decorated with pearls and beads, an empire waistline and a train. Her elbow-length veil was held in place by a headband decorated with pearls and beads and she carried a cascade of stephanotis, blue delphiniums and peach roses.

The matron of honor was Trisha Hall of Clawson.

Flower girls were Jessica Nadrowski of Brown City and Allison Nadrowski of Lapeer.

The matron of honor wore a navy satin floor-length dress and carried blue delphiniums, peach roses and ivy. Flower girls wore ivory dresses trimmed at the waist with fabric roses. They carried nosegays of ivory and peach roses and blue delphiniums.

Mr. and Mrs. George Christopher Nadrowski

The best man was Jason Guerbe of Yale.

Ushers were the bride's brother, Darren K. Weyhing of Clinton Township, and the groom's brother, Kevin Nadrowski of Metamora.

The ring bearer was Aaron Nadrowski of Lapeer.

The Pastor's Corner

Priorities

By the Rev. John Corrado
Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church

If I heard it once, I heard it 10, 30, 50 times: "It sure makes me take a look at my priorities."

The "it" was the events of Sept. 11. But that was more than four months ago and the weight of intervening events has made time seem thick; has made that day seem farther back than it really was.

An African proverb avers, "Death is always now." On that day, when thousands of ordinary people died in the middle of doing ordinary things, we believed it. Touched, if not gripped by fear and uncertainty, we held our loved ones near. We feared, not so much for ourselves but for our children. What kind of world would they be growing up in? Would our sons be drafted? If they were, would they be safer than the children who stayed home?

The raw immediacy of such feelings has been muted. And yet . . .

. . . and yet the truth is we always fear for our children. We fear for their well-being whether they are 3 months old, or 3 years old, or 33 years old.

With some perspective, the heightened anxiety we felt in September can help us lessen their real vulnerability.

If you live in Grosse Pointe, your son or daughter is less likely to die at the hands of a terrorist than by the hands of a drunken classmate on the steering wheel of a speeding car. Instead of worrying about terrorists over whom you have no control, how about doing something about situations over which parents ought to have at least some control?

Worry about the parties your kids go to and the people they go with. Be aware of what happens with alcohol in your home. Your children are at risk. You are not powerless unless you deny the risks at hand while worrying about matters over which you have no control.

Your children are at risk. We are all at risk. Smoking, drinking, taking drugs, promiscuous unprotected sex, driving on the freeways — these kill more Americans than wars have or than terrorism probably will. These are matters over which you have at least some control.

You have the power to transform your anxiety into awareness, your awareness into perspective and your perspective into action.

Will you choose to empower yourself by "minding" the perspective that can be yours?

If I've heard it once, I've heard it not several, but many times. Women and men, reflecting on how 9/11 reminded them that death can come suddenly in the midst of life, have said, "It sure makes you take a look at your priorities."

Yes, it does — or should.

Celebrate Life concert

A Celebrate Life concert will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 16, at Grace Community Church, 21001 Moross. The concert will feature Greg Long, Shaun Groves and Basix and will benefit Pregnancy Aid, a local crisis pregnancy center. A special message will be delivered by Dr. James Dobson of Focus on the Family.

Activity keeps mind, body healthy

Senior programs offered at U-M and in communities can help stave off memory loss and disabilities

By Kara Gavin

As World War II raged through Africa and Europe, young Army nurse Mildred McGregor and her unit cared for wounded front-line soldiers from the desert to Europe to the Russian frontier. Now 88, she's capturing her memories of that time on paper through a writing group for the elderly at the University of Michigan's Turner Senior Resource Center.

But even as she records the story of the terrible war so that younger generations can prevent it from happening again, she may be helping herself in more ways than she knows. By keeping her brain active and focused on her writing, giving herself goals and getting involved in new activities, she may be staving off or slowing memory loss, dementia and physical disability.

In fact, says U-M physician Norman Foster, M.D., who specializes in diseases of the aging brain, even though there's no sure way to prevent Alzheimer's disease or other brain disorders, evidence suggests that seniors can cut their risk by keeping both brain and body occupied.

"It is true that if you don't use it, you'll lose it, and so it's important for elderly people to be involved in all sorts of community activities and keep physically active," says Foster, a professor of neurology who heads the Cognitive Disorders Clinic at the H-M Health System's Geriatrics Center. He is also associate director of the Michigan Alzheimer's Disease Research Center and a senior research scientist at the U-M's Institute of Gerontology. "As we learn more about the brain, it appears to be true that the more we use it, the more benefits we have."

"There's good epidemiological evidence that elderly individuals who keep physically and mentally active have less risk of developing memory problems and even less risk of Alzheimer's itself. There are also increasing numbers of studies that show that people who do have Alzheimer's or other dementias benefit from physical activities and limit their disability."

With 5 percent of people over the age of 65 already affected by memory problems that hamper their everyday life, 30 percent of people over age 85 suffering from some sort of dementia, and the country's elderly population growing, the importance of keeping body and brain healthy has never been greater. Though some memory loss is normal, it's not inevitable.

So, Foster urges his patients — and all seniors — to get involved in activities, and to walk a mile or exercise for half an hour each day. And, whether it's through the U-M or a local Agency on Aging, he advises everyone to join programs that can help keep brains sharp and bodies fit.

Neuroscience research and other investigations into the brain's function have yielded important clues in recent years about why active older people often do better overall, explains Foster.

"Social activities are important to the elderly because it stimulates their activities, and their brain function," says Foster. And social interaction with other people or involvement in new mind-based activities prompts the brain to function in new ways as people express their internal thoughts. Studies on these effects and more are under way at U-M, led by Foster and his colleagues. Many are open to U-M Geriatrics Center patients. More research will be needed to see if a clear long-term physical effect can be shown to back up observations made across groups of older people, Foster adds, but today's seniors don't need to wait for scientific proof of a specific effect to reap the general benefits of staying active.

"Volunteer work is a great option for older people looking to stimulate their brains," says Foster. "It gives them an opportunity to interact with people in other age groups and outside their family, it stimulates interest, and it can be a great help to the community."

Although some seniors might see their existing health or transportation problems as obstacles to getting involved in activities, Foster notes that there are many options available. "Even people with physical disabilities can keep mentally active by doing crossword puzzles, reading the newspaper, keeping involved in social activities, and taking advantage of public transportation," he says, adding that classes, cards, chess and conversation all count as brain stimulators.

Something as simple as moderate movement around the house can help keep muscles and balance going, and physical activity like regular walking can help keep diabetes and heart disease in check. And for those who can't drive, many communities have senior transport programs to get people to activity centers, educational institutions and shopping.

For those already facing memory loss, it's especially crucial to keep going. "People who have memory problems tend to withdraw from activities, so it's particularly important that they be involved in social activities and things that are interesting," says Foster.

Depression is not natural part of aging

(NAPSI) — Scientists are working on ways to help older Americans deal with depression. Depression affects more than six million Americans age 65 and over. It is not, however, a normal part of the aging process.

Depression is a medical condition that can be successfully managed. Special attention to treatment is important since many older patients are prescribed multiple medications, which may interact with antidepressants.

To meet the special needs of older Americans with depression, the first-ever Expert Consensus Guidelines solely for the treatment of geriatric depression were recently published in the medical journal Postgraduate Medicine. The report, entitled "Pharmacotherapy of Depressive Disorders in Older Patients," is based on a detailed survey of 50 of the country's leading experts specializing in geriatric depression.

The guidelines indicate that selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs) are the most appropriate antidepressants to use in the treatment of all types of geriatric depression. They specifically identify Celexa (citalopram HBr) as the first choice SSRI for the treatment of depression in older people. In addition, 96 percent of the expert panel members said Celexa should be the first-line therapy for older depressed patients with and without dementia. Celexa has a favorable drug interaction and side effect profile.

"Up until the development of guidelines, physicians had to rely on clinical studies that do not quite address the complexity of the care of geriatric patients," said George S. Alexopoulos, MD, professor of psychiatry at Weill Medical College of Cornell University, director of the Cornell Institute of Geriatric Psychiatry and senior investigator of the study that led to the development of the guidelines. "The guidelines answer clinical questions that provide clinicians with information about how to approach the specific care of geriatric patients."

Adults over the age of 65 are the fastest-growing segment of the population, and up to one-quarter are at serious risk for developing clinical depression. The symptoms of clinical depression in older adults can vary greatly and often interfere with the ability to function normally for a prolonged time. They may include:

• Persistent sadness lasting two or more weeks
• Feeling slowed-down
• Withdrawing from regular social activities
• Excessive worries about finances and health problems
• Difficulty sleeping or concentrating and
• Feeling worthless or helpless.

Make, deliver Valentines

By Sharon Maier

SOC Executive Director
This month marks my one year anniversary as Executive Director of Services for Older Citizens. My mind wanders back to what brought me to SOC two years ago and what brought me to work each day.

Someone once said, "It isn't the days we will remember, it's the moments." Some moments have so much magnitude that we don't just remember them, they change us forever.

When I was 15 years old, I had one of those moments. An ambulance was parked outside our house; the neighbors were gathered around gawking and my dad's body was being carried away on stretcher.

This moment changed who I was and who I would become forever. He left behind my mom, a multiple sclerosis patient who had been in a wheelchair since I was in second grade, and me.

Suddenly I was responsible for home maintenance, yard maintenance and Mom maintenance. I remember trying to keep up and falling a little bit behind in every area of my life.

People were quick to criticize. The lawn wasn't neat enough; the groceries weren't nutritious enough.

That's what drove me here to make a difference, one person at a time, in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods.

All of us have a place in making a difference. Perhaps you could visit a senior once a week — my mom would have loved this. Be an on-call volunteer to pick up groceries or drive to doctor's appointments.

We have one client that just wants to get out and go to the hairdresser once every two weeks. It's her social time and she's too frail for the PAATS van. Still, she would like to go.

Since last February SOC has found her a ride every time — only by the skin of our teeth, many times. The thing that changed for me the most that day wasn't the burdens I encountered but the people who volunteered to help my mom and me. A nun helped me get clothes to wear. She helped my mom get people to sit with her and she helped me find a way to grocery shop and clean up the weeds. She wasn't judgmental. She was willing to go the extra mile to help us.

Life moved on and blessed me with the ability to volunteer and help others volunteer. I was able to make a difference, one person at a time. The rewards from volunteering can be as simple as appreciating my health when I help someone who is sick. Or it can be as complex as connecting with another human being.

If you've never volunteered, Heart to Heart, SOC's Valentine celebration is the perfect opportunity for you. Seniors cherish these small tokens of love. One senior saved her Valentine all year and showed it to everyone who visited her. Her daughter stopped in over Christmas to let us know how much her mother appreciated the Valentine we delivered last February. There aren't many things in this world that last that long.

Individuals, church groups and schools are invited to help brighten up Valentine's Day for a senior. It's as easy as making one Valentine, or a few Valentines. You can also join us for Valentine delivery, Saturday Feb. 9, at 10 a.m. at Services for Older Citizens, 17150 Waterloo in the City of Grosse Pointe, when we will meet for breakfast, then head out to deliver more than 2,000 Valentines.

If you would like to be part of this outreach please call Suzanne Mondalek at SOC at (313) 882-9600. Who knows? You might experience a moment that changes you forever.

Cancer patients can get a beauty boost

Looking good makes anyone feel better. But it's especially true for women who have undergone radiation treatment or chemotherapy. Bon Secours Cottage CancerCare is offering the "Look Good... Feel Better" program to help women deal with the physical effects of cancer treatment.

"Radiation and chemotherapy may not only cause a woman's hair to fall out, but also affect skin and nail color and condition," said Jackie Fisher, director of the CancerCare program for Bon Secours Cottage Health Services. "Helping these women look good improves their self-esteem. Consequently, they may be more inclined to get out and enjoy their favorite activities."

At the "Look Good... Feel Better" sessions, specially trained and certified volunteer cosmetologists help women choose and apply makeup that lifts their looks as well as their spirits. Participants are encouraged to bring a wig if they have one, for assistance with styling and care. Wig selection and the fashionable use of scarves, turbans and hats also are discussed and demonstrated.

The next "Look Good... Feel Better" session takes place from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday, Feb. 4, in the fourth floor conference room at Cottage Hospital, 159 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Co-sponsored by the American Cancer Society, the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association Foundation and the National Cosmetology Association, "Look Good... Feel Better" is a nonmedical service that does not promote any cosmetic product line. The program is free.

Attendance is limited to ensure that each individual receives special attention. Women receiving cancer treatment at any health care facility are welcome. Call (586) 779-7900.

Blood pressure screenings available at Bon Secours Cottage

As part of an ongoing community health program, Bon Secours Cottage offers free blood pressure screenings at three locations. Staff and trained volunteers are available to check community members for undetected cases of hypertension, to provide nationally accepted guidelines for follow-up with a health care professional, and to furnish additional screening and health education information.

High blood pressure hurts

By The Community Health Status Advisory Board
It's virtually painless and symptomless. Nevertheless, high blood pressure can hurt your body in many ways. Left uncontrolled, it can increase your risk for stroke, heart attack, heart failure and kidney failure. More specifically, it can lead to the following problems:

Artery damage. While artery hardening and reduced elasticity occur in everyone to some degree as part of the aging process, high blood pressure seems to speed up the process. It also can cause deposits of fat to collect in the arteries, a condition called atherosclerosis, or it can result in an aneurysm, an enlarged, bulging blood vessel.

Thickening of the heart muscle. The heart muscle thickens as it works harder to pump blood against the higher pressure in the vessels. Narrowed blood vessels cannot supply enough blood to the heart. The thickened muscle may have a difficult time pumping enough blood to meet the body's needs, causing fluid to build up in the lungs, feet and legs.

A blocked, ruptured or torn blood vessel. If this occurs in the brain, a stroke results. If it affects the vessels in the eyes, it can result in loss of vision.

Weakened or narrowed blood vessels in the kidneys. This can prevent the kidneys from functioning. The American Heart Association estimates that one in four adults in the United States has high blood pressure, but because there are no symptoms, nearly one-third of these people don't even know they have it. Fortunately, high blood pressure can be easily detected and, once you know you have it, you can work with your physician to bring it down into a safe range.

The good news is that taking action against high blood pressure can have dramatic results. Controlling high blood pressure for five years or more decreases the risk of heart attack by 20 percent and the risk of heart failure by more than 50 percent.

A variety of medications are available to control high blood pressure. Your physician can prescribe one that's appropriate for you.

In addition, the following lifestyle changes can significantly lower or control your high blood pressure with or without medication:

Maintain a healthy weight. For some people, losing excess weight is enough to bring down blood pressure.

Eat healthy. Eat a nutritionally balanced diet, emphasizing grains, fruits, vegetables and low-fat dairy products. If your blood pressure is sodium sensitive, watch your intake of salt and be aware of the sodium contained in processed foods.

Exercise. Not only does it help with weight loss, even simple exercise — like walking for 30 minutes several days a week — can have a positive, measurable effect on blood pressure.

Limit caffeine and alcohol. Both can affect your blood pressure. Remember, too, that caffeine is an ingredient in many soft drinks.

Reduce stress. While it may seem impossible, you can reduce ongoing stress by making changes in your daily routine — get more organized, simplify your

Adopt a new attitude toward food

By Susanne Consiglio Special Writer
The holidays are over — one whole month of eating, celebrating, and the resulting pounds to show for it. Are you past the indigestion? The sugar highs and lows? It's time to stop over-indulging and get back to some sense of normal eating.

Why? To get rid of the physical discomforts, lethargy, and any weight you may have gained. It's better to get the pounds off now before you carry them into spring, summer and next holiday season.

Get on track with a new food attitude. Start by downsizing your sugar intake. While this wonderful sweetener is not the enemy, we just don't know when to stop.

Toss out, give away and take a break from cookies, candy and other desserts that are too difficult to limit to a single portion.

One pound of body fat equals 3,500 calories. Eating 500 less calories daily, along with increasing your physical activity, will help you to lose between one and three pounds a week.

As long as you are establishing healthy goals, get yourself used to water or flavored sugarless water instead of soda pop. A 20-ounce regular soda contains 17 teaspoons of sugar or 250 calories.

If you have a "sweet tooth" drinking diet soda may continue to reinforce your cravings for sweets. When you stop eating sugary foods, fresh fruit will taste sweeter — a pleasant surprise. The calories are lower too.

Get into a regular schedule of meals and snacks. Bring fruit, vegetables, vegetable juice or small-size energy bars for quick between-meal pick-me-ups during your day. It's better to be slightly hungry at lunch or dinner, instead of starving. Eat because you are hungry, not because you are having a bad day or you're bored with what's on TV.

Avoid the evening snack routine. This is a major contributor to weight gain, especially during the winter when we are less active.

If you must snack, make the portion smaller. Avoid eating for at least two hours before bedtime. Depending on the time you eat dinner, you may not even need an evening snack.

Find a friend or family member to exercise with on a regular basis. Go walking together outdoors or inside the mall when the temperature is too cold. Invite a friend to your house if you have two pieces of exercise equipment. Create your own private gym atmosphere and help each other to stay committed to weekly goals.

Make time with your kids to do some type of physical activity. Twenty or 30 minutes of activity most days of the week will increase your metabolic rate for burning calories and promote weight loss.

Sitting on the couch will not.

The reality is: If you want to lose weight and keep it off, you will need to make changes that you can live with in the long run. Ridiculously strict low-calorie diets will not last or keep weight off.

Stop the short-term quick-fix yo-yo routines. They can make you sick. It's a new year. Don't think of this as a "diet" for January, but instead as a plan to last you for a long time. Gradual changes will produce results: weight loss!

Get enough sleep. You'll be better able to tackle stress and have more energy for that all-important exercise.

High blood pressure is a silent killer. The only way to know if you have it is to have your blood pressure taken. It's easy, fast and painless.

If you have high blood pressure, follow your physician's advice. If your pressure is within normal ranges, practice good-health habits to keep it that way.

Food allergies may cause weight gain

(NAPSI) — Your intolerance to certain foods may be keeping you from losing weight. This is the message in "Your Hidden Food Allergies Are Making You Fat" (Prima Publishing, $15) by Dr. Rudy Rivera and Roger D. Deutsch.

Even such wholesome foods as fruits, fish and wheat can be triggers that cause the body to change its metabolic processes. Not only can this cause the body to resist weight loss, but it may also lead to medical conditions ranging from migraines to arthritis and fatigue.

The book also details some interesting scientific studies. In one, women who addressed their food intolerances were able to not only lose weight, but also lost fat from their thighs — something they had previously been unable to do.

People can determine their food intolerances with the help of a simple blood test called the ALCAT Test. In a recent clinical study conducted by medical experts, 98 percent of the subjects following the ALCAT plan lost weight or improved their body composition.

Eliminating foods you are allergic to from your diet is a key factor in losing weight.

Detroit Institute of Arts is alive with the sound of music

It is no accident that the word "arts" in the name of the Detroit Institute of Arts is plural. But this wonderful institution is much, much more than a collection of paintings and sculpture. Music is a prominent element of its diverse programs.

Some musical events like Brunch with Bach and the recitals presented by Pro Musica have been going on for a long time. Pro Musica has been at the DIA since it opened in 1927. Museum management recognized that combining diverse attractions and different artistic disciplines works a synergy. The result is more than the sum of the parts.

Putting it plainly, it is more fun to attend a program that is enlivened by music, food, good fellowship and entertainment. The DIA offers many such programs.

The perennial success of Brunch with Bach makes the case. On Sunday, Feb. 10, for example, jazz, pop and rhythm and blues enthusiasts will arrive around 11 a.m. for a tasty meal and music by Mamma's Lickin' Stick Clarinet Ensemble.

Brunch subscribers will relax with their entrees, pastries and beverages at tables in the Kresge

State of the Arts

By Alex Suczek

Court. The cost is $22. Music-only guests get to sit on the stairway for a mere $5.

The price of admission includes access to the museum, making this a possible full day of arts.

The mood is more refined on March 10 when the Brunch with Bach program brings Dave Emerson on the French horn and Rob Conway on piano. Their program will be a recital of music by Mozart and Schumann.

For a more formal atmosphere and for more serious music lovers, Pro Musica is presenting one of the world's greatest string quartets in the museum's intimate recital hall on Wednesday, March 6. The Artemis Quartet will offer a fascinating program of recently discovered and authenticated transcriptions by Mozart of fugues from Bach's "Well Tempered Clavier" and a Beethoven quartet considered by the composer and by many music lovers as his greatest.

Pro Musica is not just a concert in the museum, however. In recognition of the German origin of the Artemis Quartet, two curators will lead a tour of the DIA's German gallery collection. Guests will gather in the Woodward lobby at 7 p.m. to be taken to the third floor gallery, then back down for the 8 p.m. musical performance.

All Pro Musica concerts are followed by an afterglow, with light refreshments in the Romanesque Hall and Kresge Court. Concertgoers welcome it as an opportunity to talk to the performers, review the evening's experiences and share them with friends as they relax over their refreshments at romantically lighted tables.

A more recent tradition is the museum's Friday evening format. First Fridays (held on the first Friday of each month), consists of a variety of arts activities and entertainments to provide the public with a diverse and worthwhile evening at the DIA.

Tomorrow night, for example, museum-goers will gather to hear a great gospel-singing group, The Fairfield Four, in the Rivera Court. The group's a cappella harmonic style has earned many awards and accolades.

Meanwhile, in other parts of the building, there will be a guided tour of African art and one of the highlights of the whole collection.

There are also drawing classes for youth and adults, with no experience necessary and all materials provided.

But the program is not First Friday anymore. It's every Friday.

On Feb. 8 there will be a recital by soprano Glenda Kirkland and a drop-in workshop on making Carnival masks. A tour of the American galleries will be available as well as a screening of some of the earliest and most imaginative films every made.

On top of all that, the museum's theater is an appealing location for productions by other organizations. An exciting example in the field of entertainment for young people is a live musical, life-sized puppet show, "The Reluctant Dragon," that will take to the DIA stage this Saturday, Feb. 2, at 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Call (313) 341-3466.

For all other events and programs, call (313) 833-4005.

Giving corporations the business

By Helen Gregory
Special Writer

What is wrong with this picture? AOL Time Warner went to court Jan. 22 against Microsoft on the basis of unfair practices violating antitrust laws.

Here's an apparently unrelated bit of strangeness. Why do huge corporations cut corners on equipment?

If Enron's moneymen had a better grade of paper shredder, they might be in less trouble.

Moving on, why is it when someone in a high position does something that shows what might be conceivably a little heart, or makes a gesture to show some trace of humanity, journalists get suspicious?

Probably, it's just logical. As I was debating whether to write about big guys bickering with other big guys over unfair competition, or possibly the lack of quality paper shredders in high places (Ollie North's jammed, Enron's didn't cross-cut), one of my favorite columnists trashed William Clay Ford Jr.

The writer faulted him for crying as he announced the cuts.

This same columnist thought it was no big whoop that Ford gave up a year's salary.

Humor is unkind. That fact doesn't stop any of us.

The writer in question always makes me laugh but in the interests of humor he isn't always fair. I suppose I could add, neither am I.

Ford's tears were real. Most men have a hard time crying in private, let alone in public.

His history — going all the way back to prep school — shows he might have some feeling for people who aren't in his tax bracket.

His salary is phenomenal. One year's worth can help the company. Maybe it doesn't make him bleed, but that's not the point, is it? The point is, he offered some of his own.

No one noticed Lee Iacocca giving up a year's salary as he begged the government (read "taxpayer") to bail out Chrysler.

Are any other CEO's out there with endangered companies giving up even one year's salary to help the business? Kmart maybe?

Some small-business men are known to do it in the first five years or so, but not the CEO's of long-established multi-billion dollar corporations.

Ford didn't steal pension funds, hide the money in Barbados and shred the records to cover.

Maybe he wasn't crying for the lives of the people he has to lay off. Maybe he only loves the company. I don't know. I do know he knows the company is dependant upon its work force. At the very least, he recognizes the value of his people as a work force.

At the most, the guy has some imagination and has listened to the hard-luck stories on the line and believed them.

What a sucker. Ya gotta love a guy like that.

My take on this? What he did was the smartest bit of business I've ever seen. It could have been played by Jimmy Stewart.

He may have saved the business without selling the ranch. The business is his life, but it's also the lives of all the little guys involved in it, too. He can only help them from a position of power. It looks to me as if he's the right man for the job.

I talked this over with Peggy Kitchel, librarian at the Woods Pointe branch of the Grosse Pointe Public Library, who periodically supplies us with lists of great websites. On this month's list she offered some great business sites you might want to explore.

The Report Gallery at www.reportgallery.com contains more than 2,200 annual reports and covers most of the Fortune 500 companies.

Peggy's husband, Andy, offered some watchdog sites, including The Center for Public Integrity at www.publicintegrity.org, which covers ethics-related issues in the public sector.

Library Director Vicky Bloom found www.econ-dash.net useful for economic indicators in a clear format for quick and easy assessment.

We have a number of good business sources marked for you on our website at www.gp.lib.mi.us, under "Online Reference," including Info USA, Standard and Poors, and Value Line. They are licensed for in-house use only, however, so you'd have to visit the library.

Of course we still have the paper sources: the Wall Street Journal, Mergent's, Value Line, etc. You find books on business in the 330's for economics and company histories; and the 650's for management.

The outcome of AOL Time Warner vs. Microsoft is anybody's guess. Enron sunk itself with greed.

As for my columnist, I'll still read and enjoy his work, but I'll take him with a grain of salt. Same as I have to take myself.

Comments? Questions? Reach me online at hgregory@gp.lib.mi.us.

Super Bowl dessert

Just a few more days until Super Bowl Sunday. If you're hosting a Super Bowl party, it's time to get things rolling. Plan your menu and shop as soon as possible.

If you're following my game plan, all you need is this week's recipe for chocolate chip lava cakes. These coffee cup desserts can be served to your guests while they're enjoying the second half of the game.

Chocolate Chip Lava Cakes

1 cup flour
3/4 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
5 teaspoons instant coffee
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup (2 sticks) salted butter, melted
1 cup sugar
1 cup light brown sugar, packed
4 large eggs
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1 6 oz. package chocolate chips

In a medium bowl, sift together the flour, cocoa powder, instant coffee and baking powder. Set aside. In another medium bowl, stir together the melted butter with both sugars. Add the eggs, one at a time. Stir in the vanilla and almond extract. Carefully add the dry mixture to the wet mixture (warning; the cocoa mix will "fly" and can become messy). Keep stirring until the batter is well incorporated.

Divide the batter evenly into 8 1-cup oven safe coffee cups. Top each cup with a heaping tablespoon of chocolate chips and gently press the chips into the batter. Cover mugs and refrigerate for at least one hour or up to one day.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Remove mugs from refrigerator at least 5 minutes before you put them in the oven. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. The cakes will puff up and be crusty. A tester will not come out dry, but will have some thick batter attached to it.

Carefully remove the mugs from the oven and allow to cool for at least 10 minutes before serving. Top with your favorite (store-bought) whipped cream.

Advanced cooks can whip together 1 cup of chilled whipping cream with 3 tablespoons of powdered sugar and 1 tablespoon instant coffee. The result is a delicious topping for this above-average chocolate dessert. These tasty cakes are rich like brownies. The coffee lends a perfect accent to the cocoa. Caution: The cakes stay hot in the middle for quite some time.

I plucked this recipe from Bon Appetit magazine. It is a show-stopper. As for the rest of my Super Bowl meal, the baked pasta with shrimp recipe won first place in a cook-off sponsored by the American Dairy Association. Thanks to Marc Arneau for the cappuccino (puree of black bean) soup recipe.

I would serve the soup, in coffee mugs, during the first half of the game.

I would set the table in the dining room for salad and pasta at half-time.

Dessert — again in coffee mugs — would be served during the fourth quarter. When the game is over, so is the party.

May the best team win and may your numbers be in the right box when time runs out.

New coaches get first taste of North-South volleyball rivalry

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Kim Brefka and Kevin Nugent got their first taste of the volleyball rivalry between Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South last week and both coaches liked what they saw. So did the fans who packed the North gym for the match. "It was a battle to the end," said North's Brefka, whose team came out ahead 15-9, 8-15, 15-9 in a match that was even closer than the final score indicates. "It was the most intense match I've ever coached," South's Nugent agreed. "I was thrilled by the whole atmosphere," he said. "We had to earn every point and so did they. It was back and forth. The crowd was great. The kids really thrive on that." Brefka, who previously coached at South Lake, and Nugent, who was East Detroit's coach last year, are both in their first seasons at North and South.

North's Erin Tobin served the last six points of the third game and Jill Bramos spiked the final point to give the Norsemen the victory in the Macomb Area Conference White Division match.

"North's experience came through at the end," Nugent said. "We had some breakdowns in our serve receive game."

Brefka enjoyed seeing her team execute the basics. "We did the things we work on in practice," she said. "The girls stayed focused for the entire match. I could see them doing the things I've taught them in practice."

The teams were tied 9-9 when Tobin stepped to the line to serve. She had an ace serve and Bramos also had a block for a point during North's 6-0 run.

South won the second game with a similar late spurt. The Blue Devils were leading 10-8 when Caroline DiVirgil served five straight points, capping the run with an ace serve. Liz Laciura had two of the points on kills. Andrea Palmer was also strong at the net for South. The first game of the match featured six straight service points by Meghan Brennan to give North a 12-7 lead. Brennan started the run with an ace and also finished it with an ace serve. The spurt also featured strong hitting by Shelby Simmon and Bramos.

North eventually built its lead to 14-6 but South came back to make it 14-9 before the Norsemen got the final point on a serve by Tobin.

Leigh Ann Colson made a key contribution for North with seven service points, including three aces, and seven digs.

"She's one of our leaders in service points in every match," Brefka said. "She always seems to come through with the big serve when we need it to bring us back in a match or to put it away."

Brennan finished with nine service points, seven kills and 13 digs; Simmon had 11 kills and 14 digs; Tobin had 10 points, 24 assists and 10 digs and Bramos finished with 10 kills.

"Jill had 20 touches," Brefka said. "Even if she doesn't get the block, she'll slow the ball down, which is important."

Among the other South players who had strong games were Judy Turnbull and Jennifer O'Brien. "That was one of the best games I've seen Jen play," Nugent said. "She really showed her maturity."

South nips North in OT

By Chuck Klonke

Grosse Pointe South's basketball team's overtime victory against Grosse Pointe North last week didn't make either coach particularly happy.

the stretch in the Blue Devils' 43-41 win.

And North's Matt Trombley wasn't pleased with his team's performance during the first three quarters.

"We played 26 minutes and you have to play 32," Petrouleas said. "We didn't

HW grapplers beat East, Northwest

By Bob St. John
Staff writer

Harper Woods' wrestling team blasted league rivals Lutheran East and Lutheran Northwest last week, winning 56-0 and 58-6.

"Our kids want to win a conference championship," Harper Woods head coach Adam Schihl said. "We've been second best, but now we want to be No. 1."

Against host East, Schihl watched Kevin Sparks (119-pound class) pin Brendan Kelso and Adam DiGiovanni (189 pounds) pin Matt Goetz.

Paul Riese (171 pounds) beat Dave Tapling, 13-1, while Jake Bertges (140 pounds) beat Adam Goetz, 17-11.

In one of the more intriguing matches, Matt Tarmina (130 pounds) beat East's Dexter Shorter 10-2, while Mike Monahan (152 pounds) and Frank Pietrangelo (135 pounds) won by void.

The match within the match was between sophomores Chris Jurczak of East and Bobby Monahan of Harper Woods.

"Chris and Bobby have a nice rivalry going," East head coach John Widmer said. "They are pretty equal and I think they have split their career matches."

Jurczak got a leg up on Monahan, winning 4-2, thanks to a two-point takedown midway through the third period.

"Chris and the other underclassmen are giving it their all, which is what our program needs to stay competitive," Widmer said. "I want our numbers to increase and hopefully they will in years to come."

In the Northwest match, the Pioneers' Josh Kirsten (103 pounds), Bobby Monahan (112 pounds) and Riese (160 pounds) won by void.

Pietrangelo (135 pounds) won a 13-2 major decision, while Sparks (125 pounds), Mike Monahan (152 pounds), DiGiovanni (171 pounds), Steve Orjada (215 pounds) and Jeremy Myers (275 pounds) won by pin.

"We're ready for the second half of our league dual meet schedule," Schihl said. "Everyone is pretty healthy and ready to wrestle."

East wasn't as fortunate against Northwest, losing 40-18.

Shorter lost 23-12, while Alex Goetz and Matt Goetz were pinned.

Tapling and Jurczak won by pin, while Kelso won by void to account for the Eagles' 18 points.

"Our lack of numbers kills us in dual meets," Widmer said. "Despite that, our kids are giving it 110 percent."

The Harper Woods wrestling team improved to 4-0 in the Metro Conference and 12-9-1 overall; Lutheran East fell to 0-3 and 2-13.

Coming up for the Pioneers is the Hazel Park Team Tournament on Saturday, Feb. 2, and their final conference dual meet on Wednesday, Feb. 6, at home.

Next for the Eagles is an away meet on Saturday, Feb. 2, against Memphis, and an away league meet on Wednesday, Feb. 6, against Hamtramck and host Livonia Clarenceville.

North girls end their second-half drought with win over Bloomfield

It was a long time coming but Grosse Pointe North's girls hockey team got its first victory of the second half of the season last week with an 8-0 win over Bloomfield.

"We knew this second half was going to be tough but we didn't really expect to be 0-3-1 after the first two weeks," said coach Tim Van Eckoute. "It's been difficult on all of us, mentally and emotionally. The Bloomfield game helped erase some of that."

The Norsemen's scoring was spread out with seven different goal scorers and 11 players collecting points.

Dana Chicklas led North with two goals, while Chelsea Skorupski had a goal and two assists. Megan Irving, Katie McPharlin, Heather Flemon, Sara Van Raendonck and Christine Schroder contributed two points apiece.

Also picking up points were Christina Ventimiglia, Kristina Wald, Kiran Kilaru and Nikki Byron.

Lauren Colaluca and Alexa Watkins split time in goal to share the shutout.

Bloomfield goalie Sara Teague also played well.

"Fifty-two shots is about two games' worth of work," Van Eckoute said. "She should be very proud of her effort."

Van Eckoute was pleased with every phase of his team's performance.

"A win of any kind is exciting, especially after the last couple of weeks," he said. "(This) win is even better because we were able to accomplish the pre-game goals we set for ourselves.

We took care of our end of the rink first. We put forth a strong offensive attack and we worked on specific skills throughout the game."

The Norsemen also played well last weekend in their annual trip to Grand Rapids to play the West Michigan Thunder 19-and-under travel team.

Although North lost the games 2-1 and 3-2, Van

Eckoute was very happy with his team's performance.

"We've played each other each of the last three seasons and each year we are more and more competitive," he said. "This was a series that could have gone either way."

"West Michigan is a very good team with great kids and coaches. We have had a great time each year we've gone over (to Grand Rapids). Playing a team of their caliber helps us tremendously to prepare for the big games we have coming up."

Senior captains Jennifer Boutin, Alyssa Simon and Kathryn Barlow accounted for all of North's scoring in the two games.

Boutin had the only North goal in Saturday's contest.

"She ripped a slapshot on the fly from the far-left hashmark and beat the West Michigan goalie in the top corner," Van Eckoute said. "It was a great shot at any level."

Barlow started the scoring in Sunday's game with a tip-in from in front of the net, assisted by Simon and Boutin. Simon scored North's second goal on a spin move from the high slot.

"The whole play was strong," Van Eckoute said. "Boutin separated the West Michigan defenseman from the puck. Barlow picked up the loose puck and put it right on Simon's tape."

Van Eckoute said that the Norsemen not only gained benefits from the trip on the ice, but off it as well.

"Our kids came together as a team this weekend, both on and off the ice," he said. "We watched 'Remember the Titans' on the bus ride across the state and spent a great evening out to dinner as well."

"These are the things that bring a sense of family to a team. We have some very important games in the next two weeks. I think this past weekend will prove to be a defining moment in our season."

Cranbrook gives Blue Devils another scare

Cranbrook Kingswood has given Grosse Pointe South's unbeaten girls hockey team some major scares this season.

In their first two meetings the Blue Devils escaped with one-goal victories in each game. In last Saturday's contest it took a goal by South's Heather Doughty with 30 seconds remaining in the third period to salvage a 3-3 tie with the second-place Cranes and keep the Blue Devils undefeated in the Michigan Metro Girls Hockey League (8-0-1) and overall (10-0-1).

Cranbrook had taken a 3-2 lead with a minute left when Julia Kazmir's shot ricocheted off another player into the South net.

But 30 seconds later, Doughty took a pass from Phoebe Zimmerman and wrestled her way into scoring position. With a Cranes defender hanging on to her, Doughty slapped the puck into the net to tie the game at 3-3.

Cranbrook's Tarasai Karega threatened to score her second goal of the game as time ran out, but solid defensive work by Doughty and Cassie Weaver kept Karega from getting off a clean shot.

The Cranes scored two quick goals early in the first period to take a 2-0 lead.

South got one of them back with 6:24 left in the period when Weaver took a pass from Julie Moore, weaved through traffic and put the puck in the net.

Both teams got strong goaltending in a scoreless second period. Lauren Stanek and Caitlin Kefgen split the goaltending for South.

The Blue Devils' offense finally came to life early in the third period. Zimmerman's shot was stopped by the Cranbrook goalie. The rebound came to Sarah Parker, who flipped the puck to Libby Klein.

Klein poked it into the net to tie the game at 2-2.

South had a 5-on-3 power play and Parker nearly scored on a backhand shot but the Cranes' goalie made a good glove save.

Earlier, South got two goals apiece from Doughty, Nicki Brown and Zimmerman in an 8-1 victory over defending league champion Ladywood.

The three also anchored the Blue Devils' penalty killing unit that killed off two 5-on-3 power plays and scored two shorthanded goals.

Zimmerman opened the scoring less than a minute into the game after taking a short pass from Doughty. Five minutes later, Zimmerman's slap shot rebounded to Emily Shefferly, who made it 2-0.

South continued to pressure the Blazers in the second period with Doughty scoring early in the period, assisted by Zimmerman.

Midway through the second period, Parker dug the puck out of the corner behind the Ladywood net and fed a pass to Brown, who slapped it in from the slot area.

Stanek made a good save during a Ladywood power play to preserve the shutout and South closed the period on a goal by Doughty, assisted by Klein and Zimmerman.

Parker and Zimmerman scored shorthanded goals in the third period. South lost its shutout with 2:55 remaining when Ladywood's Lauren Hess beat Kefgen on a breakaway.

Stanek stopped six shots in the first two periods and Kefgen made seven saves in the third period. South returned 24 shots on the Blazers' net.

GPHA Chiefs win Snowball tournament

The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Chiefs are named after the Charlestown Chiefs from the movie "Slap Shot" and the local Squirt team prides itself on its own style of "old-time hockey."

The Chiefs recently took first place in the Snowball Tournament at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink, outscoring their opponents 16-4.

Team play and balance was a characteristic of the Chiefs' championship run. Ten players — forwards and defensemen — contributed to the scoring. Chris Thomas led the Chiefs with seven goals and three assists. Annie Shepard, Alex Piku and Eric Sandmair each had three points. Justin Grobbel and Pranav Moudgil each had a goal and an assist. Jack Davies, Roger Vandebussche, Alex Hume and Mitch Makos added a point apiece.

The Chiefs rotate forwards at all three positions and utilize an opposite side winger that creates better scoring angles and is especially effective in the "constant motion breakout" developed by coach John Davies.

Defensive play was vital to the Chiefs' success. Goalie Trevor Sattelmeyer was outstanding as he allowed only four goals and posted a pair of shutouts.

"Trevor plays aggressive in-your-face goaltending," said coach Chris Piku.

The defensive pairings of Blake Chouinard and Vandebussche and Andrew Broderick and Grobbel were also very effective.

"Our defensemen are excellent at poke checks and really know how to use the lumber," said head coach Dave Thomas.

In the 3-0 championship game victory over the Devils, all three goals were scored by defensemen.

"The kids have a great time on and off the ice and each player brings a winning attitude to each game and practice, putting the team first," Thomas said.

The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Chiefs won the Squirt Division championship at the recent Snowball Tournament. Irish take control of Michigan Prep Hockey League race

By Bob St. John
Staff writer

Notre Dame's hockey team is in total control of the Michigan Prep Hockey League (MPHL) East Division, beating U-D Jesuit 5-1 and Pontiac Notre Dame 4-0 last week.

"These were two big-league wins," head coach Kevin McKay said. "Our kids played very well and now we control our own destiny toward winning a division title."

Junior Steve Simon scored a goal, while junior Mike Maitese and senior Joel Maitese chipped in with two goals and two assists, respectively, against U-D.

"It was an evenly played game, but we capitalized on our opportunities, while U-D didn't," McKay said.

Junior David Murray earned the shutout against Prep, while senior Padraic Timmons had two goals and an assist to pace the offense. Senior Pat Irwin (one assist) and Simon (one goal and one assist) also played well.

"Outside of DeLaSalle, playing Prep is a huge rivalry game for us," McKay said. "It was nice to beat them."

The Notre Dame hockey team improved to 6-0-2 in the MPHL and 14-2-3 overall.

Coming up for the Fightin' Irish is a home game on Wednesday, Feb. 6, against Riverview Gabriel Richard.

Basketball

Poor shooting and Detroit Catholic Central's tough defense were key components in Notre Dame's 51-39 league setback last week-end.

"We couldn't get into an offensive rhythm, thanks to a combination of things," head coach Don Sicko said. "We fought back from a deficit, but never could get over the hump."

The visiting Fightin' Irish trailed by eight points at the end of the first and second quarters, but cut the deficit to a single point several times in the second half.

Senior Brian Biggs was in foul trouble the entire game, limiting him to only eight points. He had 23 points in the first meeting between the teams, which was a 61-59 Notre Dame victory.

The Irish missed the play of senior forward Dan Marchese, who missed the game with an injured ankle and will also miss the next two.

"We missed Dan's physical play," Sicko said. "He will miss two more games before returning to the lineup for our home game with U-D."

Senior Sean Rinke paced the Irish with 11 points. The Notre Dame basketball team fell to 3-2 in the Catholic League Central Division and 9-3 overall.

Next for the Fightin' Irish are home games on Friday, Feb. 1, and Tuesday, Feb. 5,

Wrestling

The Notre Dame wrestling train continued its steamroll through the Catholic League last week, crushing Pontiac Notre Dame Prep 66-9.

"Our kids wrestled very well," head coach Gordie Fooks said. "They wrestled with a lot of heart and passion that we expect from them."

"Our wrestlers were very focused," assistant coach Dan Fooks said. "We could tell they really wanted this win, especially since we only beat Prep by six points a year ago."

The Fightin' Irish winners were Sal Valgoi (103-pound class), Ian Naud (119 pounds), Dan Hughes (125 pounds), Jacob Vasquez (130 pounds), Joe Tironi (135 pounds), Mark Nemeckay (140 pounds), Chris Gray (145 pounds), Logan Johnson (152 pounds), Kyle Smith (160 pounds), Brian Headaphol (171 pounds), Victor Fields (215 pounds) and Mike Abdelnour (275 pounds).

"We've been working hard in practice and now we're gunning for Catholic Central in the Catholic League Tournament," Gordie Fooks said. "They're the team to beat, I know we will be ready for them."

Later in the week, the Irish finished 4-1 in the Milford Team Tournament.

"Our kids wrestled very well," Gordie Fooks said. "Our kids are coming into their own, gaining confidence with each match."

The Irish opened the tourney with a 48-17 loss to Milford as Hughes, Fields and Valgoi won matches, but rebounded to crush Okemos 60-18 as Jason Serba, Naud, Hughes, Jacob Vasquez, Tironi, Steve Chauvin, Gray, Logan Johnson, Smith, Fields and Abdelnour won.

Next for Fooks' squad was a 48-21 win over Pinckney, thanks to wins by Naud, Hughes, Vasquez, Tironi, Gray, Smith, Brian Headaphol, Fields and Abdelnour.

In the final two matches, the Irish defeated Ypsilanti Lincoln 49-16 and Milford 42-33.

In the first match, Naud, Hughes, Gray, Mike Lambrecht, Fields and Abdelnour won, while in the latter match, Naud, Hughes, Vasquez, Mark Nemeckay, Gray, Smith, Fields and Valgoi won.

The Notre Dame wrestling team improved to 3-0 in the Catholic League and 17-7 overall.

Upcoming for the Fightin' Irish is the Catholic League Tournament on Saturday, Feb. 9, at Dearborn Divine Child.

Academy spikers win tournament

The Grosse Pointe Academy varsity volleyball team won the recent Bulldog Invitational.

The Academy posted victories over Oakland Christian (15-2, 15-5), Detroit Country Day (15-1, 15-3), University Liggett School (15-9, 15-4) and Bloomfield Hills Roper (15-8, 15-0).

Page Louisell led the serving with 35 good serves in 38 attempts with three aces. Julie Stockmann was 23-for-24 on her serves and Caitlin Munn was 24-for-25.

Chelsea Baumgarten was 12-for-12 spiking, Heidi Getz was 13-for-15 and Katie West was 14-for-20.

Julie Zaranek led with 37 sets and nine tips, while Louisell had 37 sets and five tips.

The Academy improved to 8-0 overall.

South skaters seek a complete game

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's hockey team is still looking for that complete game.

It didn't come last week. The Blue Devils let a 3-0 lead slip away in a 5-3 non-league loss to Brother Rice. In their next game, South had to come from behind to earn a 3-3 tie with Wyandotte Roosevelt in a Michigan Metro Hockey League game.

"Our record isn't where we feel it should be this year but there are lots of good things happening," said coach Bob Bopp. "Some of the younger players like Trey Shields and Rob Porter are turning into very good players."

"We've made mistakes, but every player on the team works hard every time we hit the ice. What we need now is to start playing three strong periods every game and string some wins together."

In the Wyandotte game, South opened the scoring on a goal by Porter, assisted by Justin Graves and Tom Klick, at 10:41 of the first period.

"It was a great shot from the point," Bopp said. "I think all of our players should watch the way Rob plays. He's all over the ice and plays with so much intensity."

The Blue Devils came out of the first period with a 1-0 lead, but early in the second period there was a penalty called on South. Moments later, the Blue Devils got another penalty for knocking the net off of its moorings. Wyandotte capitalized on the two-man advantage to tie the game at 1-1 at 4:20.

The Bears went ahead on a 2-on-1 break with 2:46 left in the second period and made it 3-1 at the 52-second mark of the third period.

Instead of rolling over, South came back with a vengeance.

"After they scored their third goal, the rest of the game was all South," Bopp said. "Our players really raised the tempo of the game."

At 3:31, Mike Hackett made a nice pass from behind the net to Remy Fromm, who was in the slot, and Fromm fired the puck into the net.

"Remy has been playing his best hockey the last four or five games," Bopp said.

South tied the game at 7:28. Porter won a faceoff and got the puck back to Tim Vandenoorn, who fired a shot from the blue line that sailed just under the crossbar.

"It was a great shot," Bopp said. "We had three good chances to win the game after that, but their goalie came up with some big saves — the last one with 22 seconds to play."

Bopp said that he had some concern about playing on the Olympic-sized ice surface in Hazel Park — Brother Rice's home arena. "I don't think it hurt us at all," he said. "We came out and played really well in the first period. We were moving the puck out of our zone and we gave them some trouble with our forechecking."

South held the Warriors to only two shots in the first period and the Blue Devils came out of the period with a 1-0 lead on Ryan Mischnick's shot from the slot at 5:18. He was assisted by Fromm and Bobby Danforth.

South came out strong in the second period and made it 2-0 on Fromm's power-play goal from Porter and Mischnick.

"It was great to see Ryan Mischnick have a good game," Bopp said. "He's a senior who hasn't had a lot of ice time but when he got a chance to play in this game, he was impressive."

The Blue Devils increased their lead to 3-0 at 9:01 on a goal by Porter with assists from Hackett and Jacques Perreault.

South got a penalty late in the second period and Rice scored a power-play goal with 1:07 remaining.

"It was a very questionable call," Bopp said. "But we still were ahead 3-1, we had outshot them 16-7 and we were clearly the better team."

That wasn't the case in the third period. The Warriors carried the play, outshooting South 12-5 in the final 15 minutes. Rice cut the lead to 3-2 at the 46-second mark of the period, tied the game at 4:36 and got the winning goal with 6:40 remaining. Two of the Warriors' four third-period goals came on the power play.

"It was disappointing to play as well as we did for

Grosse Pointe South's wrestling team won two of its five dual matches in its recent team tournament.

The Blue Devils were led by 189-pound senior Joe Stelmak, who posted a 4-1 record on the day.

"He's doing well," said coach Larry Carr. "He's been steady for us."

Jamie Hobstetter was 3-1 at 130 pounds and Tom Card posted a 3-2 record at 171.

South's wins were 30-25 over Bloomfield Hills Lahser and 54-22 against Warren Cousino. The Blue Devils lost to Lakeview (59-12), Birmingham Seaholm (53-19) and Sterling Heights Stevenson (61-18).

Earlier, South lost 54-20 to Macomb Area Conference rival L'Anse Creuse North but shut out Detroit Holy Redeemer in a non-league match.

Joe Pawlowski at 103 pounds and Stelmak at 189 each won their bouts against LCN on falls. Steve Pawlowski had a technical fall at 140 and Mark Carrier won a 4-3 decision at 135.

The highlight of the Holy Redeemer match was Stelmak's pin.

"That was supposed to be their best kid," Carr said.

South finished fifth in its 11-team junior varsity tournament.

First-place finishes by Perrin Fortune at 135 pounds and A.J. Dixon at 140 highlighted the Blue Devils' performance. Will Poirier had a third-place finish for South at 152 pounds.

Bishop Gallagher's girls volleyball team remained winless in the Catholic League A-East Division, losing to Center Line St. Clement and Waterford Lakes last week.

The Lancers also competed in the Lutheran East Tournament, losing to Ailen Park Inter-City Baptist, Lutheran East, Warren Macomb Christian and Sterling Heights Stevenson.

Head coach Elvira Mihali and her volleyball team fell to 0-7 in the A-East Division and 1-17 overall.

Coming up for the Lancers is an away match on Monday, Feb. 4, against Royal Oak Shrine.

Basketball

The Bishop Gallagher boys basketball team played one of its worst games of the season, a 72-32 loss to Dearborn Divine Child.

"We went up against a good team and things did not go well," head coach Ron Perfetto said. "They ran us off the court."

Brian Lloyd scored 13

Burr visits ULS hockey

University Liggett School youth hockey players recently received a visit from former Detroit Red Wing Shawn Burr. Joining Burr at the school's McCann Ice Arena were third and fourth graders Jonathan Roberts, Nick Rizzo, Brendan Kirk, Justin Kirk, Iden Altini, John Stockman, Jake Ceraman, Nick Monforton, Mac Decker, Emma Hull, Rory Deane, Ken Beierlein, Andrew McCoy, Garth Kassner, John Herbert, Jimmy Palmer, Albert Ford, Matthew Nicholas, Jake Goldberg, Danny Zukas, Nick Marsh, Peter Nelson, Henry Nelson and Greg Miller.

Bad bounces help beat North

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Last week's Michigan Interscholastic Hockey League game with Catholic Central made Grosse Pointe North coach Scott Lock think that the Shamrocks had some divine intervention.

"I thought that we outplayed them for two-thirds of the game, but we couldn't get any bounces," Lock said after the Norsemen's 3-1 loss.

"I felt like we were playing Notre Dame's football team. They always seemed to get a good bounce or they'd have a rust of wind at their back when they kicked a long field goal. We had a couple of shots that were on net that we redirected away and a couple of other times we had people in front of the net and the puck bounced over their sticks."

North started the game with a flurry of shots but the CC goalie came up with some key saves.

"We could have been up 4-0 but their goalie stood on his head," Lock said.

The Shamrocks then began to control the play for the next 10 minutes and scored twice within 10 seconds to go up 2-0.

"We seem to lose our concentration after we give up a goal," Lock said. "That's something we have to correct. We've had too many times where we've given up a couple of quick goals."

North dominated the second period and cut the Shamrocks' lead to one on a goal by Mike Mueller, assisted by David Neveux and Robbie Floyd.

It stayed 2-1 until CC scored an insurance goal with about 2 1/2 minutes left in the third period.

"Their coach said that was the best they could have played," Lock said. "We played well but we didn't play our best."

North, which won the state Division II championship last year, and CC, the defending Division I champion, will meet again on Feb. 20 on the Norsemen's home ice at the Mount Clemens Arena.

Lock said that Trevor Mallon, Eric Dloski and Neal Gram each had strong games for North.

South seeks freshman coach

Interested candidates should contact head varsity coach Mike McLeod or athletic director Tim Bearden at (313) 432-3540.

Regina

league foe Ladywood.

"We know we can compete with Ladywood, but we have to play well to beat them," MacDonald said.

The Saddlelites fell into the Silver Division after pool play and lost 11-15, 12-15 to Woodhaven; beat Hazel Park 15-10, 15-8; and ended the tournament with a 7-15, 13-15 loss to Utica.

"It was a long day, starting with our first match with Utica at 8:30 a.m. and ending with Utica at 8 p.m.," MacDonald said.

Senior Erin Kenney tallied 40 digs, while seniors Molly Shaheen and Danielle Newman had 37 digs and 63 assists, respectively.

Earlier in the week, Regina lost 4-15, 6-15 to Farmington Hills Mercy.

"Mercy is a very good team and we did not play our best," MacDonald said.

Gay had five kills and seven digs, followed by Kenney with nine digs and junior Shenna Maison with three kills in 10 attempts with no errors.

The Regina volleyball team fell to 0-3 in the Catholic League Central Division, but improved to 7-15-2 overall.

Coming up for the Saddlelites is the Andover Invitational on Saturday, Feb. 2.

Lancers

points to lead the Lancers, which fell to 2-9 overall.

"We have to look at the big picture, but it does get frustrating because the kids are playing hard," Peretto said. "We have one goal right now, which is to try and get into the Catholic League playoffs."

Next for the Bishop Gallagher basketball team are away games on Friday, Feb. 1, and Tuesday, Feb. 5, against Royal Oak Shrine and Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard.

most of the game and then lose," Bopp said. "I think maybe we thought we had a win and relaxed a little too soon. But for two periods we played the way this team is capable of playing."

Freshman Charles Smith was in goal for both games for South.

The Blue Devils host Southgate Anderson on Saturday at 7:25 p.m. at City Arena.

If you or a loved one have a disability, follow these tips for fire safety.

First, take care of yourself and loved ones.

- Practice fire escape plans with a caregiver or building manager.
- Call your fire department to make them aware of your special needs.
- Live near an exit or on the ground floor.

Then, take care of your smoke alarms.

- Install a smoke alarm on every level of your home.
- Test smoke alarm batteries monthly.
- Replace smoke alarm batteries with fresh ones at least once a year.

Donate your wheels to help Easter Seals

You can now donate your car, truck, van, motorcycle, boat, real estate — whatever — to Easter Seals.

Easter Seals sells the vehicle. Proceeds provide free therapy for children in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

For more information, call toll-free 1-888-240-KIDS (5437).
